BONANZA FOR B.C. FOREST FIRMS

Dollar Plunges In Panic Selling

Panic selling of the Canadian dollar continued around the world today, pushing the exchange rate down to 96.48 cents (U.S.), a drop of .61 cents from Monday.

Bank spokesmen said the dollar would be expected to go lower despite efforts by the Bank of Canada to prop it up by heavy buying.

Some predicted it would fall to about 93 cents American while some U.S. economists were estimating it would go below 90 cents for the first time since 1932.

The drop will be a bonanza for the British Columbia forest industry, which gains about $23 million per year in gross revenue for every penny decline. The dollar has fallen five cents in the past two weeks, creating $115 million in additional wealth for the industry.

The decline will also attract more tourists from the United States.

However, consumers will have to pay at least five per cent more for goods imported from the United States.

Hardest hit will be senior citizens, who face higher costs without the compensating benefits of direct ties to exporting companies. Many senior citizens travel to southern U.S. cities in winter for health or recreation reasons and they will face additional costs because of the collapse of the dollar.

U.S. coins, once plentiful in Victoria, can be expected to disappear within a few weeks.

Victoria banks were charging $1.05 for a U.S. dollar today, including the exchange rate plus handling charges. Two weeks ago the rate was 98 cents.

A senior Canadian foreign exchange dealer told the Times he expected the present panic would blow itself out within three or four days.

He said it appears the Canadian dollar will rise again at some point.

"Quite frankly nobody is too sure where it will go. Everyone knew it was overpriced but this panic is an overreaction. After the panic ends, the dollar will stablize near the U.S. dollar."

He said the dollar hit a low of 95.9 in one Toronto trade this morning but has since edged up to just over 96 cents.

"We may be nearing the end of the panic."

The main problem is not the Quebec election but a report in the Wall Street Journal by the Investment Dealers of New York that the Canadian dollar should be selling at 92 cents.

"Some U.S. investors have begun selling and this started the panic."

Meanwhile in Victoria, Roger Hemeon, Royal Bank of Canada regional manager, said his company continues to believe the dollar will recover in 1977.

He said Canadian governments and companies will have to resume borrowing and this inflow of capital will bolster the Canadian rate.

While economists expected the dollar to fall, no one predicted the present panic, which is unprecedented.

In 1962, when the Canadian government pegged the dollar at 92.5 cents, the dollar fell more than two cents in a single day, but the loss was predictable.

This year, economists had expected the Canadian dollar would edge downwards by small fractions until year's end.

GAS INCREASE GIVEN NOD

OTTAWA (CP) — An increase of three-tenths of one cent per gallon in the price of petroleum products in British Columbia and the Yukon has been authorized, Energy Minister Alastair Gillespie said today.

The minister said in a statement that the price increase will cover the costs of higher pipeline tariffs between Alberta and B.C.

Trans-Mountain Pipeline Co. was granted a rate increase of 10 cents a barrel for crude oil early this month by the National Energy Board.

Egg Shortage Fears Refuted

A Christmas egg shortage predicted by Ottawa is unlikely to develop in B.C.

Last week the Canadian Ekg Marketing Agency (CEMA) announced the possibility of a shortage due to Canadian eggs finding their way to more lucrative U.S. markets.

The agency, however, couldn't have had B.C. and Washington State in mind when it made the announcement.

In Victoria, extra-large eggs sell for $1.03, large for $1.01, and medium for 99 cents a dozen.

At Albertson's food store in Bellingham, Wash., extra-large sell for 85 cents, large for 82 cents and medium for 78 cents.

A purchasing agent for Northwest said the company does not buy Canadian eggs.

Coffee Boosted

MONTREAL (CP) — Standard Brands Ltd. announced today that it is increasing its wholesale price of coffee by 40 cents a pound effective Dec. 10, and expects to make a further increase as early as mid-January.

Wayne Newson, the company's vice-president and general manager, said that the increase does not reflect the full impact of increases in green coffee prices on the world market.

"We were able to delay the increase in price to our customers because of a favorable short-term inventory position but as our inventories have been depleted we are forced to increase our price," he said.

CLOTHING UP

OTTAWA (CP) — Clothing prices are expected to rise next year following imposition of government quotas on garment imports announced Monday.

But Trade Minister Jean Chretien and Ruth Lotzkar, president of the Consumers' Association of Canada, differed on the impact the new quotas will have on prices in 1977.

Chretien, announcing the quotas, said the measures could mean a "marginal" rise in clothing prices and promised the government would backpedal if costs to the consumer jumped rapidly.

Mrs. Lotzkar said in Vancouver the quotas will "substantially raise prices on almost all garments that are commonly bought by consumers."

INFLATION SLOW

OTTAWA (CP) — Total production in the Canadian economy rose at an annual rate of 3.2 per cent during the third quarter this year, and the inflation rate was the lowest in three years, Statistics Canada reported Monday. The government agency says in its quarterly report on gross national product that the growth resulted from a building up of inventories, more personal spending and increased government spending.

The inflation rate during the last 12 months has been the lowest since 1973, Statistics Canada said. The agency's inflation index for the 12 months gained only nine per cent.

UNWED FATHER WINS CUSTODY

VANCOUVER (CP) — An unwed father has been granted interim custody of his child in what is believed to be the first decision of its kind in Canada.

Mr. Justice J. G. Ruttan ruled in British Columbia Supreme Court that a three-year-old girl who had been living with her father be returned to his care, pending a full trial and final order.

The mother had at first allowed the child to live with the father.

FAT OF THE LAND . . .

OTTAWA (CP) — The all-you-can-eat buffet of the Parliamentary restaurant and free booze on the cocktail circuit are taking their toll on the waistlines of MPs.

A survey of the eating habits of MPs published in the December issue of Canadian Consumer shows 57 per cent of Liberals surveyed are overweight compared with 45 per cent of Progressive Conservatives, 33 per cent of Social Credit members and only 25 per cent of New Democrats.

The figures come from a study of 100 randomly-selected MPs carried out by the consumer affairs department of CBC radio.

However, the study found the Liberals were only 13 pounds overweight on average compared with 30 pounds for Social Credit members, 16 pounds for New Democrat and 14.5 pounds for Conservatives.

Irregular eating habits brought on by the pressures of the job, too much alcohol and too little exercise were among the reasons cited by MPs for weight problems.

Former NDP leader T. C. Douglas says that one of the ways he's learned to keep his trim figure is by taking it easy at receptions.

"The best form of exercise is to shake your head left and right every time you are offered something," he said.

Hate Calls Banned

Times Ottawa Bureau.

OTTAWA — A ban on hate calls and the creation of a privacy commissioner, are among the key new features of human rights legislation introduced in the Commons Monday.

In presenting the long-awaited bill, Justice Minister Ron Basford said its aim was to bar discrimination and protect the privacy of individuals in areas of federal jurisdiction.

A human rights commission would be set up to enforce the law in much the same way that the provinces have already done.

The majority of provisions in the Basford bill had already been made public. A similar bill, introduced in 1973, died on the order paper last session.

Basford told a news conference he hoped the bill would be quickly adopted by Parliament so that the human rights commission could be set up "sometime in 1977."

The commission would have the power to enforce a non-discrimination code banning discrimination on grounds of race, color, national or ethnic origin and religion, age, sex, marital status or physical handicap.

The commission would have between five and eight government appointed members: one of whom would be the Privacy Commissioner charged with ensuring that citizens get access to government files on themselves.

The bill would also ban the transmission of hate messages by telephone.

Basford said the provision was included mainly at the request of the Ontario government which said current Criminal Code provisions were insufficient.

The bill would empower the human rights commission to issue a "cease and desist" order against any person or group engaging in a hate campaign by telephone.

Failure to comply would become grounds for contempt of court which carries a penalty of up to one year in jail or a fine not exceeding $5,000.

Drury Dropped Polysar Probe After the Firm 'Explained'

Times News Services

OTTAWA — Charles Drury, former president of the treasury board, said today he dropped the issue of overseas rebates paid by a government-owned company after getting an explanation from company offices.

Testifying before the commons public accounts committee, Drury said he did not discuss the issue either with cabinet colleagues or with Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau, who had referred the matter to him after receiving a letter from the auditor-general.

The letter to Trudeau said that Polymer Corp., a major petrochemical company now known as Polysar Ltd., billed European customers at inflated prices and then rebated the difference into numbered Swiss bank accounts.

The auditor-general said such payments, totalling $2 million, allowed the companies to duck taxes and foreign exchange regulations of their home governments.

Federal auditors earlier traced a tale of complicated financial dealings with foreign agents employed by Atomic Energy of Canada Ltd. to promote a nuclear reactor sale to South Korea.

Negotiations with United Development Inc. of Tel Aviv, acting for AECL in the sale, stretched over five years, officials for the auditor-general's department told the Commons public accounts committee as it opened an investigation into what it describes as unaccounted for payments to the agent.

William Bradshaw, assistant auditor-general, said United Developments assured the AEC board earlier this year that multi-million dollar payments made to promote the sale were far less than the expenses incurred by United.

The auditor-general said in his annual report recently tabled in the House that there is insufficient documentation to back $8.1 million of $15.4 mil-

SUPERTANKER MOORS AT PORT ANGELES

PORT ANGELES (AP) — The super-tanker Overseas Argonaut, carrying about $12 million worth of oil, has anchored here to wait for an early Christmas — the Dec. 15 effective date of a federal court injunction against enforcement of Washington's anti-super-tanker law. (See also page 41.)

When the Argonaut proceeds into Puget Sound, it will become the largest vessel ever to ply the inland waters. The British vessel is 886 feet long and 142 feet wide and has a capacity of 140,905 tons.

She also will be the first ship of more than 125,000 tons to enter Washington waters since the state law was approved in 1975 banning vessels of that size or larger.

One estmate is that it costs $1,000 an hour to maintain the Overseas Argonaut at anchor. The cargo is 138,000 tons of oil, or about a million barrels.

Vanderhoof Switch

Attorney-General Garde Gardom today cleared the way for the re-laying of a charge against the driver of a car which struck and killed a pregnant Indian woman in Vanderhoof.

Coreen Thomas, 21, was killed last July. Her death became the focus of Indian complaints about alleged harrassment and beatings by whites.

Peter Thomas, father of the dead woman, laid a charge of criminal negligence against Richard Redekop but the crown entered a stay of proceedings last week.

Gardom said today the stay of proceedings has now been lifted.

He said the prosecution should now be permitted to proceed and the matter is left to the courts.

"I felt very strongly that justice must not only be done but appear to be done," Gardom said.

He said he had asked officials of his department to consider all the material and they concurred with todav's action.

Ferry 'Unsafe'

New transportation arrangements on B.C.'s central and northern coast are unsafe and "endangering people's lives," New Democratic Party MLA Don Lockstead (Mackenzie) said Monday.

He demanded that Transport Minister Jack Davis replace the ferry Malibu Princess, which sails between Prince Rupert and the Queen Charlottes.

The boat, he charged, was "designed for protected coastal waters and there is serious doubt as to whether or not it can safely be used on the open waters of Hecate Strait."

Lockstead also demanded an inquiry into the circumstances under which RivTow Straits was awarded the coastal shipping contract by Ottawa.

Since the firm took over northern runs, fares have gone up by as much as 150 per cent. See story on page 3.

Clean Sidewalks or Face Fine—Chamber Head

Victoria should follow the European example and fine businessmen who don't keep their sidewalks clean, Victoria Chamber of Commerce tourist and convention director Flos Prior said Monday.

"Victoria used to be known for its clean streets but it is changing," she said in an interview.

"The streets seem to be getting dirtier every year."

By contrast, she said, streets in European countries are spotless.

She has just returned from a visit to Switzerland and West Germany and everywhere she went the streets were cleaner than those in downtown Victoria.

"I learned that the burgermeister (mayor) fines anyone who fails to wash his windows or clean up his sidewalk at least once a week. Maybe we should start doing the same thing here.

"Cleaning up the streets and sidewalks should be a total community effort and maybe there should be fines to encourage people. The fines should be at least $100."

Much of the debris comes from young people throwing banana peels and cigarette boxes out car windows but pedestrians also drop a large amount of litter in the downtown area, she said.

"Unfortunately litter tends to attract litter. If the streets are not kept clean more people will throw things away. Once a street is clean it is easier to keep it clean."

She made the statement while announcing a number of tourist promotion activities being carried out by the chamber.

Prior said the chamber has succeeded in persuading Air Canada to fly a group of German travel agents to Victoria in January after she discovered, while in Frankfurt, that the travel agents came to B.C. twice a year but only visited Vancouver and the Williams Lake-Kamloops area.

"The employees of Air Canada who organize this tour told me they had never ever heard of Victoria."

The employees are not Canadians but are hired by Air Canada for tour promotion work in Germany.

Prior said the chamber immediately sent brochures and other information to the Frankfurt Air Canada office and were told by return mail that the travel agent tour in January will include a visit to Victoria for the first time.

The chamber is also planning tourist promotion visits from Victoria to Seattle and Vancouver early in the new year.

The Chamber will conduct its second annual flower count promotion, starting Feb. 14.

McKenzie Extension Promised

Saanich Mayor Ed Lum said today Highways Minister Alex Fraser has promised to extend McKenzie Avenue westward, almost one mile from Glanford to the Trans-Canada Highway.

Lum said Fraser made the commitment Monday during a meeting with Health Minister Robert McClelland, held to discuss a cost-sharing formula between Saanich and the province on services needed for the proposed 250-bed hospital on Helmcken.

"We have been after such a commitment for years," Lum said. "We obtained it from the highways minister who sat in on our discussions with McClelland."

Sewers and storm drains would have to be extended through Saanich to the hospital site, which is in the unorganized territory of View Royal.

Lum says if the Helmcken site is used it will force the municipality to provide services that were years away in planning.

McClelland, Lum said, has agreed "to look over and reappraise the McKenzie-Douglas site as location for the hospital, based on a new offer by the owners."

The mayor said McClelland had received estimates just in excess of $1 million for additional services required if the Helmcken site is used.

The estimates, however, are based on 1976 construction figures and do not include the McKenzie extension.

Lum said the Saanich proposal was to upgrade roads around the proposed Helmcken site. As a result of Fraser's announcement, he added, new cost estimates will now have to be made.

Quake Hits Chileans

SANTIAGO, Chile (UPI) — A strong earthquake shook the sparsely populated Atacama Desert area of northern Chile, causing landslides, damaging homes and injuring at least 13 persons, police reported today.

The jolt Monday night also blocked highways and severed many power and telephone lines.

One person hit by falling debris was reported seriously injured in the town of Calama, near the huge Chuquicamata copper mine. The other victims were slightly injured.

MAC-BLO CLOSES ALBERNI WOODS

PORT ALBERNI (CP) — MacMillan Bloedel said today that all of its Alberni district and west coast logging operations will shut down Friday for an indefinite period.

A company spokesman said the shutdowns will throw 1,473 out of work for the period.

The shutdown will last at least until January, and decisions on when to resume operations will depend heavily on weather.

Meanwhile, Crown Zellerbach Canada Ltd. announced it is extending its normal Christmas shutdown of the Elk Falls Mill at Capbell River because of softening markets for pulp and paper. G. L. Pearson, pulp and paper group vice-president, said the shutdown will affect about 550 of the mill's 1,000 employees. The shutdown will be from Dec. 24 to Jan. 3 rather than restricted to Christmas, Boxing Day and New Year's holidays.

Alta. Surplus $607M

EDMONTON (CP) — A $1.7-billion bonanza from oil and natural gas helped Alberta to a budget surplus of $607.1 million in the fiscal year which ended last March 31. The surplus was a staggering $568 million more than had been estimated when the budget was introduced in the spring of 1975.

Public accounts released today show the government earned $3.3 billion during the 1975-76 fiscal year, of which $1.729 billion, or more than 52 per cent was derived from oil and gas. Royalties a tax on production — on crude oil, natural gas and natural gas byproducts and synthetic crude oil brought in $1.5 billion.

The government spent $2.7 billion, including $693.6 million on education, $885.6 million on public welfare, institutions and charitable grants, $309.1 million on general government and $243.4 million on highways and bridges.

Actual spending exceeded estimates by about $200,000, but income soared $755.5 million above budget estimates.

Men Admitted

CAMBRIDGE, England (Reuter) — Girton, the Cambridge women's college built two miles outside the city to minimize the contact with male students, will admit men next October. Girton's action follows similar moves by several men's colleges at Cambridge to admit women.

lion paid to United as a fee on the reactor sale.

Committee discussion started late as members argued over the amount of time set aside each week for the investigation. The committee decided to look at ways it could expand the three hours a week now set aside for discussions.

The investigation takes place in the wake of opposition fears that AECL and Polysar may have been involved in bribery and payoffs to foreign officials.

Senior officials of the company say they have no evidence that bribes are involved, but opposition MPs say officials cannot say for sure there were no payoffs.

Two payments by AECL are under question.

One was a $2.4 million deposit in a Lichtenstein bank account as an agent's fee in the sale of a reactor to Argentina.

AECL says the agent was hired by its partner, Italimpianti, and the company has no idea who the agent is.

The Italian firm has been asked for that information and has told Energy Minister Alastair Gillespie it will make a formal written reply.

The auditor-general also says there was insufficient documentation to back $8.1 million of the $15.4 million paid to United Development Inc. of Tel Aviv as a fee on the sale of a reactor to South Korea.

But United said in a statement Monday that it offered AECL a chance last September to go through its books to ensure the $8.1 million for expenses was "fair and reasonable." the company says the offer was passed along to the auditor-general.

Liberal House leader Allan MacEachen, meanwhile, told the Commons Monday he feels the Commons public accounts committee already has all the power it needs to study foreign contracts involving Atomic Energy of Canada Ltd. and Polymer Corp. Ltd., now called Polysar.

But, he added, he is prepared to give the committee whatever terms of rererence it needs to call witnesses in both cases.

Auditors for Polysar Ltd. said in Toronto, that an audit of the Sarnia, Ont., company does not indicate whether rebates paid by the company to European buyers were inducements to purchase by helping the buyers avoid their national taxes.

"It's not up to us to say whether there was tax evasion or not," Gordon Cowperthwaite, senior Canadian partner for Peat Marwick, Mitchell and Co., Toronto, said in an interview.

According to Canada Development Corporation president Anthony Hampson, Polysar Ltd. often pays "volume rebates" to only one company selected by a European parent, even though the rebate in fact is based on sales to a number of related companies.

As a consequence, the subsidiaries not receiving the rebate credit are with the original, inflated invoices, Hampson indicated in an Ottawa interview Monday.

This could often mean that tax authorities in one European country would only be able to determine the "real cost" of the Polysar goods by obtaining co-operation and information from the tax authorities in the country where the "volume rebates" were actually paid, Hampson admitted.

Bennett Pushes for Tax Power

TORONTO (CP) — Canada has become the most overgoverned and underserviced country in the world and the people are beginning to recognize that fact, Premier Bill Bennett said Monday.

Bennett said in a speech to the Canadian Club of Toronto that recent provincial election results reflect a disillusionment with big government and a readiness to return to grass-roots politics.

His major proposal called for a transfer of the taxing role to the provinces.

"The provinces cannot live and grow within the rigidity of the federal government," he said. "Only when the federal government returns the money and power to the regions can we have a happy and prosperous Canada."

In his first public speech in eastern Canada since becoming premier, a year ago, Bennett compared his province with Quebec and the Nov. 15 victory of the Parti Quebecois.

"It is significant that in the last two provincial elections held in Canada, the electors opted for governments that reflect the aspirations and problems of the individual provinces."

Bennett said Canadians should not interpret the victories of the two new provincial governments as a move toward separatism, but rather as a reflection of what he called regional federalism that will allow the provinces to develop individual destinies within the framework of Confederation.

The federal government has not striven to meet the basic needs of Canadians, instead, "its sole purpose is the perpetuation of itself," he said.

Fares Jumped 150% On Northern Runs

VANCOUVER (CP) — The new transportation link between the Queen Charlotte Islands and the mainland has caused some passenger and freight rates to go up by almost 150 per cent.

The rate increases apply to the tug and barge service run by Rivtow Straits Ltd. which has replaced the former Northland Navigation Co. Ltd.

Northland stopped its Queen Charlotte run Oct. 31 after the federal government withdrew the company's shipping subsidy.

When it was running, Northland used two ships for the Queen Charlotte islands — the Northland Prince, which ran from Prince Rupert to Masset, and the Skeena Prince, which ran from Masset to Vancouver. Both ships could carry passengers, automobiles, and freight.

To replace these, Rivtow is using a tug and barge system to carry automobiles and freight, and the Malibu Princess, a chartered ferry, for passengers.

The chance-over from Northland to Rivtow has caused whopping increases in all freight and passenger categories.

A round-trip ticket from Masset to Prince Rupert and back for any passenger cars plus driver cost $96 on the Northland run.

The same service on a Rivtow barge would cost $180 for small cars and pickups. Since passengers are not carried on tugs and barges, drivers will have to pay an added $39 for a round-trip ticket on the Malibu Princess.

Round-trip fares on the airlines cost $58 during the week and $48 during the weekend.

When Rivtow took over the Northland route, the company claimed it could provide the same service at comparable costs without any government subsidies.

GREENPEACE VESSEL HELD IN PAY ROW

NEW WESTMINSTER (CP) —The James Bay, a former minesweeper used by the Greenpeace Foundation in its anti-whaling crusade, was impounded Monday pending the outcome of a civil action.

A federal court action was initiated by chief engineer Edwin Haggarty who said the Greenpeace Foundation, the James Bay, and the ship owners, James Bay Exploration Company of Seattle, owe him $8,500 in unpaid wages.

Greenpeace spokesman Paul Spong said it is all a "misunderstanding" and would be cleared up with Haggaerty's lawyer today.

The ship has been placed under arrest at its berth in the Annacis Sough in New Westminster and could be auctioned off if the claim is not satisfied.

Gibsons Death Arrest Made

VANCOUVER (CP)—A man wanted in connection with the shooting death of Bill Black, 28, of Gibsons, has been arrested in Mexico City.

Robert Shannon, 26, was arrested by Mexican police following an investigation that covered Oregon, California and Mexico, a police spokesman said Monday

Local officers will be in Mexico City today to interview Shannon and to launch extradition proceedings, he added.

Black, a roofing contractor, was shot to death Nov. 11 in front of his shome by a man with a rifle.

Oil Firm Shells Out

FORT NELSON (CP) — Shell Oil of Canada has agreed to pay a toll to the local Indian band for the use of a road crossing its reserve near this community, 400 miles north of Prince George.

Andrew Schuck, lawyer for the 286-member Fort Nelson Indian band and mayor of the town, refused to disclose the amount of the toll.

However, band chief Arthur Dickie said the Indians had asked for $1,000 a month from each of 29 companies who might use the three-mile muskeg trail this winter.

Over the four-month drilling season the combined tolls would have netted the band more than $100,000, but so far only Shell has agreed to pay the toll. The others have avoided the situation by building a new trail around the reserve.

"It makes no difference to us whether they use our road or not," said Chief Dickie. "All I say is that if they do, they should pay for it."

Last year, the band threatened to block off the trail, which crosses their reserve 15 miles east of Fort Nelson.

Black Squabble Hit at Geneva

Times News Services

GENEVA — Rhodesian Foreign Minister Pieter van der Byl said today that black nationalists at the Rhodesia conference are fighting among themselves "like cats and dogs" without any regard for the people of the country.

The only hope for a successful outcome of the conference depends on more discipline on the part of the nationalist leaders, he said.

"For the past five weeks we have had the deplorable spectable of the four black delegations arguing like cats and dogs over what is to be the carcass of Rhodesia," he added.

The only resemblance to the "more elegant" congress of Vienna of 1814, which reorganized Europe after the Napoleonic wars, van der Byl said, is the sight of delegation leaders "quarrelling for personal power without the slightest regard to the people at home."

Van der Byl reiterated the white government's position before the conference opened Oct. 28 that the only issue is implementation of Anglo-American proposals for a transition to black majority rule in Rhodesia — proposals totally rejected by the nationalists.

"None of these principles are negotiable," he said.

The foreign minister was particularly bitter about the actions of nationalists Robert Mugabe and Joshua Nkomo, partners in the "Patriotic Front."

"Mugabe is a Communist puppet," he said.

Magabe and Nkomo issued a statement Monday accusing Britain and the United States of wanting to set up a "black puppet regime" in Rhodesia which would "dance to their tune."

"The Patriotic Front statement is a music hall parody of Communist invective," van der Byl said.

The Rhodesian minister also objected to a press statement made by Mugabe and Nkomo, who attacked Prime Minister Ian Smith as a rebel leader whose government has no regard for law, honor or its promises.

In London, in an interview broadcast by the BBC, Mugabe said Smith and other white Rhodesian leaders should be brought to trial in a black-ruled Rhodesia.

Immigration Streamlined

Canada's new Immigration Act introduced in the Commons last Wednesday appears to take a middle road. For the most part it is a sensible document that rationalizes immigration needs to fit Canada's changed circumstances. The outgrowth of three years of study and recommendation by a parliamentary committee, it lists as fundamental principles, family reunification, non discrimination, concern for refugees and the promotion of Canada's economic, social and cultural goals.

Perhaps the best feature of this bill is that it is color blind. While the abused points system will be retained, emphasis will be on occupations and job availability. Prior to setting immigration levels — initially about 140,000 per year — there will be provincial consultation, but no province would have a veto on the numbers or kinds of immigrants. Easing passage for relatives, especially parents and grandparents, is a humanitarian gesture rarely seen in Ottawa's recent legislation. The removal of prohibition on the grounds of "moral turpitude," while laughable in this day and age, prevents bureaucratic smallmindedness. All these measures contain principles which the vast majority of Canadians wholeheartedly support.

But the authority to require immigrants to spend a maximum of six months in designated communities or jobs is odious. Even though an immigrant can appeal the residence requirement on humanitarian or other grounds, it creates a system of citizen apprenticeship. There is only one class of Canadian, or potential Canadian, and they shouldn't have to prove their worth in isolated areas or miserable occupations because of a computer readout. The reason for the inclusion of this stupid demographic dues paying revolves around the large number of East Indian immigrants who have settled in Toronto and the large number of Asians in Vancouver. Of course ghettoes of one minority are not desirable. But what will this residence requirement precipitate? Large numbers of West Indian immigrants in Yellowknife? East Indian settlements around Ungava Bay?

To use people as just another input in economic policy smacks of totalitarianism, and is out of step with the other precepts of this bill. One of the basic tenets of this country is that Canadians can go where and when they please. What an idiotic way to impress prospective citizens. What a dumb way to tacitly prepare immigrants for Canadian citizens. At the committee stage of the bill residence requirements should be struck from this bill. With that deletion, Canadians will have an immigration act that reflects the basic tolerance so much a fabric of our country.

Unitarian Service Committee

Its projects are simple self-help ideas — an egg marketing co-operative in Lesotho, jute crafts in Bangladesh — and sometimes direct food aid to relieve that most basic of all human wants, hunger. The Unitarian Service Committee for 31 years has sought to relieve starvation and privation around the world, using the gifts of thousands of individual Canadians and their provincial and federal governments.

Last night USC director Lotta Hitschmanova kicked off the Victoria fund-raising campaign, which has a goal this Christmas of $30,000. That is about 1 per cent of the USC's projected budget for next year of about $2.5 million.

As charities go, the USC stretches its dollars. Eighty-eight and a half cents of every dollar received goes out in direct aid. Administration costs are held to 11½ cents on the dollar. What your donations pay for is training for the unskilled, milk for children, equipment for co-operatives, medicines and health care.

Thirty-seven cents pays for a child for one day at the Kolo Kakoli day care centre in Bangladesh.

Thirteen dollars feeds a family of four in Lesotho for a month.

Thirty-eight dollars covers the cost of a year's instruction in mechanics or carpentry for an Indonesian youth; he has a job when he finishes.

To us they are relatively small amounts — the USC's entire budget for the year could be covered out of what the government of Canada paid into anonymous Swiss bank accounts as a kickback on the sale of a reactor to Argentina; the Victoria campaign goal could be met from the cost of just four flights on Air Lang.

But the USC restricts government funding to one-fourth of its total budget, to preserve its own independence and most importantly, its flexibility, its ability to act quickly when and where help is needed most.

It is Canadians helping others directly, not an impersonal transfer of funds between governments. And Dr. Hitschmanova visits USC-sponsored projects on the spot to ensure the best use is being made of your donations. Won't you help this year? See "what your friendship dollars can do," as one USC slogan has it.

W. A. WILSON

It's Not Quite So Simplistic

OTTAWA — For all the increasingly earnest attempts to justify the Lambert royal commission, the government has been unable to eradicate the impression that its real purpose is simply to stall action on a vitally important question — the control and proper administration of public funds

The impression has been strengthened by information that has leaked around town from extremely well-placed informants on the way in which the commission was set up. These informants are emphatic on several background aspects of the commission. Here, in brief, is their story.

- No senior minister supported the idea of appointing the commission to explore the same ground that the auditor general's study group had explored so thoroughly over a two-year period and that in particular Finance Minister Donald Macdonald was opposed.
- The real sponsors of the scheme were not ministerial but bureaucratic — Privy Council Clerk Michael Pitfield, former clerk Gordon Robertson and Treasury Board Secretary Gordon Osbaldeston.
- Documentation on the proposal which would have been normal was not circulated to cabinet ministers.
- That some of the prime minister's own advisers were deeply opposed to the manoeuvre.

Deeply Opposed

- It was sold to the prime minister at a time when he was preoccupied with the election of a separatist government in Quebec and preparing his own approach to that problem.

The initial government defences on the scheme were so inept, especially on the part of the prime minister, that they in themselves lend some support to the story that comes from these informants. Trudeau's first approach to the topic in the House of Comons was typical of the occasions when he is not well-prepared on a subject and has to make up his argument as he goes along. Two days later, at the press conference where he staged such a remarkable tour de force, he came back to the problem of controlling government spending in a far more sophisticated and convincing form.

Nonetheless, this impromptu answer in the House of Commons last week is illuminating because it suggests how the prime minister's mind works on money matters:

"It seems to me that any parliamentarian should be able to understand that our institution does not necessarily have to run the way accountants say it should."

It is perfectly true that the functions of government cannot be compared to commercial operations because the latter are aimed at profit-making and those of government involve the provision of services, often not offset by any directly related revenue. But to go beyond this basic difference and disparage the approach of accountancy is quite dreadful for, at this second level, it is the proper control and administration of public funds that is involved. Their proper use should be even more rigorously safeguarded than money in the private sector.

When the Conservative member of parliament for Leeds, Tom Cossitt, put a lengthy series of questions on the parliamentary order paper about the prime minister's spending on the official residence at 24 Sussex Street and on his offices, they went unanswered. I eventually asked an insider when the government intended to face the problem and give answers. The reply was frank: "Never, and if you want to know why, because we can't risk it."

I am suggesting only that the prime

ALLEN LAMBERT

ministerial spending was extravagant, not that it was irregular. That situation nonetheless shows a certain approach to public funds. Because of this attitude, which is by no means restricted to Trudeau but which long possession of power has made commonplace in the Liberal party, the argument over the auditor-general's proposals has been badly distorted by the government.

It centres now on one of J. J. Macdonell's proposals — that the government needs a chief financial officer, reporting to the president of the treasury board. Trudeau himself has argued that it would be difficult to fit this post into the existing government organization and that this is one problem which his royal commission will study.

Even if the difficulty is real, rather than contrived, it is certainly not an appropriate subject to refer to a royal commission. If the cabinet and its senior advisors are of any competence, that would be the sort of problem for them, not for outsiders.

The proposal for a chief financial officer, however, is only one part of Macdonell's plan for more effective control and administration of spending after it has been authorized by parliament. Here is what he really said, not what the government says he said:

"There are four basic requirements of an effective system of financial management and control:

- "A financial plan that serves as a cornerstone for managing and controlling financial resources;
- "A central system of budgetary control, based on effectively functioning control systems in each department and agency;
- "Complete and appropriate financial reports;
- "Effective financial control based on a system of continuous and automatic checks on expenditure decisions."

A Far Cry

Macdonell believes that the chief financial officer should be a man who has had "extensive experience as a senior financial executive in a large-scale organization." That implies that he must be an accountant who knows how to control the use of money. At present, the function is supposed to be filled by the secretary of treasury board but this official is never an accountant. At best he may be an economist. One of Macdonell's concerns is that too many senior officials in the government simply do not know what is meant by proper control of public funds.

The auditor-general wants to see a restructuring of the treasury board so that its responsibilities for bilingualism and negotiating public service labor contracts are not imposed on the man who serves as chief financial officers. As matters stand now, the secretary of the board is a notoriously over-worked man. Among the duties that Macdonell wants to see the new official perform are these:

". . . The design, development, implementation and monitoring of adequate systems and procedures to ensure that the form of the estimates provides a sound basis for the government's budgetary control system, that public moneys and assets are under effective custody and control at all times that accounting procedures and financial reports throughout government including the public accounts conform to acceptable accounting principles and standards, that expenditure of public moneys are made with due regard to economy and efficiency, and that satisfactory procedures measure the effectiveness of programs where practical."

That is a very far cry from the simplistic version of the Macdonnel proposal the government has touted about.

Narrow Minds

A comment regarding Duh and Ting Got to Go, an article appearing on the front page of Wednesday's Victoria Times.

I feel it would be far more constructive to instruct anglophones in the correct usage and pronunciation of their own language before spending tax dollars on programs designed to anglicize francophones. I cannot visualize the narrow mind who could possibly become annoyed with the slight peculiarities of English spoken by a French-Canadian. Do those more critical linguists consider themselves capable of speaking French with the same fluency as do their French counterparts in English?

Would it not be more in order to compliment those francophones who have made the effort to learn English (perhaps even follow their example) than to insult them in such a manner? If one day an equivalent number of anglophone civil servants (senior or otherwise) have learned to speak fluent French, then, and only then, should such programs as "accent correction" courses be suggested but directed to both sides of the fence.

However, I am happy to note that government purse strings do not seem to be so tight as to eliminate such assuredly worthwhile undertakings as this make work project for hibernating government language training personnel. — Ian W. McCrea (a bilingual anglophone) 1555 Burton Avenue.

Elite Rebuttal

In reference to the numerous, negative responses to the annual Vancouver Island jury show at the Victoria art gallery that have appeared in your paper, the so-called "elite" have been finally provoked into a rebuttal.

First, I would like to express my dismay at the amount of contempt that has been heaped so carelessly upon the judges. Unfortunately, it is not unusual for artists to be treated with so little respect by a large proportion of the public. Is it outrageous to assume that, as in any other profession, the actual practitioners do have more knowledge of their subject than the layman? Yet time and time again people such as Allan W. Edwards of Vancouver launch slanderous and absurd reprisals against artists, gallery directors and art critics.

Mr. Edwards suggests that technical proficiency is not a criteria for judging art, he also appears to have nothing but contempt for graphite and the highest respect for water color. Does this mean we should judge art by what media have been used? Any medium is merely a tool of the artist, and the way in which he utilizes it necessitates a certain amount of skill, otherwise his expression becomes inelligible.

Artists are always accused of being "elite," yet the visual arts are among the highest forms of communication. As in all communication there is an equal demand upon both "speaker" and "receiver." The spectator must make an effort towards understanding a work, and often it does not come easily. This is what Gathie Falk implies in her failure to supply an explanation of Kim Adams' work.

In closing I would like to ask how many of the outraged public have taken the time to drop into the Open Space gallery on Fort Street, or the Emily Carr centre on Government? I am sure they will find people willing to communicate about art at both of these places. So, just exactly who are the self-styled artistic snobs? — Stella Grindley, 3440 Whittier Avenue.

Poppy Fund

The many thousands of your readers (actually 80,000 of them) who during Remembrance Week wore the traditional poppy and contributed to the poppy fund will be pleased to know that we exceeded our objective of $25,000. To them and to all those who assisted in this annual endeavor we extend our warmest appreciation.

Last year across Canada close to $1 million of poppy fund money was used for direct welfare assistance for ex-service people and their dependants in financial distress. Here in Victoria our Remembrance Day committee which represents the Army, Navy and Air Force Veterans in Canada and five Royal Canadian Legion branches spent $22,000 in a variety of services of an emergency nature. The sale of poppies and wreaths during Remembrance Week makes it possible for these veteran-serving organizations to continue this work. — Harold Quissy, Honorary Treasurer, Victoria Remembrance Day Committee, 1417 Broad Street.

McKenzie Defended

Your editorial of Nov. 25 (Where Was the Mayor?) prompts me to speak out in defence of Ald. Ron McKenzie.

Your comparison of McKenzie and Hood boggles the mind and is like comparing a DC3 to a 747. The old one was a fine old aircraft but should have been grounded years ago. At Crystal pool as anyone who has any business training knows, a break-even situation must be strived for, thus by trial and error one arrives at some reasonable operating arrangement. The users must be kept happy and the people who foot the bills must be protected. Apparently when McKenzie took over the pool, the taxpayers of Victoria were heavily subsidizing this operation. Does restraint and care not merit some praise?

Blanshard Court problems have been blown out of all proportion and either by intent or ignorance the true problem has been swept under the rug.

By Ald. McKenzie's vigilance regarding operating costs the folks in Blanshard are being protected against escalating costs which would definitely rise dramatically, and subsequently people's rents would go up in proportion. Does this not make sense?

As for comments regarding some of the tenants, apparently McKenzie mentioned some facts from actual police reports and the usual line up of political ghouls jumped on his back for their own political gain, not out of sympathy for the few bad apples in the barrel.

It occurs to me that when a young man offers his services to the community and gives of his personal time, that the media in particular would get behind such a person and encourage in serving his fellow man. All the city of Victoria council are hard working and successful men trying to return a favor to their city which has been good to them. In return the media tears them apart, belittling their efforts. Perhaps the news people would rather have a situation such as exists today in Ottawa — spending out of control, admitted graft, millions to foreign agents Thank god we have people like McKenzie, Mike Young and the rest of our fine council who really care.

Certainly McKenzie makes mistakes. Who doesn't? He who sits on his hands and stays quiet would be the ideal councilman as far as the media are concerned as he could not be criticized, but then sales of the paper would suffer, eh?

Good luck, McKenzie, keep on digging. There are a lot of concerned citizens and taxpayers out here supporting you and the fine council. — Supporter.

Vets on Noose

With the realization that the bill to abolish capital punishment has become law, please be advised that our organization at our recent dominion convention agreed unanimously to continue to pressure the federal government to hold a plebiscite at the earliest possible time to determine the will of the people regarding this controversial subject.

It is our contention that our representatives in Ottawa did little to convince the majority of the Canadian public that their decision was individually arrived at in an integral manner.

What is obvious to so many people is that inflationary trends followed by controls have led to budgetary cuts, thereby creating the spreading of protective services very thinly so that response to any emergency is seriously curtailed. This is not to say we are against controls but we merely point out that any deterrent against capital crime has been reduced tremendously. It naturally follows then that the only deterrent against kidnapping, rapes etc., which generally leads to murders is the imposition of capital punishment in its fullest term.

At the present time, all across the country, young girls are being raped and murdered, caretakers, security servicemen, bus and cab drivers and other law-abiding men and women are being attacked and in some instances killed; the wanton use of firearms is resulting in many deaths and this all leads to firms and departments having to adopt expensive emergency measures which, in most cases, can only alert police that a crime is being committed, but may be too late to prevent fatal results. Witnesses to any fatality are placed in jeopardy since killers, knowing the law, would not hesitate to eliminate them.

Therefore, we as veterans comprising a membership of over 50,000 are adding our active support to all police force services who are the true front line troops in the struggle against rising lawlessness including murder, rape, terrorism, kidnapping, hijacking, bombing, etc., in their fight to have the will of the people with respect to the whole capital punishment question determined.—Frank Thompson, President, Unit 12, Army, Navy and Air Force Veterans in Canada.

Lucrative Mortgages

The Bawlf housing report has had a poor reception from the general public.

From 1952 to 1971 I lived in Victoria and built single family dwellings, duplexes and larger buildings. Here are some of the prices I paid for building lots in the 1950s:

For a lot in Queenswood close to Arbutus, $1,000; a seafront lot on Telegraph Bay Road, $2,500 (this was the highest-priced lot I bought); one on Laburnum Street in Oak Bay, $1,500; two large duplex lots on Admirals Road, $800 each. These figures would be the average price for the many lots I purchased.

I built mostly three-bedroom homes and they would sell from $12,000 to $15,000 depending on their location. This would include the real estate salesman's commission.

The mortgage interest rates were six to seven per cent in the 1950s. The lot price would represent about 10 per cent of the total selling cost of the home.

Recently there were two lots in Oak Bay being advertised for $70,000 or $35,000 each lot.

I think the lot price today would represent at least 40 per cent of the total cost of the house. Here is one area where the price of homes went up in price over $30,000.

Some cities created land banks — Saskatoon and Prince George are two examples. This makes for a big reduction in the lot cost. I would say that labor has increased the house cost the least of all. There is higher productivity.

Dealing in land must have been one of the most lucrative of businesses in Canada.

There is something I would like explained: Why are the houses in the U.S. so much more reasonably priced, and why is the mortgage interest only seven and eight per cent?

I feel sorry for the young folks of today who are buying a home and being charged 11 and 12 per cent over a period of 30 years or more. I think it is a crime.

"There's something rotten in the state of Denmark." — G. R. Hunter, Victoria.

I refer to the article StatsCan: A Bureaucratic Mess, on page five of the Nov. 25 Times and in particular to the photograph over the caption "Ostry . . . launched expansion." Can you correctly identify this bearded gentleman for me? The Dominion statistician who "launched the expansion" is a lady, Dr. Sylvia Ostry, new deputy minister of something-or-other.—W. A. E. Big Corporations Must be Cut to Fit Our Needs

By ERIC KIERANS

(A former cabinet minister in both Ottawa and Quebec and a former president of the Montreal Stock Exchange, Kierans is a professor of economics at McGill University. This article is excerpted from the first of the Walter L. Gordon Lecture Series delivered by Kierans last month at Memorial University in St. John's.)

Neither the customers, the staff nor the owners impede the continuity, the progress and the accelerating growth of the corporation. The giant corporation asserts itself.

Its force and strength are derived from within, the internal flows that it generates from within, the internal flows that the control of resources, the direction of markets and consumers' needs along the lines that best fit, not real needs, but its own capacities.

Not Competitive

Corporate capitalism is not competitive capitalism. When 83 firms of a total 21,998 incorporated companies control 46 per cent of the assets ($23 billion of $50 billion) and make 43 per cent of the profit ($1.6 billion of $3.7 billion) in Canadian manufacturing in 1971, they are not adjusting their price and output policies independently of each other as economic theory once suggested.

When 1,000 corporations control 69 per cent of all the corporate assets in Canada then it is childish to suggest that the remaining 300,000 corporations can provide meaningful competition. More particularly, what can one say other than that a state of concentrated oligopoly power exists in sectors such as motor vehicles, glass manufacturing, sugar refining, cotton yarn and cloth, automobiles, tobacco or beer, where four firms control more than 90 per cent of the output?

Government policies, including wage and price controls and the creation of a royal commission on corporate concentration, are evidence of the concern now felt by people over the concentrations of wealth and power that exist. The mere mention of changes or hints of reform have excited the most violent reactions on the part of business and big labor, who are themselves among the greatest beneficiaries of corporate power. There have been outbursts proclaiming the end of our democratic political system and forecasts of a leap into the dark corridors of centralism and totalitarianism.

Truly, Adam Smith's warning was prophetic, that monopolies would become overgrown standing armies that would seek to intimidate and control governments.

For the life of me, I cannot understand the hostility of the business community to the Trudeau government. It cannot be on the basis of what the federal government has done for, literally, big business has never had it so good.

With the exception of the United Kingdom, I doubt that any nation in the world has given its Corporate 1,000 a more handsome gift package of subsidies, tax allowances, two-year write-offs, deductibility of merger costs, cheap loans, export credits and insurance than our present Trudeau government. If this be socialism, business should cry for more of it, not threaten to go south.

Lack Credibility

Business spokesmen do lack credibility. Just a few months ago, the great evil facing Canadians was a capital shortage but this has died offshore. Now there is, supposedly, a flood of Canadian investment funds fleeing south for a more hospitable climate. Strange that the Canadian dollar stays high and firm, which argues that more funds must be coming in than going out and that other businessmen must have more faith in the Canadian government, our resources and our people than our own leaders have.

We attribute an assumed sluggishness in capital spending to business uncertainty and hostility towards government intervention but we neglect to mention that there is a worldwide slowdown in the rate of capital spending and that Canada, contrary to the situation in the United States, Japan and Western Europe, is showing a substantial increase of 12.1 per cent over 1975. Just what business expects to gain by these doubtful scare tactics is beyond me.

KIERANS . . . they never had it so good

The goal of the corporation is profit . . . One cannot say that the corporate sector has not achieved its purpose during the past five years. Profits increased 12.8 per cent in 1971, 23.3 per cent in 1972, 34.4 per cent in 1973, 27.2 per cent in 1974 before they levelled off with a slight decline of 2.9 per cent in 1975. In other words, profits increased from $7.7 billion in 1970 to $17.8 billion in 1975 or an increase of 131 per cent — and yet "unfriendly Ottawa," in the words of one outstanding Canadian chief executive, "does not understand free enterprise."

And despite popular impression, corporate income tax rates declined during that five-year period. In 1970 corporations paid an effective federal rate of 29.6 per cent on their $7.7 billion in profits. In 1975, the effective federal rate was 26.6 per cent on profits of $17.8 billion. But who, listening to businessmen, would have believed this?

The concern of Canadians can best be illustrated by stenciling in the picture of the growth of a few companies which are selected not at random but on the basis of the virulent attacks of their chief executive officers on government.

- The Royal Bank of Canada was founded (predecessor institutions) in 1870. By 1970, 100 years later, it had accumulated $11.4 billion in assets. Five years later, i.e. 1975, these assets had risen to $25.2, an increase of $13.8 billion or far more than the accumulation of the previous century. The banks, as a whole, have increased their assets 242 per cent in the eight-year period 1967-75, according to the Financial Post. Just what rate of growth will satisfy the banking system? Is this year's rate of growth of 16 per cent not enough?
- The CPR was chartered in 1881 and had accumulated $2.3 billion in assets by 1970. Five years later, and after a consolidation of accounts, the CPR has assets of $6.2 billion. If the CPR is now looking south, it may be because of its size it finds no new worlds to conquer in Canada but not because Trudeau is a socialist who has prevented it from growing.
- Noranda, in its present form, started off in 1922. By 1970, it had accumulated assets of $871 million. Again we have a more than doubling of its wealth to $1.98 billion in 1975. A provision in the Tax Reform Act of 1971 encourages mergers and has enabled Noranda, and the rest of the corporate sector, to charge off the costs of borrowing money to make acquisitions against existing profits. This never comes out in business addresses to shareholders or to anyone else.
- Imperial Oil began in 1880 and had accumulated total assets of $1.55 billion by 1970. In the next five years, they added another $1.4 billion, almost as much as in the previous 90 years. One would never know from company spokesmen that this near-doubling occurred during the Trudeau-Benson-Turner years or that Imperial has been able to finance $424 million of this increase in assets by withholding (legally and without interest charges) payment of corporate income taxes. Of an estimated $7 billion in unpaid corporate taxes, the largest 1,000 corporations must owe the government $6 billion — without, as in the case of people, interest.

Lack of Spirit

There has never been a period of such unparalleled growth in assets and income in the corporate sector as has been obtained by the "unhappy 1,000" during the last five years and, equally, never such an outpouring of hostility towards elected governments. Certainly we recognize the heavy responsibilities of holding and managing these assets which have been turned over to the current managers but one could wish that they would show a little more of the spirit, creativity, entrepreneurship and optimism in Canada that the founders of their corporations possessed.

It is a sad commentary, but true, that the heart of the foreign ownership problem is due to the simple fact that foreign investors have more confidence in Canadian governments, our political institutions, our natural resources and us than the leaders of our own business community.

One of the major promises of business has not come to pass. The inequalities in our society have not changed with the remarkable rates of growth and accumulation of wealth that have come to pass in the last quarter-century. In 1951, as Professor Irwin Gillespie of Carleton University has systematically documented, the richest 20 per cent of our population had 42.8 per cent of our money income and in 1974; after Carter, white papers and tax reform, the same 20 cent had 42.4 per cent. And yet growth and more growth, via more and more investment, was supposed to reduce income disparity.

The managers of our giant corporations are bound by the goals of growth in assets and profit. But what happens if the assets of the Royal Bank, $25.2 billion, double every 4½ years (the current rate of growth) and in 1985 exceed $100 billion? Or the CPR reaches $25 billion by 1987? These are the rates of corporate growth today and still corporate leaders growl. Socially, economically and, most of all, culturally, society has yet to examine the awesome impact of these self-determining, self-propelling, perpetual money-making machines. Whether they are foreign-owned or not is beside the point. Who is to ask the real questions: Are your goals ethically justified? To whom are you responsible and responsive? To yourselves, management and labor, alone?

A Quick Turn

In the widely held corporation, the shareholder and property-owners are no longer a factor. They are the johnny-come-latelys, the in-and-outers who look for a quick turn with no attachment to or acceptance of the goals of the corporation. If the corporation is to become stateless, i.e. free of any national government's jurisdiction, as George Ball and so many of our business leaders propose, then who is to ensure a correspondence between the aims, priorities and prejudices of a people and their forms of organizing commerce?

Corporations have become ends in themselves when they were never meant to be more than efficient means of grouping the factors of production — labor, capital and land — to expand the output of goods and services.

And now governments must take a hand, for it is politics that declares a people's priorities and sets forth a nation's aim and high purposes. Corporations are simply the means by which those goals are to be achieved. The mixed enterprise system, for 299,000 corporations, is not dying, but the largest 1,000 have every reason to be unhappy. They will have to be cut down to size.

These firms, unless disgracefully managed, can grow at a constantly compounding rate that exceeds the growth rate of increase of population. Under these conditions, their power will grow until a political solution is sought.

Split Up Banks

Entrepreneurs, i.e. new men, become less and less effective in changing or challenging the existing order and voters turn to other means. After all, what does free entry and the competition of a new bank with $5 million in capital mean to an existing bank with $25 billion in assets?

Would markets in Canada be dislocated if some of our largest banks were split into five or six separate units? One can visualize the Royal Bank and Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce divided into 10 aggressive units which would bring more meaningful competition here and now, and perhaps even regional head-office representation, than would the creation of 10 new $5-million single branch banks. We cannot wait 100 years for competition. Nor can we leave it to the banks to decide when they are big enough.

There is a corporate challenge to governments, i.e., to political democracy.

Economics provides no technical solution to the growth of these 1,000 immortal firms.

The answers will have to come from people as they express their preferences, priorities and prejudices through politics. Politics needs a strong defence against those who would seek to substitute their aims and values for the wider cultural, social, spiritual and economic aspirations that define the character and nature of each of us.

Too Much Talent, Too Well Paid

By DOUGLAS FISHER

OTTAWA — The Hon. Robert Andras as a general? I haven't seen such a mammoth smokescreen operation since General Montgomery put a steady, month-long blanket of fog over his two armies readying to cross the Rhine in 1944. Why? To mask the crushing criticism of the government's competence by the auditor-general.

Andras, his deputy (or top official) Gordon Osbaldeston and Edgar Gallant, head of the Public Service Commission, anticipated Macdonell with exciting news about grand programs of "performance measurement in the public service of Canada" and a "master plan to improve financial administration."

One could sense something major was underway when we had on national TV news a filmed excerpt of Osbaldeston giving critical praise to ongoing "concern" within government over efficiency. It was almost like seeing Gerald Bouey doing a Royal Bank TV spot in place of "Just Mary."

The anticipation was not enough. Andras, the cabinet and the top bureaucrats, had read the strictures of Macdonell about a government juggernaut out of financial control well before the rest of us. They knew how devastating Macdonell's report would be, especially in this grim month of politics. So, in a long tradition of obfuscation, there is the traditional "defusing" or "putting off" device, a royal commission of inquiry, this one headed by a bank president, backed by a trio of an accountant, a professor of administrative history and a federal deputy-minister of some notoriety, if not distinction.

This is to be "a comprehensive inquiry into the best means of providing for financial management in the federal administration of Canada." The inquiry takes the "bite" out of the auditor-general's insistence on immediate reform. The excuse or "sky-hook" for the government's resort to the smoke-screen of the inquiry is that Macdonell's recommendations raised the crucial issue of "ministerial responsibility." It — i.e. "ministerial responsibility" — might be put in jeopardy.

"Ministerial responsibility" also means the anonymity of public servants. It is the principle justifying the Canadian parliamentary practice of withholding at will from the Opposition, government backbenchers and the public anything the ministry decides should not be seen.

Certainly, it is a fundamental principle. It is in much need of debate and examination, especially by those who have been and are engaged in the political process, rather than in the bureaucratic process. Seen in this light, the four commissioners are incredible as a group.

Lambert, the chairman, is the equivalent of an archbishop in the church of mammon. He has been functioning as a member, more recently as chairman, of a continuing committee which advises the PM on executive remuneration. In other words he's substantially responsible for our attainment of the most well-paid, best-pensioned, most numerous senior government bureaucracy in the Western World.

I wonder after reading Lambert's last report whether he's shrewd enough to come in out of a storm, let alone turn a critical eye on the very bureaucracy whose trough he's broadened, deepened and filled.

The deputy minister appointed, O. G. Stoner, is lately the head of the magnificent federal department of transport. I suggested to Andras that the man who presided as Mirabel, Terminal 2 and Pickering were planned and developed was an odd choice for this commission. Not at all, argued Andras. Who better to understand snafus and incompetence than a man out of a ministry in "a mess?"

One does wonder why the cabinet did not appoint either Marcel Belanger or Lorne Campbell, members of the "independent committee for the review of the office of the auditor general." After all, their report (spring, 1975) got an excellent reaction from business and politics, and in particular, they dealt with this fundamental issue of "ministerial responsibility" a-vis parliamentary control."

The third member of the commission, Professor Ted Hodgetts, is most respected by academic colleagues and students but he's essentially the historian, scribe and extoller of the federal public service. He is not a "parliamentary" political scientist but an "administrative" one.

For example, in his major work on the history of the public service from 1967 to 1970, he had this conclusion: ". . . the aggrandizement of the powers of the public service may be viewed as a reflection of the superior ability of this institution to make the adaptations or develop the innovations which have led to the bypassing of other public institution, like parties, parliaments or courts."

To veer offside in my conclusion: Did you know that the federal bureaucracy in Ottawa and Hull alone had on October 27th 1,104 Sx's or "senior executives?" It has 3,321 professional economists and statisticians and 824 professional auditors. Perhaps some form of the "overload" explains the findings of the auditor-general. Too much talent. Too well paid.

We Don't Always Mean What We Say

By RICHARD COHEN
Washington Post

Back when I was what they used to call a cub reporter, I interviewed a man mentioned in the newspapers as ruddy-faced. He was a lawyer and we met in his wood-paneled law library. He came in reeling, shouting oaths and teaching me on the spot the real meaning of the term ruddy-faced. It means drunk.

Ever since then I've kept my eye on newspaper words or terms that should never be accepted literally. I have used some of them myself and offer them to you now with the understanding that there are exceptions to all rules. Here, anyway, are some of the words and terms:

Controversial. This is a word used to describe people like Idi Amin, the controversial leader of Uganda. The newspaper meaning of the word is abominable. People or issues that are really controversial are called complex.

Jolly. This means fat.

Self-made. This phrase should not conjure up Horatio Alger images. It can sometimes mean crook.

Earthy. A busy woman who curses.

Candid. A gossip who tells the press stories designed to embarrass his friends.

Frank. A gossip who tells embarrassing stories about himself to the press.

Legendary. In newspapers, and especially on television, this word has nothing to do with legend. When used in a sports context, it refers to any ball player retired more than 10 years as in, "the legendary Babe Ruth." When used to refer to entertainers, it's anyone who made a black and white film. Thus, "the legendary John Garfield." The only exception to this rule is "Gone With The Wind." Anything or anyone connected with this picture is legendary.

Linked to. A sexual term when applied to woman. In this context it means that the woman is sleeping with whomever she is linked to.

Eye for the ladies. Another sexual term. It does not refer to a man who has an esthetic appreciation of the female form. Instead, it refers to a man who will sleep with anything that walks.

Ebullient. Sometimes used to describe an egomaniac.

Loyal. Another word for dumb. It always precedes the word aide and usually refers to someone who carries his boss' coat and gets treated shabbily.

Attractive. All women mentioned in newspapers are attractive. The word tells you nothing. The word handsome, however, means that the woman looks like a horse but has money.

Self-styled. This is a red-flag term, meaning that the writer does not believe what he is about to tell you.

Crony. The friend of someone the writer does not like.

Associate. The friend of someone the writer likes. Sometimes the same person can be both a crony and a friend.

Employers Accused Of Destroying WCB

b.c. briefs

Gov't to Build Maternity Unit

VANCOUVER (CP) — Health Minister Bob McClelland said Monday that a 90-bed maternity unit will be constructed alongside the proposed 200-bed children's hospital in the grounds of Shaughnessy Hospital.

McClelland told the Vancouver Variety Club that the $30 million to $40 million combined project will have top government poiority.

Work on the new site will start early in the new year and construction should be finished by 1980, he said.

Alderman Charged

RICHMOND (CP) — Alderman Robert Norman Hobbis, 35, of Richmond, appeared Monday in provincial court charged with obtaining credit through false pretences, forgery, and with uttering a forged document. Hobbis, defeated in the Nov. 20 municipal elections, was ordered to appear Jan. 12 for trial.

Manager Murdered

VANCOUVER (CP) — Michael La Pierre, an assistant restaurant manager, was identified by police Monday as Vancouver's 20th murder victim this year. Le Pierre was found in the hallway of his apartment building bleeding from stab wounds in his stomach, arm and neck after neighbors heard the sounds of broken glass and screaming from his suite. A man was in custody.

VANCOUVER (CP) — The International Woodworkers of America (IWA), said Monday in a brief that "there is a well-orchestrated effort on the part of major employers' groups in this province to destroy the Workers' Compensation Board (WCB).

The IWA, the largest union in the province, also charged that the Social Credit government and "in particular the labor minister (Allan Williams), are assisting the employers in their dirty work."

The attack is contained in a 40-page brief handed Monday to Williams. Other organizations have recently voiced dissatisfaction with the performance of the WCB.

Jack Munro, western regional president of the IWA, said the brief is to let the government know "we don't like what's happening to the WCB and will not tolerate it."

He said that for the past 10 months, various employer groups have been applying enough pressure to have progressive prevention programs shelved, people fired, review board decisions reversed and a "myriad of other things, all for the sake of saving a few dollars."

Since the Social Credit government was elected last year, said Munro, the WCB system has reached the stage where "death and injury are taking a back seat to the almighty dollar."

Munro said the union investigation was comissioned after numerous IWA locals began complaining of irregularities in board procedure.

The union further maintains that the board has been the "object of consistent political pressures" and criticized the three commissioners and acting chairman John Berry.

One of the commissioners is George Kowbel, formerly of the IWA. Munro said that Kowbel should have spoken out publicly on what is going on because "he knows; he is part of the decision-making process."

Munro said he has not yet been able to meet with Kowbel to discuss the situation.

The union makes 11 recommendations to the minister including demands for:

—An immediate review of the qualifications and conduct of the commissioners and acting chairman and the immediate appointment of a knowledgeable chairman of integrity and independence;

—Appointment of an administrative chairman for boards of review;

—A ministerial commitment that the independence of boards of review will be maintained;

—Commitments to correct serious problems in accident prevention, industrial hygiene, noise and hearing control;

—A board commitment to enact amended health and safety regulations immediately;

—Appointment of a full-time workers' compensation consultant;

—An immediate halt to any further cutbacks in board services and compensation entitlement.

Labor Minister Williams said he has not seen a copy of the report and declined comment until he has seen a copy and had a chance to study it.

GAFFING TROUT COST $1

KELOWNA (CP) — Harold McDougall, 28, a resident of the Westbank Indian Reserve, was fined $1 in Kelowna provincial court today for gaffing trout in "the manner of his ancestors from time immemorial."

McDougall admitted taking the trout without a permit from a protected area of Powers Creek.

Judge Reg Moir issued the same fine used in another case in a supreme court ruling that upheld the legislation.

A member of the same Indian Band was fined $1 when the Supreme Court of Canada dismissed his appeal in October on a conviction of spearing kokanee in Peachland Creek. The court found native people were not excluded from the federal Fisheries Act.

AIB Reconsiders on BCR

VANCOUVER (CP) — Jean Luc Pepin, chairman of the federal Anti-Inflation Board, said Monday the board will reconsider rollbacks it ordered in B.C. Railway settlements which chopped up to 15 per cent off two-year settlements.

Pepin, along with B.C. Commissioner Dave Chapman, met Monday for almost three hours with BCR union and management officials who protested the rollbacks.

Pepin said after the meeting that the dispute is "one of the most complex the board has ever had to deal with."

He said the board likely will consider the problem in about two weeks.

Jack Whittaker, spokesman for the Joint Council of Railway Unions, said after the meeting that he is optimistic.

"But it's like a shipwrecked sailor — you're always looking for the horizon for some hope," said Whitaker, adding he is happy with management for coming out in support of both negotiated and binding awards handed down in the dispute.

Maintenance of Way Union members who had won increases of 27.82 per cent in the first year and 10.49 per cent in the second under the Shime award were cut back by the board to 10.6 per cent and 8.03.

Sea Cucumber an Export Crop?

A $15,000 federal government contract awarded a Port Alberni man to investigate the feasibility of a sea cucumber industry in B.C. has sparked interest among Chinese food dealers.

Sea cucumbers are imported from the Far East and used as food by the Chinese people who claim they improve eyesight. They sell for $10 a pound in Chinatown.

"Harvesting sea cucumbers from local waters might bring the price down," said Henry Fong of Morley Co. Ltd., on Fisgard Street, "but it will depend on the flavor of the species. That's what counts."

The contract was awarded by the Research Board of Canada to Joe Paquet of Port Alberni. He has developed a special drege to harvest sea cucumbers from Barkley Sound and plans to start operations Wednesday.

"It's a pilot project," he explained. "We don't know its commercial potential."

But he noted North America imports about $500,000 worth of sea cucumbers a years.

While sea cucumbers are familiar to fishermen, most people have never seen them. They are no more related to the vegetable than the potato is to the horse. They are actually animals, cylindrical in shape and belong to a group which includes the sea urchin and starfish.

They vary between a foot and two feet long and are found on the sea floor.

Many sea cucumbers are caught in Indonesia where they are dried and sent to Chinese markets as food. Trepang or beche-de-mer is the commercial name for the dried bodies of sea cucumbers.

Fong said trepang is mainly used to flavor soups and dishes through strips are sometimes fried like bacon.

"But it is also eaten because it improves the eyesight," he said.

He noted there are many species of sea cucumbers and they all differ in flavor.

"Chinese people are particular about flavor," he added, "so if the local species doesn't come up to standard, it won't sell."

How does it taste?

Fong shook his head.

"I just can't relate it to other sea foods," he said.

LOOMIS LIMIT SET

VANCOUVER (CP) — The British Columbia Labor Relations Board ruled Monday that Teamsters Union members on strike against Loomis Armored Car Service Ltd. cannot picket B.C. Ferry terminals.

The teamsters picketed the Tsawwassen ferry terminal last week when a Loomis vehicle was driven aboard a ferry by management personnel.

About 65 teamsters have been on strike against Loomis and Brinks Canada Ltd. since Nov. 15.

Teamster spokesman Ed MacIntosh said the union will continue to follow loomis and Brinks armored cars and picket delivery points.

MacIntosh also said he expects a coin shortage in Vancouver soon if the strike continues, because Loomis provides the only coin-rolling service in the city.

SFU Offers Senior Course

VANCOUVER (CP) — Simon Fraser University is starting a new program January for people more than 60 years old, who will be able to take any course at the university and get recognition for it, without committing themselves to a four-year academic program leading to a degree. Senior students can enroll in any course without paying tuition fees.

Peltier Appeals To UN

VANCOUVER (CP) — Lawyers for American Indian Movement leader Leonard Peltier said Monday they have applied to have his case reviewed by a committee of the United Nations.

Stuart Rush said in a telephone interview from Dundas, Ont., that he has sent a telegram to the UN delineating seven areas in which Peltier's civil or political rights have been violated during his incarceration in Canada.

Peltier, a 32-year-old Sioux from the Pine Ridge Reservation in South Dakota, was arrested Feb. 6 in Alberta and is in a Vancouver-area jail awaiting extradition to the United States. He is wanted in the U.S. on charges of murdering two FBI agents on the reservation.

The British Columbia Supreme Court held four weeks of hearings, then ruled that he should be sent back to the U.S. That ruling was appealed but upheld by the Federal Court of Canada.

Escapers' Charges Mount

KAMLOOPS (CP) — A number of other charges were laid against three prisoners of the Kamloops Regional Correctional Centre Monday when they appeared in provincial court charged with escaping the institution Friday.

Richard Lynn Wright, 34, of Vasalia, Calif., and Harvey Harold Andres, 28, of Kelowna, are charged with forcible seizure of a person, two counts of motor vehicle theft, and one count of breaking and entry with intent to commit an indictable offence.

Wright also is charged with assault causing bodily harm and Andres faces additional count of breaking and entry with intent to commit an indictable offence.

David Allen Chamberland, 19, of Kamloops was charged with theft under $200 (a tool box) in addition to the charge of escaping lawful custody.

The three were already being held in prison awaiting trial on various charges.

Andres is charged with murder.

Wright faces 26 charges in Canada including a charge of attempted murder and several charges in the U.S.

Chamberland faces charges of robbery and escape.

Wright will appear in court today on the charges he faces; Chamberland appears Wednesday; Andres appears Thursday.

KETTLE MURDER CASE

NEW WESTMINSTER (CP) —The Crown said Monday at the beginning of a British Columbia Supreme Court murder trial that a young East Indian woman and her husband were murdered by her father because she had married without his consent.

Charged with the murder of Parmjeet Jaur Sidhu and her husband Gurmial Singh Sidhy are Santa Singh Tatlay, the father, and James Wilbrod Lewis, both of the Merritt area.

The young couple were killed Oct. 23, 1972, when an electric kettle exploded in their suite in New Westminster.

Assistant prosecutor Wally Oppal said in his opening statement that the crown would attempt to prove that:

Prior to the murder Lewis went to Kamloops and bought a kettle;

Four days before the murder Lewis posted a parcel from Kamloops;

Lewis and Tatlay both worked for Craigmont Mines near Merritt and that they had used explosives in their work.

Penalties Praised

VANCOUVER (CP) — An Employers' Council of B.C. spokesman Monday described penalties assessed against Alcan smelter workers at Kitimat, who led a June wildcat walkout as "innovative and constructive."

Bill Hamilton said the penalties are a "progressive step" towards developing "a system of penalties to ensure it (the board) is respected."

Hamilton said that when the board's orders during the strike were ignored, "it seemed to do pretty severe damage to the strength of the board — the board tended to become a toothless tiger."

In an unprecedented extension of its powers, the board Friday asked workers who received loans from their union while under suspension to guarantee repayment of the money.

Georgian Trio Awards a Bonus

By AUDREY JOHNSON
Times Staff

Rewards of being a symphony subscriber were ample on the weekend when Sunday-Monday audiences were treated to not just one, but three concertos and an unexpected bonus performance of two movements from the Shostakovich Trio No. 1.

The three young Russian women on tour together as the Georgian Trio are fine and dedicated artists, possessing a comprehensive technical proficiency.

Their relationship with conductor Laszlo Gati and the orchestra was secure and sympathetic and whether the accompaniment was by a reduced string ensemble as in the Haydn, or the more comprehensive Beethoven, it was conducted and played with a sensitivity that preserved an ideal balance.

Gati's choice of Mozart's too seldom heard Adagio and Fugue for strings was an excellent introduction to the program, and whatever was lacking in refinement of tone found compensation in the spirit and vitality of the rendering.

Of the three soloists, most captivating in performance was Tamara Gabaraschvili, the cellist. She was playing, possibly for the first time in this city, a Haydn C Major Concerto which was first published in 1899. It proved to be a delightful work with a lyrically graceful second movement and a dazzling finale that demanded superb control and a particular lambency of technique.

Miss Gabaraschvili was more than equal to the demands of the conerto. Her tone is luminous—a warm expressive cantabile in the Andante movement—phrases lovingly shaped with an elegant bow. Virtuoso fingering, buoyancy and superb vitality, flexibility and control in bowing of the finale made this a memorable performance.

Violinist Zaria Shikhmurzaieva, performaing Mozart's G Major Concerto No. 3, proved herself a substantial and highly accomplished performer, possessed of a fluent technique and evoking a polished and rounded tone which served a lovely Adagio movement most effectively. The outer movements were played with an efficiency that left no doubt of this artist's capability to deal with any virtuoso item in the violin repertoire.

This last can also be said of pianist Marina Mdivani whose playing of the Beethoven third piano concerto was a positive statement full of power and dynamism; a mature, cerebral performance of the highest technical competence.

The three artists formed a disciplined and seasoned ensemble with the Shostakovich encore. Balance would have been improved if the lid of the concert grand had been lowered to semi-closed position, but otherwise this was a rich addition to the evening with marvellous and strange passages of harmonics from the cello and a vivacious and tonally colorful second movement.

50 SEEK B.C. AUDITOR JOB

About 50 people have applied for the job as British Columbia's auditor-general and it will probably be a year before one is chosen, Agriculture Minister Jim Hewitt said Monday.

"There are some, of course, that stand out and some that are marginal," Hewitt, chairman of the auditor-general's committe, told reporters after a meeting Monday.

The auditor-general will receive $52,000 a year to oversee the finances of B.C. He will be selected by an all-party committee established by legislation passed last spring.

Hewitt said all applications are confidential and the committee was looking them over on Monday, studying the strong and weak points of each.

He said the committee will hopefully meet again before Christmas but "it'll take a considerable amount of time" before an auditor-general is chosen, possibly a year.

Original Gifts At Craft Faire

Everyone who goes Christmas gift shopping clutching a list of relatives and friends, has problems; there'll be some people who seem to have everything, some beyond the generation gap one side or the other and therefore a bit of a puzzle, and some whose tastes are just so special that the average shop can't cater.

Good news then for gift-seekers with problems is the announcement of the fifth annual University of Victoria Christmas Craft Faire, taking place in the new lounge of the Student union Building, Thursday, Friday and Saturday. Hours are 11 a.m. to 8 p.m., 10 a.m. to 8 p.m. and 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. respectively.

This year a committee made up of seven local craftspersons has juried all work submitted for the event, thus assuring visitors of the highest possible quality in the items offered for sale. Craftspeople from all over the island, Gulf Islands and Vancouver will be exhibiting.

Among potters are such well-known names as the Swan Lake Potters, Gerry Wilkin and Ian Steele from Nanoose Bay and Edna Thomson. Wall hangings, cushion covers and woven toys will be offered by local weavers Patricia Gislason and Lily Bohlin, and master craftsmen in glass, Chris Aarondson and Richard Lette will be displaying Tiffany lamps, jardinaires and pendants.

Creative leatherwork by Brian Thom of Vancouver and David Jacobs of Coombs will offer some unique possibilities. There will also be two well known makers of wooden toys, John Lomen from Parksville and Robert Denny of Victoria.

Steel Producers Back 6% Hikes

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Bethlehem Steel Corp. lined up behind other major United States steel producers Monday and announced plans to raise prices on steel used in consumer goods.

In a statement issued from the company's headquarters in Bethlehem, Pa., the firm said the increases would average about six per cent on sheet and strip products effective Dec. 1.

Bethlehem is the second largest steel producer in the U.S. and it became the seventh of the major steel manufacturers to raise prices on flat-rolled products, which are used widely in the automotive and appliance industries.

U.S. Steel Corp., the largest producer, has not yet indicated whether it plans a price increase.

U.S. Steel's reaction is considered crucial. If the company decides against a price increase, the other companies would probably have to rescind their increases to remain competitive.

President Gerald Ford has ordered the Wage and Price Council to investigate the price boosts. William Lilly, acting council director, said last Wednesday he didn't think market conditions justified the increases.

All of the producers who have raised prices noted that rising costs and poor profit margins in producing sheet steel, which accounted for 38 per cent of last year's industry shipments, justified the increases.

DEAN SCOBIE
APPOINTED ASSISTANT VICE PRESIDENT — MERCHANDISING FOR DISCOUNT FABRICS

Portland, Ore. — The appointment of Dean Scobie to the position of assistant vice president/merchandising for the United States and Canada for Discount Fabrics was announced recently at the home office in Portland by Bernard I. Galitzki, president. Mr. Scobie will report to Pearl G. Galitzki, executive vice president.

For the past three years, Mr. Scobie has been in charge of merchandising for the Canadian Division of the 70-store retail fabric chain (The Canadian Division of Discount Fabrics, Inc., is known as Gold's Fabrics Ltd. and is headquartered in Vancouver, British Columbia).

In his new capacity he will continue to supervise merchandising for the 11 Canadian stores and will take on new responsibilities for the U.S. stores located in seven western states. Barbara Makarchuk continues as merchandising assistant in Canada.

Mr. Scobie's experience in fabric and home furnishing retailing totals 15 years.

Social Donnybrook in Ottawa As Trudeau Fetes Athletes

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau feted the country's hockey stars Monday and set off a near donnybrook among the Ottawa social set.

Chief Justice Bora Laskin of the Supreme Court of Canada scurried around after autographs from the likes of Guy Lafleur and Serge Savard of Montreal Canadiens.

So did Commons Speaker James Jerome.

Others in the who's who of Ottawa gossiped freely about Punch Imlach, coach of the Buffalo Sabres, who told his players they could attend the shindig only if they got back for practice at 9 a.m. today.

Senator J. J. Greene mused that the Liberal party could run Jean Beliveau — former Montreal Canadiens great — in any riding in the country and win it.

The occasion was a testimonial dinner given by Mr. Trudeau and his wife Margaret for Team Canada, which captured a championship from hockey teams around the world last September.

The team had cocktails at the prime minister's residence then boarded a regular Ottawa transit bus with the Trudeaus to join about 150 guests for a dinner in the ornate Parliament Hill ballroom in the West block.

As the meal ended, Trudeau praised hockey as the game of all Canadians.

The country, he said, was "absolutely thrilled" with the outcome of the Canada Cup hockey series two months ago. The fact that the Canadians won it was proof "that nice guys finish first."

Trudeau drew a roar from the crowd as he read a newspaper clipping suggesting that Quebec can go ahead and separate under newly-elected Premier Rene Levesque as long as the province leaves its hockey players behind.

The newspaper writer suggested that Quebec give up stars Lafleur and Guy Lapoint for Labrador and a Maritime province "to be named later," Trudeau said.

Darryl Sittler of Toronto Maple Leafs, remembered for a series-winning goal, picked up Trudeau's theme in a short thank-you speech.

Team Canada, he said, was made up of French and English players and "we won."

Canada, he added, could do the same.

Smaller Units Hinted For Canadian Airborne

OTTAWA (CP) — Defence Minister Barney Danson announced Monday that he will move the Canadian Airborne Regiment from Edmonton to Petawawa and Ottawa next summer and hinted that it may be broken up into smaller units.

The removal of the more than 1,000 men in the regiment from Alberta was the major change in the new defence minister's "re-alignment" of some military formations—expected to be the first of a series of changes affecting bases across the country.

At the same time Danson announced that Canadian Forces Base London will be retained as the base for the First Battalion, Royal Canadian Regiment, the Avenue Road site of CFB Toronto will be closed over the next two years, and urban development of surplus defence department land in Toronto will be encouraged.

The minister denied that "partisan" politics had anything to do with the government's decision to take the airborne regiment out of Conservative Alberta while retaining 1 RCR in predominantly Liberal southwestern Ontario.

He also stated that the election of a separatist Parti Quebecois government in Quebec had absolutely no bearing on the decision to move the paratroops to bases close to the Quebec border.

Edmonton-Centre Conservative MP Steve Paproski denounced the move as a disaster for his city and all of Western Canada, while Tory defence critic Allan McKinnon (Victoria) said he is "suspicious" that the airborne regiment may be broken up into air commando units assigned to different military formations.

McKinnon stated that if the regiment is to be turned into a land force with airborne capability only, it would be a reversal for former Defence Minister James Richardson's policy of building up the airborne unit as the "teeth" of Canada's armed forces.

'CANADA CAN SURVIVE . . .'

TORONTO (CP) — Senator Eugene Forsey, one of Canada's foremost constitutional experts, said Monday that Canada can continue as a country if Quebec separates.

The 72-year-old Liberal senator for Ontario told an audience of about 1,200 at the Women's Canadian Club that the French language and Quebec "aren't the only things that keep us from falling into the jaws of the United States."

Senator Forsey, a Newfoundlander by birth, said if Quebec tries to annex Labrador — part of the platform of Parti Quebecois Premier Rene Levesque — there will be trouble.

"Every Newfoundlander in the world will rally in defence of Labrador and the dead ones will rise up from their graves to help."

Coin Sales Tallied

OTTAWA (CP) — Net proceeds from the sale of specially-produced Olympic coins and stamps totalled $112,572,627 at the end of September, according to a report to Parliament released Monday.

The report, published by the finance department, said $81 million of that amount had been turned over to the Olympic Corporation (COJO) to help pay for the Montreal summer Olympic Games and another $7 million was scheduled for payment.

Premiers to Slate Constitution Talks

OTTAWA — Prime Minister Trudeau has left it up to provincial premiers to decide whether they want to discuss the constitution at a first ministers' meeting here in mid-December.

The conference is tentatively scheduled for Dec. 13-15.

As yet there has been no request for a postponement by Premier Rene Levesque of Quebec.

In his telex to premiers, dated Nov. 9, and a subsequent message to Levesque dated Nov. 23, Trudeau proposed that considerable progress has been made on federal-provincial fiscal arrangements.

He expressed the hope that "final decisions" can be made at the first ministers conference, on transfer of tax points and cash grants to the provinces in return for their taking over all responsibility for shared-cost programs such as medicare and hospitalization.

"I believe it would be helpful for the taxpayers as well as for governments to be aware,

"I believe it would be helpful for the taxpayers as well as for governments to be aware, before the next tax year begins, of the important changes that are likely to ensue in the transfer of tax points from the federal government to the provinces," Trudeau said.

Trudeau noted that Quebec had requested a postponement from Nov. 29-30 to the new dates of Dec. 6 and 7, for a federal-provincial meeting of finance ministers to reach agreement.

Speaking of the agenda for the first ministers meeting, Trudeau said there seems to be no doubt the question fiscal arrangements will remain a principal and urgent reason for getting together.

He suggested that some time should also be set aside for a discussion on the state of the economy.

"As a further possibility, we could perhaps go on to consider, if there is general support from premiers for such a discussion, the question of the constitution and its patriation . . ." Trudeau wrote.

Such a discussion, he said, would be "a response to the specific request of the premiers that their proposals be considered at a conference of ministers."

Trudeau suggested the meeting be held Dec. 13, running over to the 14th if necessary.

In his message to Levesque, Trudeau said that if the Quebec premier wished, he would seek another date early in the New Year for the conference.

Trudeau also released copies of correspondence with P.E.I. Premier Alex Campbell and Manitoba Premier Ed Schreyer.

Campbell wrote that the main objective should be to patriate the constitution. If there are changes on which there is unanimous agreement or substantial agreement, those changes should be incorporated as well; but if substantial agreement is not possible "we should not insist on incorporating these changes before patriation."

Land Offered For Park

CROFTON — One last effort will be made to preserve 26 acres of property, including 800 feet of sandy beach, as parkland.

The property is owned by Ruth and Ray Gallagher of Crofton, who told Cowichan Region Board Chairman Pat Clements they are willing to sell it to the regional district to be used as a park.

The property has been removed from the agricultural land reserve by the land commission, it was learned last week.

Provincial recreation department planners recommended more than a year ago that the government buy the land, but it was later learned the department did not have funds available in its budget.

Clements said board members agree they should meet Gallagher.

"We could possibly finance it over a number of years," Clements said.

The Gallaghers have said they would like to see the land preserved as a park, but if they can't get a fair price, the Gallalghers have proposed subdividing it.

Boy Remanded

FORT ST. JOHN (CP) — A Fort Nelson boy was remanded to Dec. 23 Monday so that a psychiatric report can be made. The 15-year-old was charged with arson in connection with a fire Nov. 23 at the Carlton Elementary School in Fort Nelson that caused $200,000 damage.

NDP-CLC TO STRENGTHEN TIES

OTTAWA (CP) — Leaders of the federal New Democratic Party and the Canadian Labor Congress (CLC) agreed Monday to strengthen their ties. But they failed to resolve beasic differences over the CLC proposal for joint social and economic planning by a council made up of government, business and labor representatives.

"We discussed that (the proposed council) and neither group has changed its mind," said NDP leader Ed Broadbent.

"But we both agreed on the need to increase labor's role and we have agreed to have further meetings."

Joe Morris, president of the CLC, said following a meeting with top NDP officials that he has not altered his proposal to the federal cabinet for establishment of a council of social and economic planning.

Broadbent has said the NDP cannot support the CLC proposal as it now stands because he feels such a council would take over functions that only Parliament should perform.

The CLC plan already has been rejected by the federal government and business representatives, two of the three intended participants.

Finance Minister Donald Macdonald said in the Commons Monday that the mood at a meeting Friday between cabinet and business represtntatives was one of "general rejection of the CLC view that there should be a narrow tripartite group which would have executive responsibilities."

Frustration Soothed By Williams, Jackson

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Running backs Delvin Williams and Wilbur Jackson, working behind a San Francisco '49ers' line including two Minnesota castoffs, gave the Vikings' defence a night it would rather forget.

"It felt great, especially after the disappointment of last week," said Williams, whose 153 yards in Monday night's 20-16 upset victory by San Francisco made him the first '49er back to rush for 1,000 yards since J. D. Smith did it in 1959. Jackson wound up with 156 yards.

Williams had totalled nine yards on 13 rushes eight days earlier as the '49ers lost 23-3 to the Los Angeles Rams. San Francisco's offence finished with 88 net yards in that defeat, its fourth in a row, which virtually killed the '49ers' chances of reaching the National Football League playoffs.

The '49ers, 7-5, will be eliminated from contention by either a Ram victory or a '49er loss.

"I'm sure they were embarrassed last week and didn't want to be embarrassed again," said Vikings coach Bud Grant, who saw Williams and Jackson combine for 106 yards in the first quarter alone.

Williams left the game early in the fourth quarter when he twisted an ankle on a 26-yard run which put his season total at 1,012 yards. Jackson, who has 689 yards for the year, carried the running load after that and San Francisco's defence made big plays late in the game to protect the '49ers' lead.

The blockers for Williams and Jackson included guards Steve Lawson and Andy Maurer. Lawson was acquired in a minor preseason trade and Maurer was signed as a free agent after being cut by the Vikings.

A blocked extra-point kick on one of Minnesota's touchdowns left them trailing by four points in the closing minutes, killing a possible field-goal attempt which would have tied the game and forcing Minnesota to try for a first down at the San Francisco 15-yard line.

Chuck Foreman was stopped cold by the right side of the '49ers' line on the fourth-and-one situation and the lead held up.

Bull was filling in for Jim Plunkett who pulled a side muscle in practice last Wednesday. The rookie from Arkansas restricted his work mostly to handoffs, completing just three of the eight passes he threw for 32 yards.

Jackson, like Williams a third-year pro, got the '49ers off to a 7-0 lead with a two-yard touchdown run in the first quarter.

San Francisco dominated the early going and led 10-0 after Steve Mike-Mayer kicked a 45-yard field goal early in the second quarter. Mike-Mayer had missed a 25-yard attempt in the first quarter after the '49ers drove 55 yards.

But Minnesota's Fran Tarkenton, who had missed on his first seven passes, threw for touchdowns of 18 yards to Sammie White and eight yards to Ahmad Rashad as the Vikings moved into a 13-10 lead. But the second extra-point try by Fred Cox was blocked by defensive tackle Cleveland Elam.

Bull's one-yard quarterback sneak with 41 seconds left in the first half completed an 83-yard drive, putting San Francisco ahead again at 17-13.

A 37-yard field goal by Cox, following an interception by Minnesota's Paul Krause, was the only score in the third quarter. It trimmed the '49ers lead to one point, 17-16.

Mike-Mayer restored the four-point edge at 20-16 with a 38-yard field goal in the opening seconds of the last quarter.

DRIVING AHEAD for 10-yard gain against Minnesota Vikings is 49ers' back Delvin Williams (24) during first quarter of National Football League action Monday night in San Francisco. Vikings attempting to block advance include Paul Krause (22) and linebacker Jeff Siemon (lower right). Williams emerged as star of 49ers' devastating ground attack, which rolled up 20-16 upset win over Vikings.

VICTORIA HONORS ATHLETIC STARS

Players and officials from three Canadian championship teams and 13 Olympic athletes were honored by Victoria City council Monday night during a reception at McPherson Playhouse.

More than 70 of Victoria's finest athletes were presented with scrolls by city officials to publicly recognize their achievements.

Victoria Bates fastball club, Victoria West Soccer Club and Victoria McDonald's junior lacrosse team were honored at the reception. Another national champion, Victoria Home Lumber senior women's basketball squad, was honored earlier by the city.

Olympic athletes receiving scrolls wre Ina Delure, Murray Keating, Tom Morris, Philip Delesalle, Joyce Yakubowich, coach John Herb, Linda Schaumleffel, Debbie Brill (who now lives in Aldergrove), Bob Bolitho, Sandra Kirby, Mike Cullin, Wanda Allan and Michael Neary.

If Your Hands Don't Shake for $7,000 You Might Make It on Big Golf Tour

By ERNIE FEDORUK
Times Staff

SCOTTSDALE, Ariz. — For the young professional looking towards a career as a tour player, the National Golfers of America emerges as the League of Promise.

It offers benefits that are both psychologacil and financial.

Relatively unknown outside of pro golf circles, the NGA may develop into an important grooming league for the young professional seeking a career as a tourist.

For the young pro, like Cec Ferguson of Victoria, the Professional Golfers' Association (PGA) tour is still the big apple. Operated by the PGA's Tournament Players' Division (TPD), it's the one that put $40 million — give or take a million — into Arnold Palmer's bank account. It also made millionaires of Jack Nicklaus and Johnny Miller before they were 30.

Obviously, the PGA tour is the one to play.

If you can't play that one, worse things can happen than playing the "mini-tour," as offered by the NGA.

Ferguson will be one of the more than 500 golfers who next week head for Brownsville, Tex., in a bid to obtain that much-coveted PGA players' card.

The card itself doesn't offer any assurances or promises of sure-fire success. It only gives you a chance to TRY and qualify for a PGA tournament. Getting the card and then qualifying for a tournament are the two most difficult hurdles the young pros must face.

There is a certain degree of happiness among the great crowd heading for Brownsville. The happiest rumor of the week is that there may be 50 to 60 cards made available by the TPD. If that is so, one in 10 may make it.

The TPD hasn't handed out that many cards since it introduced the card-supplying "school." Generally, 20 to 30 golfers have qualified but there have been as few as 13 cards given out from one school.

The PGA has begun to sort out some of the hangers-on that have held cards — for no apparent good reason. In addition, the 1977 tour will start with fields of 156 instead of 144, so that opens the door for 12 more card-holders.

Without question, the PGA route is a difficult one.

The mini-tour is a blessing for those who don't make the big one, and for those trying.

Consider the financial benefit.

The NGA's November series in Arizona put up more than $300,000 as prize money in four tournaments, or a guaranteed pot of $75,000 for each. A total of 168 young players put up $2,500 each (or $390,000 in total) and were handed NGA membership cards.

The NGA, registered as a profit-making corporation, is the brainchild of Tim Bateman and Dan Powers, a pair of 28-year-old "desert kids" who played golf together at Arizona State.

Their first tournament, in 1973, was a success but "we lost our shirts last year." November, Bateman admits, was a good month and the NGA already has set up a January series in Arizona.

The NGA pays $7,000 to the winner, the runner-up gets $4,000 and the payoffs from there are graduated to return money to about half of the field. The young pros like the purse distribution.

"It's not easy for a player to make money in golf," said Bateman. "Ten per cent make it, 30 to 40 per cent break even, and the rest don't make it . . .

"With our payoffs, a far greater percentage of the young guys stand a good chance of breaking even."

Ferguson, for example, picked up about $5,300 in the four Arizona tournaments.

Bateman and Powers got their idea from the Space Coast tour in Florida. The Florida circuit isn't as big, nor is it related to the NGA tour.

"We've talked to the Florida people about getting together, but they're happy with what they have," said Bateman.

The NGA, he added, also has had talks with the PGA.

"We've been well received by (TPD commissioner Deane) Beman and the PGA. I think we'd be considered a success if the PGA took some of our top winners . . . say four or five . . and offered them playing cards

"But, at the moment, we don't know if that's the way we want to go."

Bateman feels the NGA's great benefit to the young player is a psychological one, and "that's why this kind of tour is good for the game."

With no cuts and no qualifying tournaments, Bateman feels "all our guys have a chance to wind up in the last group . . . looking at a first-place cheque. If he can win $7,000 without his hand shaking or his game falling apart, then he knows he can do it when he faces the situation on the PGA tour.

"Look what our tour has done for some of the guys on tour. Roger Maltbie played in three series and although he never won one of our tournaments, he was able to pick up $22,800 (second-place money) in the Pheonix Open last January.

"Howard Twitty picked up $22,800 in Tuscon and is an exempt PGA player now. George Burns and Fuzzy Zoeller are exempt, and, of course, you know what Jerry Pate did . . ."

If you don't know, Pate — a former NGA competitor — won the 1976 U.S. and Canadian Opens.

Ferguson, the would-be tourist from Victoria, is quick to recognize the psychological benefits of an NGA tour.

"The first thing I found out here," said Cec, "is that I can play with these guys."

"I learned a few things," he added, "So I'm looking at Brownsville with a far different attitude that I might have had a month ago."

With thanks, suggests Fergie, to the League of Promise.

Lure of Big City Helped the Yanks

NEW YORK (AP) — In the end, it was owner George Steinbrenner's salesmanship and the lure of playing in the media capital of the world that led Reggie Jackson to New York Yankees.

"The reason I'm a Yankee is that George Steinbrenner outhustled everybody else," said Jackson, who accepted a reported $3-million, five-year deal Monday to join the American League champions.

It was a sign of Steinbrenner's charm that Jackson settled for less money from the Yankees than he could have had elsewhere.

"Four clubs offered more money than the Yankees," said Gary Walker, Jackson's agent.

The Jackson agreement came 10 days after the Yankees paid a reported $2 million for a six-year contract with another free agent, pitcher Don Gullett, formerly of the World Series champion Cincinnati Reds.

That $5-million investment rivaled the amount spent by California Angels as top dollar in the free agent sweepstakes. But the Angels came away with three players for their money— outfielders Joe Rudi and Don Baylor and infielder Bobby Grich.

"Other clubs offered more money," said Jackson. "But I think certain things are a lot more meaningful than money."

One of those things was Steinbrenner, who apparently caught Jackson's fancy with his personal, man-to-man approach to bargaining.

"Money's not going to get you everywhere you want to go," said Jackson. "Everybody thinks athletes are going for the big money. I wanted to take less to prove a point."

There were other factors, of course. The Yankees are defending American League champions, a proven winning team with the Most Valuable Player, Thurman Munson, heading a solid line-up.

They would seem to have a good chance to be back near the top next season and Jackson enjoys the spotlight that follows a winning team.

He could not have had that with the two other main contenders for his services, Montreal Expos and San Diego Padres.

Jackson spent last season with Baltimore after being traded to the Orioles by Oakland A's following nine stormy seasons with Charles O. Finley as his boss.

Despite a deteriorating relationship with Finley, Jackson was a leader on an A's team that won three consecutive World Series championships.

Gulls, Red Wings Collect Victories

Juan de Fuca King John Gulls moved up to within two points of second-place Esquimalt Legion by tripping the Legion 7-4 in a South Vancouver Island Junior "B" Hockey League game Monday at Juan de Fuca Arena.

In another game, Victoria Ray's Red Wings crushed Kerry Park Islanders of Mill Bay 9-1 at Memorial Arena.

Gulls scored four unanswered goals in the third period to record the victory. Ron Schmidt scored the tying goal early in the final frame and then fired into an empty net with 19 seconds remaining.

Steve Saunders, Don Hansen, Dan Walushka, Kevin Kellington and Brad Girling added single tallies to the Gull total.

Kevin Kennedy, Steve Buckley, Kevin Park and Gerry Lindal scored for Esquimalt.

Wayne Proceviat scored three goals and assisted on three others to pace the Victoria attack. Two tallies each were chalked up by Mike Wolski and Steve Drummond and singles came from Bruce Collins and Don Turcotte.

Bob Turner scored for Kerry Park.

Brandon Sniper Stretches Lead

CALGARY (CP) — Centre Bill Derlago of the Brandon Wheat Kings increased his lead in the Western Canada Hockey League's individual scoring race to a comfortable 16 points last week.

Derlago has scored 37 points in his last 15 games and now has 35 goals and 29 assists for 64 points.

Rocky Saganiuk of the Lethbridge Broncos has scored at least one point in his last 16 games to move into a second-place tie in the scoring race with Gregg Anderson of the Victoria Cougars, Ryan Walter of the Kamloops Chiefs and Dan Bonar of Brandon. All four players have 48 points.

Another Brandon player leads the goaltending race. League statistics shows Glen Hanlon has played more minutes, recorded more shutouts and allowed less goals-per-game than any other goaltender in the league.

In 1,587 minutes, Hanlon has built a 2.79 goals-against average, which is more than half a goal bebter than the 3.37 goals-against average of second-place Blaine Peterson of the New Westminster Bruins. Hanlon also has four shutouts.

James Bay Rally Scuttles Oak Bay

James Bay Athletic Association charged from behind just before the break and went on to defeat Oak Bay 87-72 in Victoria Senior "B" Men's Basketball League play Monday night at Victoria High School.

In other games, Victoria Athletics strolled to a 95-73 victory over Stevens Interiors.

James Bay, which came up with 13 straight unanswered points to erase a 42-32 deficit and take a 45-42 lead into the second half, broke a tie for second place with Oak Bay.

Ian Scott sparked the James Bay offence with 22 points while John Campbell added 16. John Lauvaas set the pace for Oak Bay with 20 points.

Jim MacKay dunked 25 points to lead Athletics, who hold down first place with a four-point bulge over James Bay. Jim Cunningham was the top marksman for Stevens with 23 points.

It Was a Great Trip

MONTREAL (CP) — If Boston Bruins and New York Islanders entertained any ideas of gaining in the overall National Hockey League standings while the front-running Montreal Canadiens were on the road last week, they failed in their objective.

While the Canadiens completed a perfect three-game road trip, Boston lost one of three games while the Islanders lost two of four, including a 5-1 decision to the Canadiens.

Canadiens continued their awesome scoring attack, getting 17 goals in three games for a total of 134 in 26 games. That's an average of 5.15 goals per game and, projected during the remainder of the season, works out to a total of 412 points which would eclipse the record of 399 scored by Boston in 1970-71.

The Canadiens have scored three or more goals in 23 of their 26 games. They have had one 11-goal game, one 10, two each of nine, eight, seven and six goals, three of five goals and five each of four and three goals.

It was not surprising to see two Montreal players in a heated race for the NHL scoring lead. Right winger Guy Lafleur, last season's scoring winner, scored four goals and three assists last week to bring his total to 21 goals and 23 assists for the year.

Lafleur's 44 points was two better than linemate Steve Shutt, who led the league with 26 goals and also had 16 assists.

Marcel Dionne of Los Angeles Kings is third with 13 goals and 23 assists for 36 points while Montreal defenceman Larry Robinson led the league with 27 assists to go along with seven goals and fourth place in the scoring race.

Slumping Barons Due for Changes

RICHFIELD, Ohio (AP) — General manager Bill McCreary of Cleveland Barons says he won't "operate out of a panic situation," but indicated Monday some roster changes could be in the offing for his slumping team.

In their last 16 starts, the Barons are 3-9-4. They have lost four in a row and have dropped into the National Hockey League Adams Division basement with 18 points, six behind Toronto Maple Leafs.

Much of the blame is tied to the club's scoring drought which has seen the Barons net just 18 goals in their last 10 games.

"I intend to call some teams Tuesday (today)," McCreary said, adding he is unhappy with the play of four men he believed would be team leaders— Rick Hampton, Al MacAdam, Wayne Merrick and Dennis Maruk.

After scoring seven goals and assisting on seven others in his first seven games, Maruk has tailed off considerably, picking up only four goals and four assists in his last 16 games.

Sandy Nears 3,000 Mark

TORONTO (CP) — Sandy Hawley, the leading rider in North America this year, is 11 victories from becoming the youngest jockey to win 3000 races in his career.

The 27-year-old jockey, in his ninth full season, won four races Monday at Greenwood to bring his season total to 387 and his career total to 2989.

Willie Shoemaker was 28 when he won his 3,000th race in his 10th riding year.

Surgery for Csonka

PLEASANTVILLE, N.Y. (UPI) — Fullback Larry Csonka, a million dollar off-season acquisition by the New York Giants, will undergo knee surgery today to repair ligament damage.

Csonka was injured Sunday in a victory over the Seattle Seahawks and the operation at New York Hospital for special surgery will be the first ever on the six-foot-three, 235-pound fullback's knees.

Guard Tom Mullen, who also suffered a knee injury Sunday, underwent surgery on Monday.

Csonka, who helped the Miami Dolphins to consecutive Super Bowl titles in 1973 and 1974, played out his option and signed with the World Football League Memphis Southmen. He joined the Giants after the WFL folded last season.

Agent for Players Denies Big Losses

HERMAN

"Can't you sit still for five minutes? What d'yer want the camera for?"

TORONTO (CP) — The Globe and Mail says four more National Hockey League players contend that Richard Sorkin Ltd. owes them substantial amounts of money.

In a copyright story, the newspaper says the players have all retained lawyers in the hope of recovering claims ranging from $25,000 to $135,000.

Last week, in another copyright story, the newspaper said three NHL players claimed they were owed money by Sorkin, a New York player agent. Bob Hess of St. Louis Blues claimed he was owed in excess of $50,000, Lanny McDonald of Toronto Maple Leafs claimed he was owed $40,000 and Gord Laxton of Pittsburgh Penguins claimed $30,000.

The Globe and Mail says Ron Greschner, Dwight Bialowas, Barry Smith and Gary Inness also say Sorkin is withholding portions of their income.

Lou Powell, lawyer for Greschner, a defenceman with New York Rangers, will neither confirm nor deny that his new client is owed $135,000, but Greschner has confided to teammates that such is the case, the newspaper says.

It also quotes Bialowas, a defenceman for Minnesota North Stars, as saying he believes he is owed about $50,000, but "wasn't sure."

Smith, who signed as Boston Bruins' second-round amateur draft pick in 1975 and now is playing for their minor-league affiliate in Rochester, N.Y., is quoted by the newspaper as saying he is owed "about $50,000" and has New York lawyer Arthur Kaminsky looking into it.

Inness, a goaltender with Philadelphia Flyers, has also retained Kaminsky in hope of gaining access to "more than $25,000," The Globe and Mail adds.

"There's no question or doubt in my mind that the money is safe," the newspaper quotes Sorkin as saying.

Sorkin's comments followed a meeting Monday between his lawyer, Jerry Kremer of Mineola, N.Y., and lawyers representing Sorkin's former clients, the newspaper says.

Sorkin — in meetings with Frank Torpey, the NHL's director of security — has said the money is tied up in investments that cannot be disposed of, the newspaper adds.

A contract signed between a player and Richard Sorkin Ltd., gives Sorkin only the right to furnish advice on investments, The Globe and Mail says. Most of the players entered into the agreement on the understanding they were entrusting their salaries to the agent, who would pay all services, pay them an allowance and prepare their taxes.

Tracy and Dale Ranked Near Top

OTTAWA (CP) — Betty Cole of the Highlands Golf Club in Edmonton has been ranked No. 1 amateur in the country by the Canadian Ladies' Golf Association.

The lists were announced Monday following a weekend meeting of the CLGA in Montreal.

Other players' rankings:

2. Cathy Sherk, Lookout Point GC, Fonthill, Ont.

3. Susan Wickware, Ladies Golf Club, Toronto.

4. Dale Shaw, Glen Meadows GC, Sidney.

5. Marilyn Palmer, Marine Drive GC, Vancouver.

6. Lynn Cooke, Vancouver Golf and Country Club.

7. Barbara Turnbull, Riverside Country Club, Saskatoon.

8. Liz Hoffman, Ladies GC.

9. Pamela Johns, Weston Golf and Country Club, Toronto.

10. Cathy McMillan, Ponoka Community Golf Club, Ponoka, Alta.

Wickware and Sherk have been selected to represent Canada at the International Championships set for March in Cali, Colombia. Cooke and Hoffman were named as alternates with Mrs. D. H. Pitts of Winnipeg the non-playing captain and Mrs. H. E. Dickenson of Edmundston, N.B., the alternate non-playing captain.

Stacey West of the Toronto Ladies GC topped the first ever ranking of junior women players in Canada.

Other top-rated juniors in the country, in order of ranking, were:

Jackie Davis, Glendale Golf and Country Club, Edmonton; Judy Ellis, Westmont Golf and Country Club, Waterloo, Ont.; Patti Murray, Vernon Golf and Country Club; Tracy Pierpoint, Uplands GC, Victoria; Rebecca Stark of Ashburn GC, Halifax, and Louis Tremblay, Le Portage GC, l'Assomption, Que., tied; Jill Badger, Seymour GC, Vancouver; Laura Iwasaki, Kamloops Golf and Country Club, and Karin Mundinger, Ladies GC.

Mrs. J. W. Gordon of Vancouver was re-elected president of the association.

Two-Year Project

SEATTLE (AP) — The Seattle Mariners announced Monday a two-year player development program with Bellingham in the Northwest League.

Lou Gorman, director of baseball operations for the American League expansion team, said Bellingham would be the Mariners' only full minor league affiliation next season.

Gorman said the team will be called the Bellingham Mariners and will play at 2,700-seat civic field. Players for the class A club will be rookies the parent team will acquire in free agent drafts in January and June.

Bellingham has been affiliated with the Los Angeles Dodgers the last four seasons.

Pitchers Share Rookie Award

NEW YORK (AP) — Two young right-handed pitchers, Pat Zachry of Cincinnati Reds and Butch Metzger of San Diego Padres, shared the National League rookie of the year award announced Monday by the Baseball Writers Association of America.

It marked the first time in the 25-year history of the award that it went to more than one player.

Both Zachry and Metzger received 11 votes from the BBWAA panel of two writers in each of the 12 NL cities. The remaining two ballots went to third baseman Hector Cruz of St. Louis Cardinals.

The rookie voting names a single player on each ballot with no point system involved.

The closest previous rookie vote came in 1968 when Johnny Bench of the Reds edged pitcher Jerry Koosman of New York Mets, 10½-9½.

Zachry began the season in the bullpen for the Reds before being moved into the starting rotation by manager Sparky Anderson in May.

He finished the season with a 14-7 record and 2.74 earned-run average, which was fifth best in the league.

He made 28 starts for the Reds, completed six and struck out 143 in 204 innings.

Metzger came to the majors last season and became the bullpen stopper for the Padres, setting a rookie record with 77 appearances. He had an 11-4 record and 16 saves to go with a 2.93 ERA.

Preston Advances

LIVERPOOL, England (Reuter) — David Sadler, former Manchester United star, led Third Division Preston to a 3-0 win over Crewe in the second replay of their English FA Cup first round soccer match Monday.

Sadler, four times capped by England, scored the first goal his first of the season.

In another first round second replay, played on Manchester City's ground, the Cheshire League club, Northwich Victoria, beat Fourth Division Rochdale, 2-1, before 4,909 fans. Northwich, with a population of 20,827, advanced to the second round for the first time in its 103-year history.

CLARK DAVIS NAMED TO CANADIAN SQUAD

Clark Davis of Victoria, a second-year physical education major at the University of British Columbia, has been named to the Canadian team competing in the inaugural Pan-American junior wrestling championships Dec. 8-11 in El Salvador.

Davis, 19, will compete in both the freestyle and Greco-Roman divisions.

The former S. J. Willis and Spectrum student, has compiled a 7-0 record so far this season while competing in dual meets for UBC. He is the reigning Canadian junior champion in both freestyle and Greco-Roman.

Racquet Club Juniors Capture Two Crowns

VANCOUVER — Two of the three Racquet Club of Victoria players to reach the finals of the Western Canadian junior squash championships here Sunday earned crowns.

David Proctor captured the under-13 title and a little revenge by beating Dave Carter of Seattle, 3-0. Carter had reached the final by tripping David's brother, Tim, 3-0 in the semi-finals.

Andrie Levey nudged Cathy Rose of Seattle 3-2 to win the under-19 girls' title.

Blair Kruger wasn't as fortunate. He lost 3-1 to Andy MacDonald of Vancouver in the under-17 boys' final.

Two other Victoria players collected flight victories.

Mark Kuhn won the under-15 boys' final and Charles Proctor defeated his brother, James, 3-1 in the under-19 final.

ESQUIMALT SKATERS COLLECT 10 MEDALS

LOS ANGELES, Calif. — Five members of the Esquimalt Speed Skating Club collected 10 medals in two events held here at the weekend.

Larry Loule won the juvenile boys' crown during the two-day California sprint championships, which ended Sunday, after capturing a silver medal for finishing second Friday in the same class during the Pacific Coast international championships.

Shawn Hobday won silver medals in the midget boys' bracket of both meets while clubmate Rick Krupa earned both bronzes in the same class.

Home-Loving Blazers Dreaming of Playoffs

By The Associated Press

Portland may be thinking about offering other teams in the National Basketball Association some special incentive to switch the Trail Blazers' road games to their home court.

The Trail Blazers have played 12 home games this season and won them all. And they have played five games away from home, losing them all. The Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde record of 12-5 has the Blazers in first place in the Pacific Division, and thinking about making the playoffs for the first time in their seven-year history. But Portland plays its next three games away from home.

On Sunday, Portland extended its two-season winning streak at home to 18 games, routing Indiana Pacers 145-115.

In other NBA action, Golden State Warriors bombed Atlanta Hawks 132-98, Kansas City Kings defeated Philadelphia 76ers 101-89, New Orleans Jazz topped Buffalo Braves 127-118, Los Angeles Lakers downed Chicago Bulls 103-84 and Seattle SuperSonics extended their unbeaten home streak to 28, edging Washington Bullets 117-116.

Los Angeles' Kareem Abdul Jabbar passed the 17,000-point mark in career points while scoring 21, as Chicago set a club record with its 11th consecutive loss. Rookie forward Scott May had his most productive game as a pro, leading Chicago's scoring with 19 points. Artis Gilmore had 16 for the Bulls, now 2-12.

Slick Watts poured in a career-high 37 points and added 13 assists for Seattle, which needs just eight more victories to tie the NBA mark for consecutive home court triumphs. The streak nearly ended as Mitch Kupchak of Washington missed a shot with 13 seconds to play and Wes Unseld's tip rolled off the hoop.

Iraq Pulls Out

NICOSIA, Cyprus (AP) — Iraq has withdrawn from the 1978 World Cup soccer competition in a dispute over Israeli membership in the Asian Football Union, the Iraqi news agency reported Monday.

KILMER COMPLAINS

WASHINGTON (AP) — Washington Redskins quarterback Billy Kilmer is fed up with his coach, the Washington fans and the news media and does not intend to play for the National Football League team next season, it was reported Monday.

"Today's game may be the last I'll ever play at RFK Stadium as a Redskin," Kilmer said following Sunday's 24-0 victory over Philadelphia Eagles.

Kilmer threw three touchdown passes during the game.

"It's not the team. I am just fed up with the whole situation here," Kilmer said. "I am tired of being the whipping boy."

Mike Menchel, a team spokesman, said Monday the story came as a surprise to him. He said he was not aware that Kilmer wanted to leave the team. Kilmer could not be reached for comment.

The 37-year-old quarterback, now in his sixth season with the Redskins, would not specify his areas of discontent in an interview. But he indicated his gripes were threefold — the fans, the media and Washington coach George Allen.

Fans have sometimes booed Kilmer, who replaced the popular Sonny Jurgensen as starting quarterback several years ago. Jurgensen is now a local television sportscaster.

Allen's penchant for not publicly picking between Kilmer and Joe Theismann, the former Notre Dame and Toronto Argonaut star, for starting quarterback also apparently annoys Kilmer.

Kilmer this season has also indicated irritation with some reporters who cover the team on a regular basis.

A fiery team leader, he lost his starting job to Theismann when he sustained an arm injury in mid-season but was reinstated by Allen two games ago when the Redskins faced a "must win" situation to overhaul the Cardinals for at least a wild card playoff spot.

He was heavily booed in Washington's loss to the Dallas Cowboys on Oct. 31 and a banner at Sunday's game read "Forgive them, Billy, they know not what they boo."

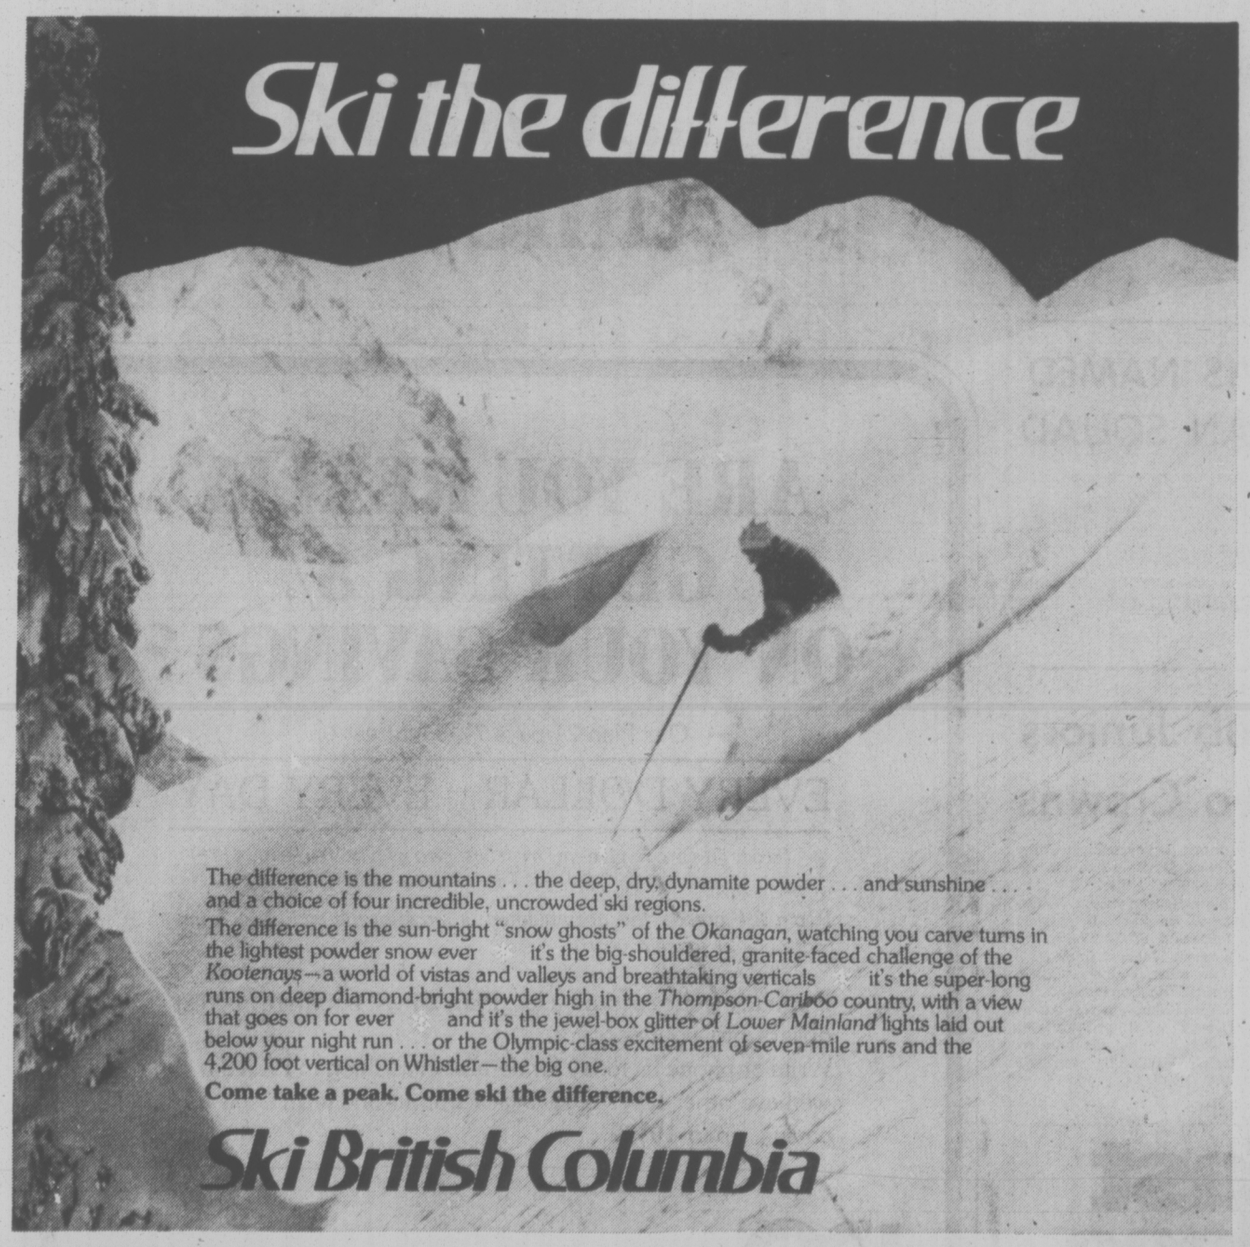
Ski the difference



The difference is the mountains . . . the deep, dry, dynamite powder . . . and sunshine . . . and a choice of four incredible, uncrowded ski regions.
The difference is the sun-bright "snow ghosts" of the Okanagan, watching you carve turns in the lightest powder snow ever . . . it's the big-shouldered, granite-faced challenge of the Kootenays—a world of vistas and valleys and breathtaking verticals . . . it's the super-long runs on deep diamond-bright powder high in the Thompson-Cariboo country, with a view that goes on for ever . . . and it's the jewel-box glitter of Lower Mainland lights laid out below your night run . . . or the Olympic-class excitement of seven-mile runs and the 4,200 foot vertical on Whistler—the big one.
Come take a peak. Come ski the difference.

Comedian Cambridge Dies

BURBANK, Calif. — Godfrey Cambridge, the black comic-actor who wanted his movie roles to transcend color lines, died Monday night of a heart attack after collapsing on a movie set. He was 43.

Cambridge collapsed while playing the role of Idi Amin on the set of the ABC television film Victory at Entebbe. The movie portrays the daring Israeli commando rescue of hostages at the Entebbe, Uganda, airport last summer.

"Godfrey did two small scenes earlier today and was doing a simple walk-on scene, speaking to the hostages," said producer Bob Gunnette. "The scene was not even begun, Godfrey was waiting for a cue and he collapsed."

The actor was dead on arrival at nearby St. Joseph's Hospital.

Cambridge, round during much of his career, was a constant dieter who shed 170 pounds after ballooning to nearly 300 pounds.

He got his first role in 1956 as a bartender in an off-Broadway revival for which he earned $15 a week. He won critical acclaim — and an Obie Award for Best Performer of 1961 — for his role in Jean Genet's savage drama about racial hatred, The Blacks.

Once he had become established in movies by playing black roles, Cambridge insisted on acting parts that depicted him "as a man, rather than as a Negro." He played an Irishman in The Troublemaker, a CIA agent in The President's Analyst, a gangster in The Busy Body, a Jewish cab driver in Bye, Bye Braverman, and a white bigot who gets turned into a black man in Watermelon Man.

Essay Sentence Works for Boys

BRAMPTON, Ont.—Five youths, charged with mischief after they painted racist slogans on the home of a Pakistani family, were given absolute discharges Monday after submitting essays on Pakistan to a provincial court judge who had ordered them to write the papers.

They were charged after a Pakistani family found its house, tool shed and fence painted with slogans.

Judge Donald August ordered the youths to clean up the slogans, apologize to the family and be dinner guests at the home of Mahmood Khan, president of the local Canada-Pakistan association.

The judge said he was happy with the essays, adding that they were well researched. Essay topics included government, agriculture, economics, industry, language and religion of Pakistan.

"Understanding people who are different and particularly why they are different leads to respect and acceptance," Judge August told the court.

He told the youths that "in my opinion the racism which has emerged from your conduct is part of a boyish prank and was due to youthful misunderstanding rather than wilfull racial cynicism.

Self-Serve Love Affair

MOUNTLAKE TERRACE, wash. — Had Jeanie Meza, 27, not been a do-it-your-selfer she might not be a bride today.

As she tells it, last January she paid in advance for gasoline at a convenience store's self-service pumps but when she went to get it Tom Carson, 32, was helping himself to her fuel.

She complained. He responded, "I love you."

They were married at the place they found each other—right under the sign that says "Premium 59.9."

Gold Bars Seized

KARACHI (AP) — Pakistani customs officers have seized smuggled gold bars worth $1.27 million, officials said Monday. Officials said the gold was being loaded into a truck on the coast Sunday after being brought from Dubai in a launch.

'Do It, You Cowards'

SALT LAKE CITY — Gary Gilmore had a terse message for the Utah Board of Pardons, which will decide whether the condemned murderers will be executed by a firing squad: "Let's do it, you cowards."

Gilmore made his wishes clear in a scrawled note sent to the three-member board prior to its special meeting today to decide whether to allow the first execution in the United States since 1967.

He has pledged to appear before the board personally and present "good reason to kill me."

"I do not seek or desire your clemency," Gilmore wrote, underscoring "not" three times. "The sentence, was set. I accept it. The Utah State Supreme Court approved it. Let's do it, you cowards."

State officials predict the execution by firing squad could be held by next Monday if the board allowed the death sentence to stand and if federal courts did not intervene.

Floods Kill 12

BANGKOK (Reuter)— At least 12 persons, mostly children, have been killed and 16,000 families affected by widespread monsoon floods in southern Thailand, the government reported Monday.

FAIRY TALE BOOK TRAVELLED WIDELY

KENNEWICK, Wash. — Thirty years after he donated a book of fairy tales to an overseas book drive, Claude O'Brien has received a thank-you note from a Russian engineer who's using it to learn English.

"The sentiments of friendship and brotherhood will be always, not withstanding of a policy of the governments," wrote Oleg Korol, who lives in the Ukrainian village of Wolytsia.

In the letter, which begins, "Dear unknown American friend," Korol, 24, explained that while looking for books at the library to improve his English, he found "a thick, green book" of Grimm's Fairy Tales that contained O'Brien's address on the flyleaf.

The letter, written Nov. 2, arrived at O'Brien's childhood address in Spokane, Wash., on Nov. 16 and was forwarded to him by relatives a few days later.

ROLLING STONE

By CHARLES YOUNG

BRUCE SPRINGSTEEN'S six-night stand at the Palladium in New Yrk spanned Hallowe'en and Election Day. If there was cosmic significance in that fact, Springsteen didn't find it.

"Is anybody running?" asked Springsteen backstage. "I think the people should vote for Clarence Clemons." Clemons plays saxophone in the E Street Band.

Heavy celebrities in attendance and what they did: Gary U. S. Bones sang a medley of Quarter to Three and Twistin' the Night Away during the encore.

Patti Smith escaped a guard to climb on stage from the audience, shouted "I'm a slave!" several times.

NEW BABIES: Jesse James Wood born to Ronnie and Chrissie Wood on Oct. 30; Theodore Tobias Nugent born to Ted and Sandy Nugent on Nov. 7 (a full moon, the proud father points out); and Pat McGlynn, 18, to the Bay City Rollers.

McGlynn replaces Ian Mitchell, also 18, who quit because he couldn't take the pressure of touring. Asked about a recent incident where a girl was run over by the Roller limousine, McGlynn advised his new fans to take it easy.

A SMALL LABEL called Stone Records in Baton Rouge, La., released the last-known Otis Redding single, You Left the Water Running, a couple of months ago. Distributed only in the Deep South so far, the record reached as high as 14 on the local charts in New Orleans.

"The FM and black stations jumped on the song immediately," said Stone president John Fred (formerly of John Fred and his Playboy Band who did Judy in Disguise). "The AM Stations have been tougher to break. One DJ told me, 'I've got live white people I can't get on the air. How do you expect me to play a dead black man?' "

Written in 1965 the song was recorded when Otis joined a session while he was producing Arthur Conley in Alabama.

"Otis was just beating on this guitar. He could make music on anything," recalled Dan Penn who sang harmony. "I never thought to put it out until John Fred suggested it. He checked with Mrs. Redding and she said OK."

PETER FRAMPTON is playing the starring role of Billy Shears in the movie version of Sergeant Pepper's Lonely Hearts Club Band, a $6 million production that looks to surpass Tommy for eclecticism in its stars. The Bee Gees are signed to play Frampton's band. George Martin, producer of the original Beatles album, will be music director. With his credits ranging from The Gong Show to Sonny and Cher, Chris Beard will direct.

Olivia Newton-John, Elton John, Donna Summer, Rock Hudson, Doris Day, Bob Hope and Barry Manilow are reportedly in negotiations.

Henry Edwards, writer of the screenplay, says the plot concerns the mythical town of Heartland in Peanut Country. A great crisis descends on Heartland and only Billy Shears can save it by playing the original instruments of Sergeant Pepper's Lonely Hearts Club Band. He says it is a fable about the redeeming power of music. Asked if this plot didn't sound like Yellow Submarine, in which a great crisis descended on Pepperland and the Beatles redeemed it with their music, Edwards said, "Yellow Submarine is a cartoon abstraction. We're building a real mythical town."

THE NIGHT THAT AMY CRIED

PLAINS, Ga (UPI) — Amy Carter, hoping to remain in Plains, cried when she learned her father had been elected president.

"The night that Jimmy was elected she had gone to bed about 11 and we woke her up about 3:30 or 4 to tell her that Jimmy had won and he was going to be president, and she cried," her mother, Rosalynn Carter, said.

HOW TO SPEND FUND?

A fund launched nine years ago to send the Ruper Island boys' band to Expo is being wound up, and the trustees have invited suggestions for spending the $3,500 still in the kitty.

Interest from the fund has been used to award prizes to outstanding Grade 7 Indian students from Qualicum to Greater Victoria.

One of the trustees, H. R. Dawson, principal of S. J Willis junior secondary school, says any ideas for disbursement on a "high appropriate" project will be welcome

Suggestions in writing from individuals or groups should be submitted by March 31, 1977, to Dawson at S. J. Willis, 923 Topaz Avenue, or to one of the following trustees:

Earl Lee, head of counselling services, Nanaimo District, 203 Federal Building, Nanaimo.

R. Wolleswinkel, care of Bank of Nova Scotia, 702 Yates, Victoria.

George Oake, editor, Victoria Times, 2621 Douglas.

Four Plead Guilty to Drugs

Four Victoria area men pleaded guilty to lesser drug offences in county court Monday, changing earlier not guilty pleas on conspiracy to traffic in a narcotic.

David Michael Henderson, 22, pleaded guilty to two counts of possession of pethidine (Demerol). David Yosha Robertson, 38, pleaded guilty to possession of Demerol. They will be sentenced Dec. 20.

William Paul Murray, 27, and Donald William Thomson, 42, each pleaded guilty to two counts of possession of Demeol for the purpose of trafficking. They will be sentenced Jan. 6.

Murray and Thomson had been charged with 30 counts of conspiracy to traffic in 10 drugs.

After lengthy preliminary hearings, the four were ordered to stand trial. Four weeks had been set aside for the trial, but the new charges and guilty pleas were entered Monday, the first day.

Ferry Funds For Nanaimo Delayed

NANAIMO — An early decision is not likely on a subsidy from the provincial government for the Protection Island ferry here, Nanaimo Mayor Frank Ney said Monday.

Regular ferry service to the island, three-quarters of a mile off the Nanaimo waterfront, was cancelled in October when insurance coverage ran out on boats used by the operators, Leeshore Resorts Ltd.

School children on the island were stranded from classes in Nanaimo until last week when two special sailings a day were started to accommodate them.

The city was promised an answer within 10 days when it applied for a subsidy last month.

PLO Quietly Accepts Israel

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Palestine Liberation Organization is willing to accept the existence of a Jewish state in Palestine but won't say so publicly, an official of a Jewish organization says.

Herman Edelsberg said Monday that two PLO officials told him and other representatives of U.S. Jewish groups at a private meeting here two weeks ago that the PLO would "accept in principle a Jewish state in Palestine alongside an Arab state."

But Edelsberg, director of the B'nai B'rith International Council, said he and other Americans at the meeting were skeptical because the PLO officials made it clear they were not willing to make the statement in public.

The PLO is on record as refusing to recognize Israel's right to exist, saying it should be replaced instead with a multi-racial state of Arabs and Jews.

The PLO officials were identified as Dr. Isam Sartawi and Sabri Elias Jiryis. Sartawi has left the United States and Jiryis must leave by today, when his current visa expires.

The state department ruled that Jiryis, a writer and lawyer born in Palestine, must leave because his visa application failed to specify his actual purpose in the country—to attempt to open a PLO information office in Washington. His efforts to gain permission for the office were rebuffed.

TOWN TALK

Thumbing through B.C. Tel's new phone books seems to be quite a popular exercise for Town Talk readers.

One points out that the company has apparently changed its former policy of denying MLAs the right to put those three little letters after their name, for ease of identification.

Turn to the Bs and you see there the name Charles Barber MLA.

It's a welcome change from the frustrations of those days when David Anderson was an MLA. There are 11 Andersons with a D in their initials, and most if not all of them must have been phoned at all hours of the day and night by Victorians wanting a chat with their MLA.

By the way, don't bother looking in the book for the number of Victoria's other MLA, Sam Bawlf. He used to be listed when he was a city alderman, but he's not now.

You can leave your car longer on the B.C. Ferries Swartz Bay parking lot but it's going to cost you more.

This month a new system went into effect, allowing motorists to leave cars longer than the 48-hours allowed earlier for $1.

Now, the fee is 50 cents per day for any number of days. But a word of warning: tickets for the full amount must be prepurchased otherwise motorists run the risk of having their cars towed away.

A trickle of smoke continues to rise each day from the spot where some debris brush was burned in Beaver Lake Park. What's so unsusual about that? The brush was burned more than a month ago, that's what, proof positive it's been an unusually dry fall.

Here's one more thing you might want to add to your agenda for Christmas Day—a contribution and maybe a visit to the Elks Hall where the Minus One Club will hold open house for the lonely.

Cookies, cake, the leg of a turkey, anything and everything is welcome, says Nicholas Jossul, spokesman for the club for widowed, divorced, separated or just plain lonely people.

This year the club is expecting more than 1,000 people will drop by the hall on Cormorant between 2 p.m. and 10 p.m. Christmas Day—because they have no one else to visit, no place else to go.

Refreshments and entertainment will be free. All contributions will be added to the table. Jossul can be reached at 383-8385.

LUM
. . . second thoughts?

Mayor Ed Lum of Saanich may be having second thoughts about downing a drink of Swan Lake water to prove it's pollution-free.

On Nov. 19 the mayor, replying to aldermanic candidate Jack Fry's claim the lake is polluted, said he would willingly quaff a drink from the lake to prove his point.

Reminded of his promise today, Lum said he didn't want to do any repeat performances so if the media would organize a single date he'd do his stuff.

Couldn't the mayor simply announce a time? Everybody would come.

The last of the candy's long gone and the costumes and scary masks have gone back into the closet until next Hallowe-en.

But there's still some news — albeit belated — from the trick 'n treat front. Seems the kids who roamed the Greater Victoria area carrying those orange UNICEF cans collected $4,144.48 to help less fortunate youngsters around the world.

Betty Mather, UNICEF's B.C. chairman, says "thanks a lot" to all the Victoria tots.

We can give you the numbers of eight tickets in the next Provincial lottery which are sure losers. If you have one of them, chances are you bought it from a thief.

Someone stole the tickets from a counter last week at Bayley's Garden Centre at the Colwood Farmers Market. Bill Bayley says the lottery organizers have agreed to take the stolen tickets out of the running for any prize.

The losing numbers are: 4222743-4-5-6-7-9 as well as the same five first numbers ending in 51 and 52.

The theft was a double dirty deal. Money made from ticket sales goes to the Gorge Islanders soccer team, a collection of 14 and 15-year-olds who are saving for a tour in Hawaii in 1978.

Scrooge is really a computer at ICBC.

So says a Town Talk reader who phoned to complain about the Crown corporation's stingy attitude at this time of year. Although he paid his auto insurance premium of $227 nine months ago, ICBC has sent him a dunning letter demanding another $26.

The reason? His agent made a mistake in February, putting his vehicle down for class two when it was actually class three. The all-seeing ICBC computer caught the error and has presented him with a bill.

Our man (a B.C. civil servant who for that reason prefers to be anonymous) has two beefs. The mistake, surely, was his agent's. "It's not my fault — I signed a contract."

His second complaint is the timing. "Right before Christmas, surely? How many more of us are being attacked this way."

This Scrooge is a powerful one, too. If he doesn't pay the $26, ICBC says it will put the RCMP on his trail to take back his licence plates.

Bah humbug, ICBC!

We're all familiar with federal, provincial and even municipal politicians who return to car dealerships after they get out of politics.

But what about student politicians who haven't yet finished their schooling and don't have much work experience to fall back on?

Take Clayton Shold, last year's president of the University of Victoria Alma Mater Society. This year he is slinging beer in the cellar of the Student Union Building.

But all is not lost, Shold is taking extra courses this year to make up for his year as president where he was reduced to 6½ units. And student politics is still bandied about the SUB pub where he works 15 hours a week, so he manages to keep his finger in.

Gov't Myth On Welfare 'Demolished'

By DON VIPOND
Times Staff

A survey which shows people favor higher welfare payments demolishes the government myth that the public is demanding a hardline stand on such spending, a social workers' spokesman said today.

Marjorie Martin, president of the local branch of the B.C. Association of Social Workers, also said the provincial government has the facts to probably dispel another myth it is promoting — that there are numerous healthy young people who need to be pushed off the welfare rolls.

She was commenting on survey results published in the Times Monday which showed that on average, 600 people from across the province would give more to handicapped, families and pensioners on welfare than the government now pays.

Only in the case of young, healthy, unemployed people did those surveyed favor a reduction in welfare, from the current $160 a month to $150.

In general, those surveyed would give the handicapped $400 a month instead of the $265 they are getting and a three-member family $499 a month instead of the $320 to $370 they now get.

The figures come from questionnaires mailed this fall to a random sampling by Dan Koenig, sociologist at the University of Victoria.

It was the latest in a series of public opinion polls he has taken.

Martin said the results show people in B.C. do see a need for more money to those who qualify for welfare and are presumably ready to pay for it.

"I would like to see the government take this as a mandate," she said, to raise social assistance closer to basic living standards.

She said the results also show there is "a lingering myth" concerning the number of healthy young people drawing welfare. The government has an unpublished study on these people and should make public such details as to the number of them, who they are and what job opportunities are for them.

"It would help clear up the myth about young people on welfare."

She said the association suspects that if the facts were known, they would show that what young people are on social assistance are there because they don't have much choice.

Filming In City Cancelled

Pressure by British investors has forced Astro Bellevue Pathe to cancel plans to film David Copperfield in Victoria, the manager of the Greater Victoria Chamber of Commerce said today.

Brian Small said the $3.5 million project was scheduled to start here in the spring; with rehearsals and recording being done in the company's Toronto studio prior to that.

Small says president Harold Greenburg had to turn to Britisr investors to cover a shortfall in cash and they, in turn, insisted the filming be done in Britain. "It would have meant a lot of work for people in the theatre here," Small said today.

Posted Signs To Be Needed For Rezoning

By PAUL MOSS
Times Staff

Development proposals will come more clearly under the public eye in Victoria.

Under a new policy endorsed today by the city's land-use planning and zoning committee, developers will be required to post notices prominently on sites which are the subject of applications for rezoning or land use contracts.

The city will make the signs and have them available for developers.

The signs, about three feet square, will state in simple language — "colloquial terms," according to planning director Geoff Greenhalgh — exactly what change of land use is envisaged for the site.

One sign will be required for each road frontage of the site.

Developers will be responsible for maintaining the signs.

There was some argument in the committee about when the notices should be posted. Ald. Murray Glazier wanted the maximum possible notification by insisting that the signs be posted when development applications first go to the city's advisory planning commission.

But Mayor Mike Young pointed out that about 60 per cent of all applications to the APC are turned down, and Ald. Bob Wright agreed that premature posting might well cause "unnecessary distress in the neighborhood", when council itself had no intention of approving the application.

"It will get a lot of people up in arms," he said.

The committee accepted Wright's motion to require posting at the time the APC's recommendation has received preliminary endorsement from council.

City Hall Shuffle Coming?

Some administrative reorganization could take place at City Hall following the retirement today of city clerk Morran Waller, but Mayor Mike Young says it's a less than 50 per cent possibility.

The mayor was guarded and evasive when tackled by reporters on the subject this morning.

He did say, however, that city council is reviewing the situation in the light of applications received for Waller's replacement, and a decision could come late this week or early next week.

Asked if consolidation of the city clerk's office under another department or section was a possibility, Young replied: "Yes, and I think the sun is going to rise tomorrow too."

But in response to further questions he admitted that a merger with the city manager's office was more likely than one with the city solitor's.

He stressed that a lot depends on the particular qualifications, experience and ability of the successful candidate for the job.

"We can upgrade, downgrade, incorporate or do whatever we want," he added.

New Offer Given Saanich Firemen

Saanich today made a new offer to the municipality's firemen in an effort to restore full firefighting services and resolve contract differences.

The offer was made at meeting between the firemen, the municipality and the Greater Victoria Labor Relations Association, bargaining agency for Saanich.

Ken Ebbs-Canavan, spokesman for the 93 firemen, said the offer is to be outlined to the firefighters at 8 tonight.

Until the members have had a chance to discuss the proposal, it would not be made public, he said.

The firemen began Friday to pressure for settlement of their 1976 contract by refusing to provide such non-emergency services as school inspections and safety checks.

Ebbs-Canavan said the cutback in services will continue until the firemen reach a satisfactory agreement with the municipality.

Saanich has offered the men a seven-per-cent wage increase plus a one-per-cent increase in fringe benefits retroactive to Jan. 1.

The firemen, members of the International Association of Firefighters, Local 967, have rejected the offer because they say it would put them too far behind Vancouver.

The basic rate for a first-class fireman in Saanich is $1,290 a month.

Fire Marshal Orders Alkazar Demolition

Alkazar Mansion, the Spanish style apartment building on Fairfield, will be demolished on orders of the fire marshal.

Mayor Mike Young said today he received a "pretty convincing" letter from owners Reeson and Pinch Homes Ltd. and "there doesn't seem to be any alternative to demolition."

Fairfield Community Association resident Syd Langhelt, however, wants every possible avenue explored before demolition of the apartment, which he feels is a prominent landmark in the city.

The mansion was built in 1913 and modelled after the famous Alkazar in Toledo, Spain.

But Young feels its architectural value is minimal: "As far as the architectural aspect is concerned, it is one of the ugliest and most unsuitable buildings I have ever seen."

He confirmed the demolition permit application had been submitted as a matter of routine to the Heritage advisory committee, but said he is "99 per cent certain they won't ask for it to be designated (as a heritage structure)."

Young said he sees no alternative except to have it vacated and demolished.

"The building . . . is in pretty bad condition — both the roof and exterior. There are a number of problems with bringing it up to the requirements of the fire marshal."

"Frankly, at this juncture, I see no way out of the dilemma."

Langhelt said he had only seen one architect's report on the condition of the building that was included in the letter from Reeson and Pinch. He said he would like to see a "heritage-minded" architect look at the structure and make a report before the Fairfield association gives up on preserving it.

The Alkazar contains about 20 suites which are mostly occupied by elderly women. A 99-year-old woman has lived there most of her life.

Langhelt said his association is concerned with making sure tenants' rights are protected. He said he found the developers are doing everything possible to make the relocation easier, including paying moving expenses and offering the appliances from the old suites free if needed.

Don't Give Until It Hurts

A little bit of Scrooge at Christmas doesn't hurt, Consumer Services Minister Rafe Mair suggested today.

He urged shoppers to constrain themselves in the razzle-dazzle of pre-Christmas consumerism to avoid later debt problems.

"Individuals should not overextend themselves," Mair said, "That causes problems in January and February and our debtors' assistance branch gets it."

Amalgamation Savings Studied

Ald. Ron McKenzie and a group of local businessmen have begun a study, at their own expense, to assess the money that could be saved by amalagamating the four core municipalities.

McKenzie said today the names of the participants will be made public later this week or early next week.

He said he hopes the study would be finished by mid-1977. The group wil travel to Nanaimo, Vancouver, Winnipeg and possibly Toronto to study other amalgamated areas.

McKenzie said there is a tremendous amount of duplication in the present local government system and he is convinced amalgamation can bring substantial savings.

As an example, he says the Greater Victoria area with a population of about 200,000 has seven different levels of government.

McKenzie said the main opposition to amalgamation will likely come from local mayors and aldermen whose jobs would be on the line under the new system.

McKenzie envisages a ward system with representatives from each ward serving as members of the Capital Region District board, the overall governing body.

"If the provincial government and the people feel strongly enough about the matter and the money to be saved, they could bypass these minor politicians," he said.

McKenzie said he has had some feedback from his proposal and so far most of it from "fairly high up" in municipal circles has been positive.

However, some areas, like Oak Bay, remain opposed.

This might be a little shortsighted on the part of Oak Bay politicians because there may come a time when the people realize the municipality's tax base is not broad enough to pay for upgraded or increased services, he added.

For example, he said, Oak Bay is going to have to upgrade its sewer system soon and that could mean a cost of $700,000 to $800,000.

Faced with these expenses, the people would do well to examine amalgamation.

INFANT SAVED BY FIREMAN

A 14-month-old girl was rescued by a Saanich fireman Monday afternoon after fire broke out in upstairs bedroom of a two-storey house at 2344 Eldon Place.

A fire department spokesman said Lieut. Paul Smith, wearing an air mask, raced into the house, found Angie Skodstad in her crib and carried her to safety.

The fire was reported at 4:26 p.m. by a neighbor who saw smoke curling from under the eaves.

The child's mother, Janet Skodstad, had gone to a corner store with her three-year-old son. When firemen arrived, she was standing in front of her house crying hysterically that her daughter was trapped inside.

Fire officials said the baby was in a bedroom near the fire but because the door to her room had been closed, the smoke level had not reached the danger point.

"If the door had been left open it would have been a different story," assistant chief Robert Mortimer said.

The infant was taken to Victoria General Hospital but released after examination.

Firemen had little trouble extinguishing the blaze which gutted one room and broke through the roof.

Damage has been estimated at about $15,000.

Cause of the fires has not been determined but firemen suspect it was either careless smoking or children playing with matches.

One Wood-Burning Stove Heats This Whole House

When Stephen Nadzo and his wife settled in Franklin (southeastern), Maine, they were determined to do two things: build and live in a large, comfortable house and heat it with just a single wood-burning stove.

When his neighbors heard of this plan to build a 1,360-square-foot home that would be heated with just one wood-burning stove, they laughed; but he did it anyway and it worked. Here's how:

THE MOTHER EARTH NEWS

First, they attacked the problem of designing and building an energy-efficient (yet spacious) domicile from many different angles. Among the factors that they considered most carefully were: how to shelter their structure from the wind; what building materials to use; the number of windows the house should have; how to achieve adequate air circulation inside the dwelling and what kind of stove to buy and where to install it.

Because they'd been warned repeatedly about Maine's stiff winter gales, they wanted to build their home where it would have as much protection from the wind as possible, yet they didn't want to put the building near a windbreak that might block out either the view or the sun's warming rays.

Ultimately, they cleared a small site in the midst of an evergreen-and-hardwood forest and built their dwelling so that it would be surrounded on three sides — east, west, and north — by timber.

The Nadzo's home is a single-story structure that rests on a gravel base which extends to the depth of their region's frost line (three feet). They protect the dwelling's 16 inches of crawl space from winter winds by wrapping the entire base of the house with polyethylene plastic ssheeting and then packing snow against the plastic after the first good storm of the season.

Four- to six-inch-thick cedar logs — planed on one side and rough on the other — serve as the structure's primary building materials. These timbers not only provide a durable and attractive wall material, but (since cedar is a very porous wood) several inches of insluation too.

The hip roof — with four sloping sides that meet at a six-foot ridgepole — is insulated with three-inch styrofoam boards nailed to one-inch sheathing. This arrangement probably doesn't prevent heat loss as well as would a conventional roof with three to six inches of rolled fiberglass; but it allows the Nadzo's the aesthetic rewards of an open ceiling.

They decided to give the sun every possible opportunity to enter the house by installing as many windows (including three homemade skylights) as they could afford. This way, the home is warmed — in part — by passive solar heat during the day.

At night, they cover all windows — which, of course, are double-paned — with heavy, insulated curtains to keep the stored warmth from radiating back out into the cold darkness.

In order to allow air to circulate as freely as possible inside the house (and thereby avoid having the "cold corners" so common to homes in this part of th ecountry) they decided to limit the number of floor-to-ceiling walls in the dwelling and — where partitions seemed necessary for reasons of privacy — put up fence-like room dividers instead.

The heart of their air circulation system — and (they think) the single most important factor in the successful heating of the house — is the enclosed, insulated air space under the dwelling's floor through which they pass warm room air.

When they were constructing the house, they nailed (to the underside of the structure's main support beams) a false floor consisting of one-inch lumber and chicken wire covered with three inches of commercial fiberglass insulation. Atop the insulation, they placed a single layer of aluminum foil (shiny side up) . . . and over that, a layer of polyethelene sheeting. The wooden floor they walk on, then, is 13 inches above the polyethylene (allowing 8 inches for the joists and 8 inches for the beams, and subtracting 3 inches for the insulation).

Warm air is drawn under the home's main floor and through the 13-inch-deep insulated air space beneath by a pair of inexpensive, kitchen-type exhaust fans set into the floorboards between two joists and on either side of the house's centre-most support beam.

They built an eight-foot-tall plywood column over each fan. This makes it possible for the blowers to draw warm air down from the buildings open ceiling, through the columns, and under the floorboards . . . after which the air is vented back into the house via any of four 2"x6" openings set into the corners of the structure's main floor. In this fashion, a continuous flow of warmth is created from the highest (and warmest) parts of the house, down under the floor, and back up through the coolest parts (the corners) of the structure.

In addition to the two fans in the floor (which — except for a four-hour "rest period" each morning — run almost continuously throughout the winter), they placed a 14-inch exhaust fan above the divider that separates the bedroom from the utility room. This blower is tilted slightly towards the floor so that when it operates it pushes warm air down into the bedroom.

The hero of this story is their wood stove . . . which happens to be a Norwegian Jotul Combi-fire 4. (At $500-plus, the No. 4 Jotul wasn't the least expensive wood-burner they could have bought, but it was the one they found best suited to their purpose.)

They located the Jotul right in the centre of the house. It's next to a simple chimney built of 8-inch flue tiles surrounded by mortared C-shaped concrete chimney and only a few feet away from the pair of plywood columns that conceal their floor-mounted exhaust fans. Thus, the two fans are able to draw into the floor the warm air (warmest in the house) that collects directly over the stove.

They keep the wood-burner's fire going all the time during the winter, although on clear days the sun — shining as it does through a number of windows and skylights — provides their home with a great deal of warmth. (This allows them to let the fire burn down somewhat from time to time so they can clean out some of the ashes that have accumulated in the stove.)

Chief amont the points in favor of their heating system are simplicity, economy, and reliability . . . especially the latter. Once installed, no part of the setup can break down. Even if the fans should malfunction (or if — as is more likely — they should stop due to a power blackout), the stove will still put out enough therms to keep them reasonably warm.

Since they're not dependent on maintenance men or fuel oil deliveries, they needn't fear an interruption of service due to foul-ups in those departments. Nor do they worry about the ever-rising cost of labor and petroleum.

In short, their experience is proof that a relatively large and comfortable house can be simply and inexpensively heated (even in Maine!) with a single wood-burning stove.

Implanted Pumps Cut Clot Hazard

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn. — (AP) — Devices the size of hockey pucks have been implanted under the skin of five persons to forestall possibly fatal blood clots, researchers say.

Dr. Henry Buchwald, professor of surgery at the University of Minnesota, explained Friday how the "implantation infusion pump," weighing half a pound, works.

Once the pumps' use with the anticoagulant drug heparin is fully tested on humans, it may be adapted to provide other drugs, such as insulin for diabetics.

The pump is placed under the skin of the chest, below the collar bone. A tube is threaded into a vein, and, like a syringe, it delivers a continuous dose of a concentrated drug.

The patient's own system decides how fast he or she will assimilate the drug, but the supply lasts four to 20 weeks. A refill is administered with a hypodermic needle.

When the drug is injected through the skin, it fills one chamber of the pump, forcing stainless steel bellows against a second chamber filled with a chemical mixture that is the pump's source of power.

As the chemicals change from liquid to vapor, they exert a constant pressure which forces the bellows back against the drug-filled chamber. The drug flows through narrow tubing into the blood stream.

Minis on the March Again

. . . little bare skin

By BERNADINE MORRIS
New York Times

PARIS — The minis are on the march here.

Not only on the runways, where they constitute up to 90 per cent of the spring and summer collections at such houses as Dorothee Bis and Kenzo. But also on the streets, in the hotels and at the fashion showings themselves.

Many of the mini wearers are French, but not all. Women from the Philippines, Hong Kong, Israel and Denmark are among those spotted wearing some version of abbreviated dress.

Sweater more likely than dress it is. The sweater is often big and bulky, and it frequently cups the body right under the hips.

It's not necessarily worn over bare skin. Legs can be covered with tights, jeans so taut they seem like tights, leg warmers (sometimes two pairs of staggered height) and boots.

There isn't exactly a base exposure of bare skin, though a sliver sometimes appears as when, for example, the bulky sweater is worn with a brief pair of shorts and over-the-knees stockings. There can be an inch or so of flesh where the shorts leave off and before the stockings take over.

Nevertheless, the effect of bulky top and slender leg is very similar to what appears on the runways. Yesterday's mini was a slender, straight-cut affair, with no demarcation for the waistline. Tomorrow's is a big, gathered smock with lots of fullness emanating from the shoulder and belted in somewhere in the vicinity of the hips.

The bulky long sweaters were not the result of spontaneous generation. They did turn up in the fall showings of some of the more advanced French ready-to-wear designers last April.

They were indeed shown with shorts and tights, but this was considered by many observers to be merely a method of presentation. They didn't take it too seriously. They didn't take it seriously at all.

Not so the fashion groupies, for whom fashion is a kind of religion. If one of the stars, such as Kenzo, says mini, they swallow the message whole, down to the last long leg warmer.

Consequently, tunic sweaters as well as bloused ones are being worn in the streets exactly as they appeared on the runways six months ago. They're worn with belts to which leather bags are attached. They're wrapped in shawls, jackets or other sweaters. They have turtlenecks or cowls at the top, sometimes hoods.

What with all the leg trappings — the boots, for instance, range from high heels ankle-length affairs to fleece-lined Arctic designs that reach the knee— the wearers aren't troubled about feeling chilly.

In fact, they say they are terribly comfortable, though it does take a while to get dressed. They're free from all that fabric around their legs; they can move around easily and, with their pouches hanging from belts or shoulder straps, their hands are free to grapple with jackets, parcels, shopping bags and other gear.

But what makes them really happiest is the fact that they are undoubtedly in the avant-garde. Besides the fashion houses whose main thrust is the mini for spring and summer, there is some sort of short outfit in practically every collection, even if it's only Bermuda shorts, one of the most conservative ideas here.

The women who have got themselves up in long sweater and warm tights — the prevailing version in the streets today — have obviously come in six months ahead of the throng.

For the fashion viewers from the United States, the trend was something of a shock.

"I can't believe all the minis in Paris," said one buyer from the Middle West. "Of course, back home, a lot of women are still wearing them," she added.

The acceptance here points up the receptivity of some European women to any fashion as long as it's new. It's not a question of throwing out their wardrobes every six months, since usually they buy only one or two new things a season. By the time the season's over they're sick of them or have worn them out.

your health

By LESTER L. COLEMAN M.D.

I'm a mess. Nobody can stand me these days and I can hardly stand myself. It took a long time before they found out that my nervousness was due to an overactive thyroid. I'm getting better now with treatment. I'm not nearly as nervous and irritable. Can I expect that eventually I'll be able to tolerate myself?
Dear Mrs. L.:

With your sense of humor and with continued treatment, I am certain that you will once again become the life of the party.

An overactive thyroid causes a great many personality changes. People, formerly placid and tranquil, become easily aroused, angry, tearful, tense and irritable.

Many people with hyperthyroidism complain of increased nervousness, moist and clammy hands, and a tendency to perspire freely. This is characteristic of the body which seems to be running a race even though standing still.

The thyroid gland is a regulator of body metabolism. It works in conjunction with all the other hormone or endocrine glands. When the balance is upset, many physical and emotional changes take place.

Today there are many sophisticated tests which have replaced the basal metabolic rate (BMR) test. There are new studies such as the protein-bound iodine and T3 and T4 tests which give an index of the activity of the thyroid.

In most instances, surgery can be avoided by treatment with radioactive substances. With regular treatment and supervision, you can anticipate complete control of your problem.

Have you ever heard of a paraffin bath for the treatment of arthritis? Is it safe? — Mr. N.W., N.J.

Dear Mr W.:

Heat offers a great deal of comfort to many people with arthritis. Hot compresses, heat bulbs, hot baths, and diathermy seem to relieve the spasms of the muscles and bring moderate comfort to the aching joints.

Heat by paraffin baths can be used safely at home but only under the direction of a physician. Melted paraffin, unless used properly, can cause burns and undo its basic value.

COLLECTOR'S CORNER BY TOM BATESON

dear abby

DEAR ABBY: I have always considered myself a very fair-minded person and have tried to look at things from all points of view, but this has me stumped.

I have a 16-year old daughter I'll call Barbie. Well, Barbie believes that it's everyone's righ to do as he pleases as long as it doesn't hurt anybody and there is no law against it. This includes going braless, and that's what Barbie does.

She's a nice-looking girl, but she's "top-heavy." Her teacher has called me three times to tell me that if I keep letting Barbie come to school without a bra, she will be expelled.

Abby, do you know any 16-year-old high school girl who lets her mother dress her? Neither do I, and that's my problem. She's a B+ student and I've never had any trouble with her until now.

Can you help me? — BARBIE'S TROUBLED MOM

DEAR MOM: Does the school have a dress code? If it does, and a bra is required, Barbie could be out of bounds in more ways than one. If there is no dress code, the complaining teacher is guilty of making threats she can't carry out, and SHE is out of bounds. Call the high school principal and get the facts.

DEAR ABBY: I am a 36-year-old whose husband left me for a younger woman. I cried my heart out, than I met a young man I could really relate to. We fell in love, and now we have a beautiful relationship unlike anything I've ever know. This last year has been the happiest in my entire life!

The problem: He is only 23. Abby, is it possible for two people who love each other to overcome such a big difference in age? He's older in the head and I look younger in the face, so we look fine together. I have two sons, 11 and 13. — ON CLOUD 8.

DEAR ON: Ride those clouds a little longer before you make any permanent decisions. If it's the real thing, it will last. If everything else works, the age difference is unimportant.

We are surrounded by wood. We use wooden furniture, step on wooden floors and many of us enjoy wooden panelling. Wood is a natural insulator and in this capacity outdoes brick, concrete or aluminum.

The 24-page illustrated booklet "For The Love of Wood" gives a brief history of furniture manufacture and explains what wood is. It also discusses different wood surfaces and finishes. For example, outdoor wood is usually protected by paint or an antiseptic like creosote. The paint protects the wood against the weather and the antiseptic deters fungi.

Indoors, wood may be finished in many different ways. Most of the furniture which is manufactured nowadays is finished with lacquer. Lacquer is fast drying, hard and gives a smooth surface.

The booklet also offers advice on how to combat wood's enemies such as high humidity, lack of moisture, abrasives, burns or paste wax. In addition, you will find tips on how to buy wood furniture, including antiques. Over 20 different types of wood, their color, grain texture, hardness, source and use are listed in the booklet. A glossary of wood terms rounds out this informative publication.

COSMOPOLITAN SANTA CLAUS

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A hero to the multi-ethnic world of commerce as well as to children, Santa gets more cosmopolitan every year.

"I'm best in German, Yiddish and Spanish," says one department store Santa Norman Lewis, whose busy season has started. He adds that he speaks some Vietnamese and French as well.

"I'm Jewish myself, so that helps when you get a Jewish kid. I try to look for clues from the child or the parent, and if I found out he or she is Jewish, I'll talk about Hannukah instead of Christmas.

"You don't expect to see a Hassidic (a highly orthodox sect within Judaism) kid sitting on Santa's lap, but it happens."

FASHIONS

In and out of a car all winter? Here's what you'll need.

If you spend a great deal of time driving, or riding in a bus back and forth to work, there's just nothing as practical and comfortable as a pant coat. You'll wear it for country walks, shopping for groceries, running errands. It'll be the most useful thing you own. Many styles to choose from.

Priced from $40

Rain? You know it. Coats to keep you dry, looking smart.

Just because we've a soggy winter climate doesn't mean you need to go around feeling wet and looking bedraggled. Not when Lady Mary Anne has such a great selection at such reasonable prices. Some with zip-in liners for added warmth.

Sharp Oil Price Hikes Not Necessary—Studies

By JAMES ROWE
Washington Post

WASHINGTON — A new, unpublished analysis by the U.S. department of labor casts strong doubt on claims by oil-exporting countries that they need oil price increases in the range of 10 to 15 per cent, as a minimum, to compensate for the higher prices they must pay on their imports, mainly from industralized countries.

Members of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries have called for price increases as low as five per cent and as high as 40 per cent, but most analysts expect a price boost between 10 and 15 per cent, as oil producers begin to worry about the seriousness of the economic slowdown in the West. But some countries, such as Iran and Iraq, would like even bigger price hikes. OPEC countries will meet in mid-December to decide on 1977 prices.

The labor department study is one of several—another is by an oil industry research foundation and a third is by an organization of the world's major industrial countries—which put the impact of Western Inflation on the purchasing power of the oil producers in the range of one to five per cent, not 15 to 40 per cent.

The bureau of labor statistics study by analysts Edward E. Murphy and Jorge F. Perez-Lopez concludes that between Oct. 1, 1973, (the date of the last OPEC price hike) and the end of June, the cost of merchandise from the 14 major industrial countries which provide the bulk of CPEC imports rose only one per cent.

The labor department analysts concede that the one per cent figure might be a little low, that their methods of deriving it are not perfect, and that it does not cover everything that OPEC nations import (such as some military equipment, services and the relatively smaller amount of merchandise from non-Western countries).

But they contend that the figure is unlikely to be off by any amount which would yield a 15 to 40 per cent figure.

The Petroleum Industry Research Foundation, Inc., an oil industry research organization, said its analysis shows that between the third quarter of 1975 and the third quarter of 1976, the prices of all OPEC imports have increased 2.7 per cent, still well below the numbers OPEC countries have talked about.

The Organization for Economic Cooperation and Development figures that all OPEC import prices are up about five per cent.

The last time the oil-producing countries raised prices was on Oct. 1, 1975, when they boosted them 10 per cent. Since October, 1973, the price of oil has risen about 300 per cent, from about $2.90 a barrel for the key crude (Saudi Arabian light) to $11.51 a barrel.

ALASKA OIL JAPAN BOUND?

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) —The best way to handle Alaskan oil for the first months it's available is to exchange it with Japan, says the principal author of a new federal study.

In return, Japan would send the United States oil it buys from the Arabs.

Hundreds of thousands of barrels of oil from Alaska's North Slope are due to start arriving at an Alaskan coastal port in mid-1977.

If a West Coast terminal is built to receive the oil for shipment east, it couldn't be ready for even limited use until sometime in 1978, long after the oil starts flowing.

Nor could a trans-Canada pipeline or tankers that could carry the oil through the Panama Canal be ready in time, the study says.

The long-overdue report on alternatives to a West Coast tanker terminal is expected to be released publicly in draft form this week by the Federal Energy Administration in Washington, D.C.

Bob Shinn, now an aide to the California Energy Commission's chairman, was chief author of the original draft.

In an interview Monday, he said the 800-page report had not major changes from the draft he submitted. He said it originally was to have been released in September.

"Several alternatives are viable, not the least of which is exchanging oil with Japan," Shinn said.

Exchanging U.S. oil with Japan or any other nation requires authorization from the president.

Death Toll Rises

NEW DELHI (Reuter) — The death toll in flash floods in Madras has risen to 39 and about 300,000 people have been affected, say official reports. The two rivers which cut through the south Indian city burst their banks after 18 inches of rain fell in 24 hours last Wednesday—the worst rain in 75 years.

Apartment Building Approved

Saanich council gave the green light to developer Norman Isherwood on Monday to build 152 rental apartments at 984 McKenzie.

The project will be built under the federal government's Assistance Rental Program and will contain 86 one-bedroom suites and 29 bachelor suites on the three-acre site which has 190-foot of frontage on McKenzie.

Also approved at the public hearing were rezoning applications to build duplexes at 1519 Cedar Glen Road, on the northeast corner of Borden Street and Bracken Avenue, and a lot lying between Cedar Hill Cross Road and Braefoot Road opposite 3904 Cedar Hill Cross Road.

The Church of the Nazarene was also given approval to use a lot immediately south of 4285 Quadra Street as a parking lot.

A request to have the north side of the extreme end of Glenora Place rezoned for 36 apartments was tabled for further study and information.

Arson Suspected

HELSINKI (AP) — A fire Monday at the A. Ahlstrom paper mill at Varkaus, about 200 miles northeast of here, caused damage estimated at $15-million U.S., a company spokesman said. Police said they suspect arson because fires were started in five different locations.

Nightgown Met Standards

The remains of a nightgown that caught fire and sent a Victoria child to hospital with third-degree burns earlier this month have been found to meet federal standards.

The nightgown, bought at Simpsons-Sears, had been given to Danae Higgins of 3971 Panther for her eighth birthday. On her birthday night, she was playing with a cigarette lighter when the nightgown caught fire within seconds.

The child is still in the Victoria General Hospital's burns unit.

"It (the nightgown material) appears to be legal," deputy provincial fire marshal Ken Collier of Vancouver reports, "but it is certainly not in the best interests of the public to buy such articles.

"There are a number of materials that meet the flame-spread rating that are potentially dangerous."

The nightgown bore a label, stating the garment was a Champion brand, made in China of 100 per cent cotton.

"There are two or three steps we can take, none of them particularly satisfactory," Collier added. "It's very difficult to regulate — a somewhat hopeless task."

He cited an instance where a man was driving a car, wearing an outdoor sports shirt that was potentially dangerous.

"He lit a cigarette or pipe and suddenly a blue flame sprang up one arm across the shoulders and down the other arm, scaring the hell out of him," he said.

Collier said the flame had ignited the nap of the material but the rest of the cloth was untouched. He said it took six months to track down the manufacturer in Japan, who then reported the material had been made in Canada.

Collier said the Canadian Association of Fire Marshals has been trying hard to have better standards regulated in order to provide adequate safety.

"The United States has pursued it to a pretty good extent, too," he said. "One of the problems is there is no way of stopping manufacture of the stuff in the country."

U.K. URGED TO FIGHT RACISM BY CONTRACTS

LONDON (Reuter) — Britain's Race Relations Board urged the government today to go on the offensive against racism by using its powers of awarding commercial contracts to check racial discrimination in employment.

"We fail to understand why the government should largely deny itself the use of the most potent weapon of all," the board said in a 72-page report.

The report is the final one from the government-appointed board, being replaced early in 1977 by a new body called the Commission for Racial Equality. This is to have stronger powers of enforcement through courts and industrial tribunals.

White Christmas

I'm dreaming of a white Christmas
Just like the ones I used to know
Where the tree tops glisten
And children listen to hear sleigh bells in the snow.
I'm dreaming of a white Christmas
With ev'ry Christmas card I write
May your days be merry and bright
And may all your Christmases be white.

Hark, the Herald Angels Sing

Hark! The herald angels sing,
"Glory to the newborn King,
Peace on earth and mercy mild,
God and sinners reconciled."
Joyful, all ye nations rise,
Join the triumph of the skies;
With angelic hosts proclaim,
"Christ is born in Bethlehem."

Refrain

Hark! The herald angels sing,
"Glory to the newborn King."

Christ, by highest heaven adored,
Christ, the everlasting Lord;
Late in time behold Him come
Offspring of a Virgin's womb.
Veiled in flesh the Godhead see;
Hail the incarnate Diety.
Pleased as man with man to dwell,
Jesus, our Emmanuel.

Hail the heaven-born Prince of Peace
Hail the Son of Righteousness.
Light and life to all He brings,
Risen with healing in His wings.
Mild He lays His glory by,
Born that man no more may die,
Born to raise the sons of earth,
Born to give them second birth.

Do You Hear What I Hear?

Said the night wind to the little lamb
Do you see what I see?
'Way up in the sky, little lamb
Do you see what I see?
A star, a star,
Dancing in the night,
With a tail as big as a kite,
With a tail as big as a kite.

Said the little lamb to the shepherd boy
Do you hear what I hear?
Ringing through the sky, shepherd boy,
Do you hear what I hear?
A song, a song, High above the tree,
With a voice as big as the sea,
With a voice as big as the sea.

Said the shepherd boy to the might king
Do you know what I know?
In your palace warm, mighty king,
Do you know what I know?
A Child, a Child shivers in the cold;
Let us bring Him silver and gold,
Let us bring Him silver and gold.

Said the king to the people everywhere
Listen to what I say!
Pray for peace, people everywhere,
Listen to what I say!
The Child, the Child, sleeping in the night
He will bring us goodness and light,
He will bring us goodness and light.

What Child Is This?

What child is this who laid to rest
On Mary's lap is sleeping?
Whom angels greet with anthems sweet
While shepherds watch are keeping.

Refrain:

This, this is Christ the King
Whom shepherds guard and angels sing.
Haste, haste to bring him in
The Babe, the son of Mary.

Why lies He in such mean estate
Where ox and ass are feeding?
Good Christian, fear for sinners here
The silent word is pleading.

So bring him incense, gold and myrrh,
Come peasant, king and own him.
The King of Kings salvation brings
Let loving hearts enthrone him.

—24—
Christians, Awake

Christians, awake, salute the happy morn
Whereon the Saviour of the world was born;
Rise to adore the mystery of love,
Which hosts of angels chanted from above
With them the joyful tidings first begun.
Of God incarnate and the Virgin's Son.

Then to the watchful shepherds it was told
Who heard the angelic herald's voice,
"Behold,
"I bring good tidings of a Saviour's birth!
"To you and all the nations upon the earth!

He that was born upon this joyful day
Around us all His glory shall display.
Saved by His love, incessant we shall sing
Eternal praise to heaven's almighty King.

SECONDARY WINDOW SYSTEM—DOUBLE GLAZED

Designed to be the most efficient insulation with an air gap of at least 1" between your existing window and the inside glass. This is called the secondary window system. Drafts are eliminated right round the window because the aluminum secondary inserts are weatherstripped and fitted so precisely on the inside. So the cold stays out and the heat stays in and these double glazing units prevent condensation on the inside glass. Our craftsmen measure your windows individually, then tailor your double glazing units to fit inside. Precisely.

Winter Wonderland

Sleigh-bells ring,
Are you list'nin?
In the lane
Snow is glist'nin
A beautiful sight
We're happy tonight,
Walkin' in the Winter Wonderland!
Gone away is the Bluebird,
Here to stay is a new bird,
He sings a love song,
As we go along,
Walkin' in a Winter Wonderland!
In the meadow we can build a snowman,
Then pretends that he is Parson Brown,
He'll say "Are you married?"
We'll say "No man!"
But you can do the job when you're in town,
Lafer on, we'll conspire,
As we dream by the fire
To face unafraid
The plans that we made,
Walkin' in a Winter Wonderland!

Infant Holy

Infant holy, infant lowly,
For his bed, a cattle stall;
Oxen lowing, little knowing
Christ the Babe is Lord of all.
Swift are winging, angels singing,
Nowels ringing, tidings bringing,
Christ the Babe is Lord of all.

Flocks were sleeping, shepherds keeping
Vigil till the morning new
Saw the glory, heard the story,
Tidings of a gospel true.
Thus rejoicing, free from sorrow,
Praises voicing, greet the morrow,
Christ the Babe is Lord of all.

—3—
Silent Night

Silent night! Holy night!
All is calm, all is bright;
Round yon virgin mother and child
Holy Infant so tender and mild,
Sleep in heavenly peace,
Sleep in heavenly peace,
Silent night! Holy night!
Shepherds quake at the sight!
Glories stream from heaven afar,
Heavenly hosts sing Alleluia,
Christ, the Saviour, is born!
Christ, the Saviour, is born!
Silent night! Holy night!
Son of God, love's pure light
Radiant beams from Thy holy face,
With the dawn of redeeming grace,
Jesus, Lord at Thy birth,
Jesus, Lord at Thy birth.

Here Comes Santa Claus

Here comes Santa Claus!
Here comes Santa Claus!
Right down Santa Claus Lane!

Vixen and Blitzen and all his reindeer are pulling on the rein,
Bells are ringing, children singing, all is merry and bright.
Hang your stockings and say your pray'rs,
'Cause Santa Claus comes tonight.

He's got a bag that is filled with toys for the boys and girls again.
Hear those sleigh-bells jingle jangle,
what a beautiful sight.
'Cause Santa Claus comes tonight.

Carol of the Drum

"Come," they told me
Pa-rum-pa-pum-pum,
"Our new-born King to See
Pa-rum-pa-pum-pum,
Our finest gifts we'll bring,
Pa-rum-pa-pum-pum,
To lay before the King!
Pa-rum-pa-pum-pum,
Rum-pa-pum-pum, Rum-pa-pum-pum.
So to honor Him,
Pa-rum-pa-pum-pum,
When we come."

"Baby Jesus,
Pa-rum-pa-pum-pum
I'm a poor boy too,
Pa-rum-pa-pum-pum
I have no gift to bring,
Pa-rum-pa-pum-pum
That's fit to give a King,
Pa-rum-pa-pum-pum
Rum-pa-pum-pum, Rum-pa-pum-pum
Shall I play for you,
Pa-rum-pa-pum-pum
On my drum!"

Mary nodded,
Pa-rum-pa-pum-pum
Ox and ass kept time,
Pa-rum-pa-pum-pum
I played my drum for Him,
Pa-rum-pa-pum-pum
Rum-pa-pum-pum, Rum-pa-pum-pum,
Then He smiled at me,
Pa-rum-pa-pum-pum
Me and my drum!

God Rest You Merry, Gentlemen

God rest you merry, gentlemen,
Let nothing you dismay,
Remember Christ your Saviour
Was born upon this day,
To save us all from Satan's power
When we were gone astray.

Refrain:
O tidings of comfort and joy, comfort and joy,
O tidings of comfort and joy.

In Bethlehem, in Jewry,
This blessed Babe was born,
And laid within a manger
Upon this blessed morn;
The which His mother Mary
Did nothing take in scorn.

From God our Heav'nly Father,
A blessed angel came,
And unto certain shepherds
Brought tidings of the same,
How that in Bethlehem was born
The Son of God by name.

"Fear not then," said the angel,
"Let nothing you affright,
This day is born a Saviour
Of a pure Virgin bright,
To free all those who trust in Him
From Satan's power and might."

Now to the Lord sing praises,
All you within this place,
And with true love and brotherhood
Each other now embrace;
This holy tide of Christmas
All other doth efface.

—7—
The First Nowel

The first Nowel the angels did say,
Was to certain poor shepherds in fields as they lay;
In fields where they lay keeping their sheep,
On a cold winter's night, that was so deep.

Refrain
Nowel, Nowel, Nowel, Nowel,
Born is the King of Israel.

They looked up and saw a star
Shining in the East beyond them far,
And to the Earth it gave great light,
And so it continued both day and night.

And by the light of that same star
Three wise men came from country far,
To seek for a King was their intent,
And to follow the star wherever it went.

This star drew nigh to the northwest,
O'er Bethlehem it took its rest,
And there it did both stop and stay
Right over the place where Jesus lay.

Then entered in those wise men three
Full reverently upon their knee,
And offered there in his presence
Their gold and myrrh and frankincense

Then let us all with one accord
Sing praises to our heavenly lord;
That hath made heaven and earth of nought,
And with His blood mankind hath bought.

—8—
O Come, All Ye Faithful

O come all ye faithful,
Joyful and triumphant,
Come ye, O come ye to Bethlehem;
Come and behold Him,
Born the King of Angels:

Refrain
O come, let us adore Him,
O come, let us adore Him,
O come, let us adore Him,
Christ the Lord.

Sing choirs of Angels,
Sing in exultation,
Sing all ye citizens of heaven above.
Glory to God
In the highest.

Yea, Lord we hail Thee
Born this happy morning;
Jesus, to Thee be glory given,
Word of the Father,
Now in the Flesh appearing.

Silver Bells

City sidewalks, busy sidewalks,
Dressed in holiday style.
In the air there's a feeling of Christmas.
Children laughing, people passing, meeting smile after smile,
And on every street corner your hear:
Silver bells, silver bells,
It's Christmas time in the city.
Ring-a-ling, hear them ring.
Soon it will be Christmas day.
City street lights, even stop lights,
Blink a bright red and green,
As the shoppers rush home with their treasures,
Hear the snow crunch,
See the kids bunch,
This is Santa's big scene,
And above all this bustle you hear:
Silver bells, silver bells,
It's Christmas Time in the city.
Ring-a-ling, hear them ring,
Soon it will be Christmas day.

Away in a Manger

Away in a manger, no crib for a bed,
The little Lord Jesus lay down his sweet head;
The stars in the bright sky looked down where He lay,
The little Lord Jesus asleep on the hay.
The cattle are lowing, the Baby awakes,
But little Lord Jesus no crying He makes;
I Love Thee, Lord Jesus; look down from the sky,
And stay by my side until morning is nigh.
Be near me, Lord Jesus, I ask Thee to stay
Close by me forever and love me, I pray;
Bless all the dear children in Thy tender care,
And fit us for heaven to live with Thee there.

We Three Kings

We three kings of Orient are Bearing gifts; we traverse afar
Field and fountain, moor and mountain
Following yonder star.

Refrain:
O star of wonder; star of night,
Star with royal beauty bright,
Westward leading, still proceeding,
Guide us to the perfect light.

Solo (Melchoir)
Born a King of Bethlehem's plain,
Gold I bring to crown Him again,
King forever, ceasing never,
Over us all to reign.

Solo (Casper)
Frankincense to offer have I,
Incense owns a Deity nigh;
Prayer and praising, all men raising,
Worship Him, God most high.

Solo (Balthazar)
Myrrh is mine; it's better perfume
Breathes a life of gathering gloom;
Sorrowing, sighing, bleeding, dying,
Sealed in the stone cold tomb.

Glorious now behold Him arise,
King and God and Sacrifice;
Alleluia, alleluia,
Earth to heaven replies.

It Came Upon the Midnight Clear

It came upon a midnight clear,
That glorious song of old,
From angels bending near the earth
To touch their harps of gold;
"Peace on the earth, goodwill to men
From heaven's all gracious King."
The world in solemn silence lay
To hear the angels sing.

Still through the cloven skies they come
With peaceful wings unfurled;
And still their heavenly music floats
O'er all the weary world;
Above its sad and lonely plains
They bend on hovering wing,
And ever o'er its Babel-sounds
The blessed angels sing.

Yet with the woes of sin and strife
The world has suffered long;
Beneath the angel-strain have rolled
Two thousand years of wrong;
And men, at war with men, hear not
The words of peace they bring;
O hush the noise, ye men of strife,
And hear the angels sing.

And ye, beneath life's crushing load,
Whose forms are bending low,
Who toil along the arduous way
With painful steps and slow;
Look now, for glad and joyous hours
God's messengers will bring;
O rest beside the weary road
And hear the angels sing.

For lo! The days are hastening on
By prophet-bards foretold,
When with the ever circling years
Comes around the age of gold;
When peace shall over all the earth
Its ancient splendors fling,
And the whole world send back the song
Which now the angels sing.

Good King Wenceslas

Good King Wenceslas looked out
On the feast of Stephen,
When the snow lay round about,
Deep and crisp and even:
Brightly shone the moon that night,
Tho' the frost was cruel,
When a poor man came in sight,
Gath'ring winter fuel.

"Hither, page and stand by me,
If you know'st it, telling,
Yonder peasant, who is he?
Where and what his dwelling?
"Sire, he lives a good league hence,
Underneath the mountain,
Right against the forest fence,
By St. Agnes' fountain."

"Bring me flesh and bring me wine,
Bring me pine logs hither:
Thou and I will see him dine,
When we bear him thither."
Page and monarch forth they went,
Forth they went together,
Through the rude wind's wild lament,
And the bitter weather.

"Sir, the night is darker now,
And the wind blows stronger;
Fails my heart, I know not how,
I can go no longer."
"Mark my footsteps, good my page,
Tread thou in them bodly;
Thou shalt find the winter's rage
Freeze thy blood less coldly."

Jingle Bells

Dashing thro' the snow,
In a one-horse open sleigh
O'er the fields we go,
Laughing all the way;
Bells on bobtail ring,
Making spirits bright;
What fun it is to ride and sing a sleighing song tonight!

Chorus:
Jingle bells, jingle bells,
Jingle all the way!
Oh, what fun it is to ride,
In a one-horse open sleigh!

A day or two ago,
I thought I'd take a ride,
And soon Miss Fannie Bright was seated by my side;
The horse was lean and lank,
Misfortune seemed his lot,
He got into a drifted bank and then we got upsot!

Now the ground is white,
Go it while you're young;
Take the girls tonight
And sing this sleighing song.
Just got a bobtail'd nag,
Two-forty for his speed,
Then hitch him to an open sleigh an crack! you'll take the lead.

While Shepherds Watched Their Flocks

While shepherds watched their flocks by night,
All seated on the ground,
The angel of the Lord came down,
And glory shone around.

"Fear not," said he, for mighty dread
Had seized their troubled mind;
"Glad tidings of great joy I bring
To you and all mankind.

"To you, in David's town, this day
Is born of David's line
A Saviour, who is Christ the Lord;
And this shall be the sign.

"The heavenly Babe you there shall find
To human view displayed,
All meanly wrapped in swathing bands,
And in a manger laid."

Thus spake the seraph; and forthwith
Appeared a shining throng
Of angels, praising God, who thus Addressed their joyful song
"All glory be to God on high,
And to earth be peace;
Goodwill henceforth, from heaven to men
Begin and never cease."

Rudolph The Red-Nosed Reindeer

You know Dasher and Dancer and Prancer and Vixen,
Comet and Cupid and Donner and Blitzen,
But do you recall the most famous Reindeer of all?

Rudolph, the red-nosed reindeer had a very shiny nose,
And if you ever saw it, you would even say it glows.
All of the other reindeer used to laugh and call him names,
They never let poor Rudolph join in any reindeer games;

Then one foggy Christmas Eve, Santa came to say:
Rudolph with your nose so bright, won't you guide my sleigh tonight;
Then how the reindeer loved him as they shouted out with glee:
Rudolph, the red-nosed reindeer, you'll go down in history.

O Little Town of Bethlehem

O little town of Bethlehem,
How still we see thee lie,
Above thy deep and dreamless sleep
The silent stars go by;
Yet in thy dark street shineth
The everlasting light,
The hopes and fears of all the years
Are met in thee tonight.
For Christ is born of Mary;
And, gathered all above
While mortals sleep; the angels keep
Their watch of wandering love.
O morning stars, together
Proclaim the Holy birth,
And praises sing of God the King,
And peace to men on earth.
How silently, how silently,
The wondrous gift is given,
So God imparts to human hearts
The blessings of His heaven.
No ear may hear His coming,
But in this world of sin,
Where meek souls will receive Him still
The dear Christ enters in.
O Holy Child of Bethlehem,
Descend to us we pray;
Cast out our sins and enter in;
Be born in us today.
We hear the Christmas Angels
The great glad tidings tell;
O come to us, abide with us,
Our Lord, Emmanuel.

The Christmas Song

Chestnuts roasting on an open fire,
Jack Frost nipping at your nose,
Yule-tide carols being sung by a choir,
And folks dressed up like Eskimos,
Everybody knows a turkey and some mistletoe,
Help to make the season bright,
Tiny tots with their eyes all aglow,
Will find it hard to sleep tonight,
They know that Santa's on his way,
He's loaded lots of toys and goodies on his sleigh,
And every mother's child is gonna spy,
To see if reindeer really know how to fly.
And so, I'm offering this simple phrase,
To kids from one to ninety-two,
Altho' it's been said many times, many ways,
"Merry Christmas to you."

Santa Claus Is Coming To Town

Oh, you'd better watch out,
You'd better not cry,
Better not pout,
I'm telling you why,
Santa Claus is coming to town.

He's making a list and checking it twice,
Going to find out who's naughty and nice,
Santa Claus is coming to town.

He sees you when you're sleeping,
He knows if you're awake,
He knows if you've been bad or good,
So be good — for goodness sake!

Oh, you'd better watch out,
You'd better not cry,
Better not pout,
I'm telling you why,
Santa Claus is coming to town.

The Bridge Expert

By FRED KARPIN

Even the best players have blind spots at times, and overlook a simple solution to their problem. Such was the case in today's deal, which was played in a rubber-bridge game.

Opening lead: King of ◇.

After capturing the opening diamond lead with his ace, South picked up the outstanding five trumps. Then came the ace, king and queen of clubs, South discarding his three of spades on the third club lead. It was his hope, of course, that the six adversely held clubs were divided 3-3, since in this case he would be able to get rid of his two remaining low spades on the board's last two clubs.

But, as can be observed, the missing clubs were divided 4-2. So South ruffed the fourth club lead, cashed the spade ace, and then led a small spade towards dummy's remaining Q-10. When West played low dummy's ten was inserted, with the hope that West possessed the jack. And so East's jack and king took two tricks, sending declarer down to defeat.

As declarer played the hand, he had better than a 50-50 chance of fulfilling his contract. However, he missed a superior line of play.

After drawing trumps, South should have led a club, and when West would follow suit, declarer would follow with a low club from dummy, permitting the defenders to win the trick. No matter what was returned, declarer would now come home with one spade trick, six hearts, one diamond; and four clubs.

The concession of a club trick was the superior play, since when six of a suit are outstanding, they will be divided either 3-3 or 4-2 about 84 per cent of the time. Of course, if declarer had been in a grand slam contract, he would have had no option but to play for five club tricks by cashing the ace, king and queen of clubs. But at a small slam contract, the cashing of the top clubs at once had to be wrong.

YOUR HOROSCOPE

Astrological Forecast for Wednesday, December 1

By SIDNEY OMARR

ARIES (March 21-April 19): You make progress and arouse certain amount of enmity. Jealous persons attempt to sabotage your efforts. Money in escrow, or "tied up" in other ways, could become a bone of contention. Leo, Aquarius persons are in picture.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Follow through on hunch — heed inner feelings. Much that occurs could be hidden, behind scenes, obscured, clothed in aura of mystery. Cancer, Capricorn and Aquarius figure prominently. You could be offered a contract for task you took for granted.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): What seemed an ideal is now close enough to "touch." You revise some opinions. You become more flexible. Your "heart's desire" may turn out to be something very different than originally conceived.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Stick to familiar ground. Build solid base. Be thorough, practical, familiar with basic material. One who is impatient, destructive may try to enlist your aid. Protect your own interests. Refuse to be part of any scheme which tears down with no plan for rebuilding.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): You want change and travel, but circumstances may upset plans. Means be ready for surprises, unusual requests, misquotes, garbled instructions. Key is to analyze, to find the why of happenings, to take nothing for granted. Gemini, Sagittarius and Virgo persons are in picture.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Be a comparison shopper. There are "plans" to relieve you of possessions, valuables, money. Know it and defend your own interests. Check rates, time and motion studies, luxury items, durability. Taurus, Libra persons figure prominently. Family member is on your side and makes you happy.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Obtain hint from Virgo message. Surprise and unorthodox guard up — do more listening elements are featured. Keep than asserting. Be aware of contractual obligations, other legal matters. See in realistic light, not through prism of self-deception. You'll understand!

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Key now is organization, a focusing on priorities — emotional commitment is in picture, combined with investments in your own capabilities. Older individual may disagree with you, but patience wins. You will "get your way!"

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Finish rather than begin — get feel of public pulse. You have right to complete the circle, to give yourself chance at brass ring. You style personal magnetism combine to bring popularity, controversy and recognition. Aries, Libra are in picture.

CAPRICORM (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): You break loose from restriction, barriers to progress. You do have right to be independent, to live a life or your own. Permit creativity to flourish. Domestic area can be a happier place — see that it is — refuse to be painted into corner of gloom.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Short term prospects could be deceiving. Stress security — don't give up something of value for nothing. Cancer, Scorpio and Capricorn figure prominently, A relative, emerging from conflict with young person, wants encouragement from you.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Money picture will be brighter — and this comes in surprising manner. Long-distance communication is involved — you receive news concerning publication, education, travel. What was a block to cash flow . . . is vigorously removed.

IF DECEMBER 1st IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you are frank, creative, original, independent, a traveller, a thinker and a philosopher. You also are temperamental, somewhat spoiled by the opposite sex, a bit selfish and determined to have your way because you feel it is the "right way." Leo, Aquarius persons play important roles in your life. You will soon be embarking on a new adventure, fresh contacts, relief of burdens, a rare chance to succeed in areas that appeal, offer emotional and material "health."

Climbing Moths Are to Blame

A large number of home gardeners read the article on page 9 of the Times on Monday Nov. 22, under the heading "Moths Herald Trouble".

Dozens of phone calls have been received, many callers reporting windows covered with moths each evening, and the main question is "What spray is recommended?"

As stated by Dr. David Evans of the Federal Forest Laboratory, these are moths of the Bruce Span Worm which defoliates fruit and ornamental trees as they leaf out in spring.

The moths seen on windows and glass doors after sundown are harmless. They are the flying male moths. The trouble-makers are the non-flying females which, after mating, climb the trees and lay the eggs that develop into the span worm the following spring.

These females are rarely seen by home gardeners. As Dr. Evans states the "females will climb the trees", and that is the clue to their destruction. There was no mention of flying and landing in the trees.

Since they climb the trees the way to prevent them from reaching the upper portions is the trap them on their way up.

No spray can have any effect since moths do not eat foliage. To use a spray the gardener would have stay up all night and take potshots at each female as it appeared on every tree in the garden. No doubt a worthy effort but totally ineffective.

Since the time of mating varies from year to year and is related to weather conditions, it was suggested in this column during late August that sticky bands should be attached to all fruit and many ornamental trees before the first of September. A few years ago the females were climbing by September 5.

The sticky bands trap all climbing insects and many flying moths and the surface soon becomes covered with ants, spiders, and mites. When this happens the bands are removed, burned, and new bands applied, otherwise the climbers have an unobstructed passage over the bodies of those trapped.

Plastic strips with a non-toxic substance on the surface are made and sold in Victoria. One end of the band is attached to the tree trunk with a few carpet tacks, the band stretched tightly around the tree, overlapped an inch or so, and tacked in place. It is then cut to size and the trimmings overlapped to make a band for another tree.

A product called Tanglefoot has been on the market many years and is used by commercial growers. Home gardeners have not been intereted because it was only available in large drums. It is now being sold in one gallon cans by several garden centres.

While Tanglefoot can be applied directly to the bark of the trunk, there is still the problem of removing the trapped insects that cover the sticky surface. Therefore it is better to apply a double layer of heavy brown paper to the tree and paint this with Tanglefoot. The paper can then be removed and a new band attached.

Little will be gained by rushing out to buy bands or the liquid product now because I recorded the appearance of the flying males on Nov. 19 and the females climbing the trees on the 21st. At the time of writing (26th.) only two lonely males are to be seen on the storm door, and the tree bands are well loaded with females.

But next year see that your trees are protected by the first of September, and that replacements are applied as needed throughout the fall.

You know Trans Canada Highway, right? You take Trans-Canada for about six miles and turn off it to old Island Highway, as if you were going to Colwood, see? No sooner do you hit Island Highway but you drive along until you see a sign that says Chilko Rd. But this isn't it. You pass it and drive another fifty feet on until you see another sign that says Chilco Rd. This is it. Turn left. You drive along Chilco till you see a sign that says "Donena" and drive right into the property — almost two acres of it. If the owners are home, they will show you around. Better bring some feed for the ducks, so that when you go down to the waterfront you will get the hang of it. Price $120,000 or offer. P.S. If these directions seem complicated then call me, Don Bacon, and I will take you there, that's a good way, too. 385-2458.

Because of a transfer, the owner has instructed us to sharply reduce the price of this beautiful sea-front property. Inside the seven mile circle, this is truly an all season home. In winter, cosy behind all thermopane windows, one can watch the coastwise shipping beating down Haro Straits and hear the seas breaking on the shore. In summer one can take full advantage of the easy access sandy cove for boating, swimming and fishing. The four-bedroom fully modern home has been soundly constructed and tastefully appointed. Living and sleeping areas alike are generously proportioned. Truly a home to enjoy and be proud of. The price, $159,000. Call JOHN BELL 477-2562 or GILES PERODEAU 656-4525.

HOW TO WRITE

A GOOD

CLASSIFIED ACTION AD

1—IT'S BEST to start your ad with the name of the article or service you have to offer. If you have an apartment, room etc., for rent, or property for sale; start your ad with the location.

2—BE CLEAR. Readers respond more quickly and favorably when given complete, definite information. Always include the price in your advertisement.

3—MAKE IT EASY for the reader-prospect to reach you. Always give your telephone number or your name and address. If you do not have regular hours, state a preferred time for the prospect to get in touch with you.

4—PLAY SAFE. You get the greatest reader attention by using consecutive insertions. A six-day order is best and costs less, and you can, of course, stop your ad as soon as you get the results you want. You pay only for the days your ad appeared. Lower yearly rates are available to those who wish to keep their services or products before the public.

5—PLACE YOURSELF in the reader's position and ask yourself what you want to know about your offer. The answer you give will make a good Want Ad.
Don't allow the reader to speculate.

6—GIVE YOUR PROSPECT every inducement you can with good copy. Classified action ad readers have the money and are already interested in buying the merchandise or service you have to offer; the details and information you give are the most important.

7—TO PLACE YOUR AD, call 386-2121, your direct line number to fast Want Ad action. A courteous, efficient advisor will be glad to help you word and place your order. And remember, Classified Action Ads afford you the most complete coverage. Telephones are open 8:00 a.m. to 6:00 p.m. for you daily, Monday through Saturday call:

309 IN MEMORIAM

BRYANT — In loving memory of Ron who passed away November 30, 1975.
One year has passed since that sad day
When one we loved was called away
God took him home — it was His will;
Within our hearts he liveth still.
—Fondly remembered by his Mom and Dad, brothers and sisters.

BRYANT — In loving memory of Ron Bryant who passed away November 30, 1975.
We often sit and think of him when we are all alone,
For memory is the only friend that grief can call its own.
Like ivy on the withered oak, when all other things decay,
Our love for him will still keep green and never fade away.
—Fondly remembered by Debbie and Kim.

DAYKIN — In loving memory of Arthur, who passed away Nov. 20, 1974.
If I could have one lifetime wish,
One dream that could come true,
I'd pray to God with all my heart,
For yesterday and you.
—Your wife Renie.

JEWSBURY — In loving memory of my dear husband, Raymond George Jewsbury, who passed away Nov. 29, 1972.
Nothing can ever take away,
The love a heart hold dear.
Fond memories linger every day
Remembrance keeps his dear.
—Lovingly remembered by his wife Olivia and daughter Gail.

TEAGUE — In loving memory of my husband, Everett Demcey, who passed away Nov. 30, 1974.
The face I loved is now laid low.
His loving voice is still,
The hand so often clasped in mine,
Lies now in death's cold chill.
I often sit and think of him
When I am all alone;
For memory is the only thing
That grief can call its own.
Ever remembered by his wife Irene.

309 IN MEMORIAM

THEY SHALL GROW NOT OLD, AS WE WHO ARE LEFT GROW OLD. AGE SHALL NOT WEARY THEM, NOR THE YEARS CONDEMN. AT THE GOING DOWN OF THE SUN, AND IN THE MORNING, WE WILL REMEMBER THEM.
WITH GRATITUDE, SANDS.

Sidney Bracing for Boom

Sidney council has decided to form a special planning committee to prepare for an influx of population expected once the municipality is hooked onto the Greater Victoria water system.

Ald. Gib Baal said today the committee will be formed early next year and will consist of two or three members of council plus a like number from the community.

The decision was made after regional planning director Peter Hammer told council Monday night their municipal plan did not adequately outline development policies covering the eventuality of such a population increase.

The population of Sidney, currently estimated at 6,464, is expected to rise to between 11,500 and 14,000 when the municipality is connected to the regional water system, hopefully within a year.

Hammer said Sidney's role as a service centre for the peninsula will increase, an aim consistent with council's policies.

He said there will be "tremendous pressure" on Sidney to develop its available land and emphasized that planning policies should be well defined before water supplies arrive.

He predicted the increased demand for housing will probably be for smaller multiple, low-profile affordable units, stressing the word affordable.

Baal said Sidney has a list of more than 200 applicants for building permits waiting for the day the water system is hooked up.

"Our plan now is to hold back private dwellings and go more for apartment or condominium construction," he said.

Goldstream Murder Trial Opens

The father of a man found dead near Goldstream Park Dec. 2, 1975, told B.C. Supreme Court Monday he last saw his son alive Oct. 31, 1975.

Andrew Cunningham was giving evidence before an Assize jury and Mr. Justice Victor Dryer at the first day of the trial of David John Ross, 33, accused of murder punishable by life imprisonment in the death of Malcolm Preston Cunningham, 22.

The indictment against Ross said Cunningham died "on or about" Nov. 1, 1975. The body was found near the E and N Railway tracks just east of Humpback Road Dec. 2, 1975.

Cunningham told the court his son worked for him as a foreman in his plastering business.

He said he never saw his son alive again after Oct. 31 and reported him missing to police two weeks later.

E and N brakeman Gerald Cove said he was riding in the cupola of the caboose of Train 51 going north near noon Dec. 2 and thought he saw a man lying in the bush near the track.

He pulled the emergency air brake cord and with the conductor found a dead man. Cove said the man had been dead "for a while" because the left hand was partly decomposed.

Const. Wayne Dew of Colwood RCMP said he was called to the scene just after noon and the railway workers showed him a dead man lying face down about 20 yards from the track.

He said the body was taken away, first to Royal Jubilee Hospital and then to Victoria General Hospial where an autopsy was performed.

Dew was to continue his testimony when the trial, scheduled to last eight court days, resumed today.

Crown counsel George MacMinn, who is being assisted by Nicholas Lang, told the jury in his opening remarks the prosecution will allege that Cunningham, Ross and a third person drove from a Victoria West address to Humpback Road on or about Nov. 1, 1975, where Cunningham got out and Ross shot him seven times in the back.

He said the third person, whom he did not identify, will testify as to what he saw and how he happened to be there.

MacMinn also said the jury will hear of the reluctance of the witness to tell his story to police and "extraordinary lengths" the police had to go to elicit his statement.

The Crown will allege that Ross borrowed a rifle and after the shooting was asked to return it, he said.

The persons requesting return of the rifle were taken to the scene and saw Cunningham dead. One of the two persons who went with Ross on the second occasion will testify, MacMinn said.

He added that this witness, whom he did not identify, will testify that Ross went through Cunningham's pockets and removed a wallet and it was at this time that "the motive emerges."

MacMinn said the rifle was disposed of and Ross was arrested in Winnipeg.

He also told the jury that it is "inevitable in a case such as this" that some witnesses will have criminal records.

A jury of 11 men and one woman ws sworn in but the woman was excused by Mr. Justice Dryer after the lunch break, apparently after becoming sick.

He told the jury that he was satisfied her condition "is such that she was not and would not be able to give the facts in the case her proper attention."

A section in the Criminal Code allows a jury of less than 12 to carry on in such circumstances once the case has started.

Ross is beinb represented by Dermod Owen-Flood; assisted by Robert Higinbotham.

Jail Terms for Five After Ganges Break-In

Five Vancouver-area men were given jail terms Monday in provincial court on charges of mischief and possessing stolen koods.

Judge Blake Allan sentenced four of the men to three months and the other to four months for their part in ransacking a home on Price Road, near Ganges, Salt Spring Island.

All five pleaded guilty on Nov. 2.

Sentenced to three months were Douglas Charles Coleman, 779 E. 31st, Vancouver; Richard Phillip Leclair, 18, 5149 12th Ave., Delta; Kenneth Roger Mondor, 19, 2532 Fraser St., Vancouver, and Russell William Snyder, 19, 4408 Harriet, Vancouver.

Given a four-month sentence was Gordon Arthur Ramm, 27, of 4508 Harriet, Vancouver.

Damage to the house on Salt Spring Island was estimated at $1,424.

Judge Allan ruled that all five will have to share equally in paying for the damages over the next eight months.

"In future, you keep out of other people's premises because I won't be as lenient next time," he said.

After serving their sentences the five will be on probation for 12 months.

Judge Allan said he couldn't accept the men's story that they thought the house was abandoned when they broke in Oct. 23.

The owners reported that numerous boxes of personal papers and possessions were dumped on the floor, cans of meat opened and thrown on the floor, jars with preserves smashed, three wooden chairs broken, walls scraped and marked, and ceilings burned.

Several items were reported stolen, including bedding, fireplace tools, cookware and a brass door knocker.

BEFORE THE JUDGE

Judge Blake Allan spent a considerable time pondering the case of a 26-year-old Victoria woman Monday in Victoria provincial court before handing down a 10-day prison sentence.

Linda Darnell Kozak of 854 Seymour, Saanich, pleaded guilty to breaking and entering and to theft in a Nov. 7 break-in at a Sooke Pharmacy.

Defence lawyer Christopher Wilson, addressing Allan before sentence was handed down, asked the judge to take into consideration that the woman had already spent 22 days in the Victoria city jail.

"If this woman was sent to Oakalla," Wilson said, "she will fall right back into the 'fringe culture.' "

Wilson said his client was easily led and that another woman, due for trial soon in connection with the same incident, was the dominant partner in the break-in.

"I think she's paid heavily for this crime," Wilson stated.

"The offence itself is so serious," Allan replied, "anything other than a prison sentence is inappropriate."

The judge, however, referred the case to the afternoon to give more thought to the matter.

In the afternoon, Wilson made another plea to Allan, asking that any additional time in jail be spent in Victoria rather than at Oakalla, where the other woman involved is being held. Wilson also suggested that leniency might help in sending his client back on the right road.

"If everyone who comes before the courts could be reformed and rehabilitated, there would be no need to go to jail," Allan said. "And that would be the ideal situation."

"I don't like the appearance of this thing at all," Allan commented after advising Wilson that it was a painful duty to send young people to prison.

Besides the additional 10 days in prison, Allan also ordered her to report to the drug and alcohol society for counselling.

Robert Gerald Joseph Slater, 24, of 820 Fisgard was remanded in custody on a charge of armed robbery. Slater, through lawyer Darrell Woods, elected trial by judge without jury and will remain in jail until Thursday, when a date for a preliminary hearing is expected to be set.

The charge arose from an incident last Friday when a man, holding a knife, robbed the Quadra Market, 1725 Quadra, of about $12. A man was arrested shortly afterwards in a nearby room, Mulligan said.

Allan told a 17-year-old it was time for him to "decide whether you're going to become a criminal or a citizen" before handing out a one-year suspended sentence for the Oct. 26 theft of a camera from a Gorge Road motel.

Prosecutor Mulligan told court that Daniel John Morgan entered a room in the Coachman Inn with a pass key.

"I warn you," Allan said, "If you come back before me, you will go to jail. It's your age which saved you from a jail sentence."

In addition to the suspended sentence, Morgan was put on 12 months' probation and ordered to do 70 hours of community service work.

Drugs Seized

AMSTERDAM (AP) — Dutch police said Monday that narcotics worth about $5 million on the street, were seized in weekend raids at three locations. The haul included a total of 3,600 kilos of hashish and 16 kilos of heroin, all believed destined for distribution through the flourishing Amsterdam drugs market.

OIL TANKERS TAKING OVER

BELLINGHAM (AP) — Northwest Washington's major oil refineries have nearly completed the transition from pipeline-supplied Canadian oil to waterborne oil bought on the world market.

Each of the four refineries in Whatcom and Skagit counties reports about one tanker a week unloading crude oil. At the same time, the flow of Canadian crude, which once totalled 300,000 barrels a day, is down to a trickle and due to end by Jan. 1.

"You name it, we've got it," says Texaco refinery manager P. C. Templeton about the flow of oil from Middle East and Persian Gulf countries, Africa and Indonesia.

Three of the four refineries are battling the state to be allowed to bring in tankers larger than 125,000 deadweight tons.

Atlantic Richfield contended in its court challenge that the supertanker ban cost it several hundred thousand dollars a year.

The ban apparently hasn't eliminated any sources of crude oil, only forced the refineries to negotiate the type of vessel to be used in delivery as well as price. In some cases, oil must be transferred from larger to smaller vessel at a foreign port or at sea.

Another concern is the proposed superport oil terminal at Port Angeles. Refinery managers repeatedly have said cost of oil transported from the superport by pipeline to their refineries would put them at competitive disadvantage with refineries in California which haul refined products into the state.

Mobil Oil refinery manager Al Williamson says it appears Governor-elect Dixie Lee Ray "recognizes some of the economic problems associated with a single-point unloading terminal, but it's a little early to try and determine what her policy may be."

Solar Banks Urged in U.S.

DENVER (AP) — Barry Commoner, environmentalist and energy economist, said Monday urban America is the chief victim of a national energy policy that is tempting economic catastrophe.

The director of the Centre for the Biology of Natural Systems told the annual meeting of the National League of Cities that municipalities should create local Urban Energy Banks to subsidize movement toward a new policy featuring use of solar power.

The banks envisioned by Commoner would extend low-cost loans to finance solar energy and home insulation.

1.5% Jobless Cut in Year Carter Aim

PLAINS, Ga. — U.S. President-elect Jimmy Carter, highly critical of unemployment levels during the campaign, says anyone who thinks he can cut the jobless rate more than 1.5 per cent during his first year in office is "very naive."

Carter, in an interview broadcast Monday night with Walter Cronkite of CBS news, said he would be "stubborn" and is "determined not to fail" in his efforts to cut unemployment to four or 4.5 per cent by 1980, but conceded: "There's no way to wave a magic wand to put everybody back to work" in a year.

On the makeup of his administration, Carter said he will appoint Atlanta Banker Bert Lance to a cabinet-level position, apparently director of the office of management and budget later this week, but will hold off naming other key cabinet officials including the secretaries of state and defence for two or three more weeks.

Carter said he had five candidates in mind for each of those two posts and 10 under consideration to be treasury secretary. "I want to keep my options open," he said. "I'm not in any rush."

Asked about recent proposals that a spot for Secretary of State Henry Kissinger be found in the new administration, Carter said it would be "highly unlikely" for Kissinger to play a continuing role, but did not rule out "ad hoc" diplomatic assignments.

Carter is drafting regulations that would tighten restrictions on top level administration appointees who quit to enter private industries that do business with the government.

Press secretary Jody Powell disclosed the plans, but only in the most general terms, following a meeting between Carter and advisers.

CUT TV VIOLENCE, PTA URGES

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — The U.S. Parent-Teachers Association wants less violence on televisoh.

The 6.6 million-member PTA, which has 33,364 nationwide units, today starts a campaign against what its president, Carol Kimmel, describes as blood, gore and brutality entering the American home.

The start of the crusade against television violence beegins with a public forum here a day-long event drawing participants from Delaware, Maryland, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Virginia, West Virginia, and the District of Columbia.

The hearing is the first in a series of eight that will take in the entire country.

Hanford Fights Nuclear Mishap Threat

Washington Post

WASHINGTON — A waste trench at the U.S. plutonium factory in Hanford, Wash., accumulated so much of that atomic-bomb material that it almost created its own runaway chain reaction.

Alarmed engineers avoided what could have been a serious nuclear accident by pumping into the trench large volumes of cadmium metal, which acts to slow and then halt a nuclear chain reaction brought about either by accident or design.

The incident took place more than three years ago at the huge Hanford works operated by the Atlantic Richfield Co. for the now-defunct Atomic Energy Commission, whose engineers calculated that enough plutonium had been allowed to pile up inside a waste trench that it "could reach criticality" under certain conditions.

Criticality is reached when enough of a fissionable metal such as plutonium comes together to release an excess of neutrons. So many neutrons are released that the atoms around them can no longer absorb the excess. This surplus of neutrons then begins to split surrounding atoms, and the splitting releases still more neutrons to split more atoms.

This is what happens in a chain reaction, whether it is controlled in an atomic power plant or uncontrolled in an atomic-bomb explosion.

A waste trench with the prosaic name of Z-9 that was dug in 1955 outside one of the plutonium factories at Hanford accumulated what engineers thought was about 60 pounds of waste plutonium. The trench was closed off in 1962, seven years after it began to receive plutonium wastes.

Four years ago a fresh inventory suggested there might have been as much as 200 pounds of waste plutonium in the trench, and that most if not all of it had accumulated at one end of the trench and in the top 12 inches of soil.

The plutonium wastes had been deliberately placed in the trench with water, but no one considered the fact that plutonium and water do not mix. Only later did engineers calculate that the plutonium was settling in the topsoil of the trench.

Further tests suggested this was so, even though the trench is 20 feet deep, 30 feet wide and 60 feet long.

Engineers were called in from three atomic-weapons laboratories, and they figured that if 220 pounds of plutonium had collected in one end of the trench, a spontaneous chain reaction might take place. The engineers said it could easily happen in a heavy rainfall, since water could act to speed up the neutron pulses.

A decision was made three years ago to pump neutrons, salts, which absorb neutrons, into the trench to slow down the neutron pulses inside the trench.

Once this had been done, physical testing of the soil in the trench began. These tests suggested that about 90 pounds of plutonium were in the trench, not enough to trigger a chain reaction but far more than the 60 pounds that engineers originally thought had collected in the trench.

Early this year the concrete ceiling was partly removed from the trench, and a mining operation was begun to remove the topsoil that contains the plutonium. So ticklish is this task that an operator sits in a glass-enclosed cab 100 feet away from the trench and digs by remote control.

The digging machine carefully places the plutonium-contaminated soil in one gallon steel drums. The digging operation is expected to take another 18 months and cost as much as $1 million.

There are 12 other waste plutonium trenches at the Hanford works. One trench contains as much as 50 pounds of plutonium and another holds 60 pounds of the toxic metal. Engineers calculate that these trenches and some of the other 10 trenches may have to be dug up and "mined" for their plutonium.

Hanford managers downplay the possibility that the Z-9 trench might have gone critical. One says that if it had, it might have caused a sudden release of short-lived heat and radiation, which could be lethal.

BONANZA FOR B.C. FOREST FIRMS

Dollar Plunges In Panic Selling

Panic selling of the Canadian dollar continued around the world today, pushing the exchange rate down to 96.48 cents, a drop of .61 cents from Monday.

Bank spokesmen said the dollar would be expected to go lower despite efforts by the Bank of Canada to prop it up by heavy buying.

Some prediicted it would fall to about 93 cents American while some U.S. economists were estimating it would go below 90 cents for the first time since 1932.

The drop will be a bonanza for the British Columbia forest industry, which gains about $23 million per year in gross revenue for every penny decline. The dollar has fallen five cents in the past two weeks, creating $115 million in additional wealth for the industry.

The decline will also attract more tourists from the United States.

However, consumers will have to pay at least five per cent more for goods imported from the United States.

Hardest hit will be senior citizens, who face higher costs without the compensating benefits of direct ties to exporting companies. Many senior citizens travel to southern U.S. cities in winter for health or recreation reasons and they will face additional costs because of the collapse of the dollar.

U.S. coins, once plentiful in Victoria, can be expected to disappear within a few weeks.

Victoria banks were charging $1.05 for a U.S. dollar today, including the exchange rate plus handling charges. Two weeks ago the rate was 98 cents.

A senior Canadian foreign exchange dealer told the Times, he expected the present panic would blow itself out within three or four days.

He said it appears the Canadian dollar will rise again at some point.

"Quite frankly nobody is too sure where it will go. Everyone knew it was overpriced but this panic is an overreaction. After the panic ends, the dollar will stablize near the U.S. dollar."

He said the dollar hit a low of 95.9 in one Toronto trade this morning but has since edged up to just over 96 cents.

"We may be nearing the end of the panic."

The main problem is not the Quebec election but a report in the Wall Street Journal by the Investment Dealers of New York that the Canadian dollar should be selling at 92 cents.

"Some U.S. investors have begun selling and this started the panic."

Meanwhile in Victoria, Roger Hemeon, Royal Bank of Canada regional manager, said his company continues to believe the dollar will recover in 1977.

He said Canadian governments and companies will have to resume borrowing and this inflow of capital will bolster the Canadian rate.

While economists expected the dollar to fall, no one predicted the present panic, which is unprecedented.

In 1962, when the Canadian government pegged the dollar at 92.5 cents, the dollar fell more than two cents in a single day, but the loss was predictable.

This year, economists had expected the Canadian dollar would edge downwards by small fractions until year's end.

UNWED FATHER WINS CUSTODY

VANCOUVER (CP) — An unwed father has been granted interim custody of his child in what is believed to be the first decision of its kind in Canada.

Mr. Justice J. G. Ruttan ruled in British Columbia Supreme Court that a three-year-old girl who had been living with her father be returned to his care, pending a full trial and final order.

The mother had at first allowed the child to live with the father.

FAT OF THE LAND . . .

OTTAWA (CP) — The all-you-can-eat buffet of the Parliamentary restaurant and free booze on the cocktail circuit are taking their toll on the waistlines of MPs.

A survey of the eating habits of MPs published in the December issue of Canadian Consumer shows 57 per cent of Liberals surveyed are overweight compared with 45 per cent of Progressive Conservatives, 33 per cent of Social Credit members and only 25 per cent of New Democrats.

The figures come from a study of 100 randomly-selected MPs carried out by the consumer affairs department of CBC radio.

However, the study found the Liberals were only 13 pounds overweight on average compared with 30 pounds for Social Credit members, 16 pounds for New Democrat and 14.5 pounds for Conservatives.

Irregular eating habits brought on by the pressures of the job, too much alcohol and too little exercise were among the reasons cited by MPs for weight problems.

Former NDP leader T. C. Douglas says that one of the ways he's learned to keep his trim figure is by taking it easy at receptions.

"The best form of exercise is to shake your head left and right every time you are offered something," he said.

GAS INCREASE GIVEN NOD

OTTAWA (CP) — An increase of three-tenths of one cent per gallon in the price of petroleum products in British Columbia and the Yukon has been authorized, Energy Minister Alastair Gillespie said today.

The minister said in a statement that the price increase will cover the costs of higher pipeline tariffs between Alberta and B.C.

Trans-Mountain Pipeline Co. was granted a rate increase of 10 cents a barrel for crude oil early this month by the National Energy Board.

Egg Shortage Fears Refuted

A Christmas egg shortage predicted by Ottawa is unlikely to develop in B.C.

Last week the Canadian Egg Marketing Agency (CEMA) announced the possibility of a shortage due to Canadian eggs finding their way to more lucrative U.S. markets.

The agency, however, couldn't have had B.C. and Washington State in mind when it made the announcement.

In Victoria, extra-large eggs sell for $1.03, large for $1.01, and medium for 99 cents a dozen.

At Albertson's food store in Bellingham, Wash., extra-large sell for 85 cents, large for 82 cents and medium for 78 cents.

A purchasing agent for Northwest said the company does not buy Canadian eggs.

Coffee Boosted

MONTREAL (CP) — Standard Brands Ltd. announced today that it is increasing its wholesale price of coffee by 40 cents a pound effective Dec. 10, and expects to make a further increase as early as mid-January.

Wayne Newson, the company's vice-president and general manager, said that the increase does not reflect the full impact of increases in green coffee prices on the world market.

"We were able to delay the increase in price to our customers because of a favorable short-term inventory position but as our inventories have been depleted we are forced to increase our price," he said.

CLOTHING UP

OTTAWA (CP) — Clothing prices are expected to rise next year following imposition of government quotas on garment imports announced Monday.

But Trade Minister Jean Chretien and Ruth Lotzkar, president of the Consumers' Association of Canada, differed on the impact the new quotas will have on prices in 1977.

Chretien, announcing the quotas, said the measures could mean a "marginal" rise in clothing prices and promised the government would backpedal if costs to the consumer jumped rapidly.

Mrs. Lotzkar said in Vancouver the quotas will "substantially raise prices on almost all garments that are commonly bought by consumers."

INFLATION SLOW

OTTAWA (CP) — Total production in the Canadian economy rose at an annual rate of 3.2 per cent during the third quarter this year, and the inflation rate was the lowest in three years, Statistics Canada reported Monday. The government agency says in its quarterly report on gross national product that the growth resulted from a building up of inventories, more personal spending and increased government spending.

The inflation rate during the last 12 months has been the lowest since 1973, Statistics Canada said. The agency's inflation index for the 12 months gained only nine per cent.

CARING MEANS SHARING and Victorians cared enough Monday to donate a record $3,485.65 to kick off annual Unitarian Service Committee's fund drive in this area. Dr. Lotta Hitschmanova, driving force behind campaign—goal this year locally is $30,000— is shown here with photographs of people around the world who benefit from USC's work. Law Bans Hate Calls

By DAN POTTIER
Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — A ban on hate calls and the creation of a privacy commissioner are among the key new features of human rights legislation introduced in the Commons Monday.

In presenting the long-awaited bill, Justice Minister Ron Basford said its aim was to bar discrimination and protect the privacy of individuals in areas of federal jurisdiction.

A human rights commission would be set up to enforce the law in much the same way that the provinces have already done.

The majority of provisions in the Basford bill had already been made public. A similar bill, introduced in 1975, died on the order paper last session.

Basford told a news conference he hoped the bill would be quickly adopted by Parliament so that the human rights commission could be set up "sometime in 1977."

The commission would have the power to enforce a non-discrimination code banning discrimination on grounds of race, color, national or ethnic origin and religion, age, sex, marital status or physical handicap.

The commission would have between five and eight government appointed members: one of whom would be the Privacy Commissioner charged with ensuring that citizens get access to government files on themselves.

The bill would also ban the transmission of hate messages by telephone.

Basford said the provision was included mainly at the request of the Ontario government which said current Criminal Code provisions were insufficient.

The bill would empower the human rights commission to issue a "cease and desist" order against any person or group engaging in a hate campaign by telephone.

Failure to comply would become grounds for contempt of court which carries a penalty of up to one year in jail or a fine not exceeding $5,000.

Drury Dropped Polysar Probe After the Firm 'Explained'

Times News Services

OTTAWA — Charles Drury, former president of the treasury board, said today he dropped the issue of overaeas rebates paid by a government-owned company after getting an explanation from company offices.

Testifying before the commons public accounts committee, Drury said he did not discuss the issue either with cabinet colleagues or with Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau, who had referred the matter to him after receiving a letter from the auditor-general.

The letter to Trudeau said that Polymer Corp., a major petrochemical company now known as Polysar Ltd., billed European customers at inflated prices and then rebated the difference into numbered Swiss bank accounts.

The auditor-general said such payments, totalling $2 million, allowed the companies to duck taxes and foreign exchange regulations of their home governments.

Federal auditors earlier traced a tale of complicated financial dealings with foreign agents employed by Atomic Energy of Canada Ltd. to promote a nuclear reactor sale to South Korea.

Negotiations with United Development Inc. of Tel Aviv, acting for AECL in the sale, stretched over five years, officials for the auditor-general's department told the Commons public accounts committee as it opened an investigation into what it describes as unaccounted for payments to the agent.

William Bradshaw, assistant auditor-general, said United Developments assured the AEC board earlier this year that multi-million dollar payments made to promote the sale were far less than the expenses incurred by United.

The auditor-general said in his annual report recently tabled in the House that there is insufficient documentation to back $8.1 million of $15.4 mil-

SUPERTANKER MOORS AT PORT ANGELES

PORT ANGELES (AP) — The super-tanker Overseas Argonaut, carrying about $12 million worth of oil, has anchored here to wait for an early Christmas — the Dec. 15 effective date of a federal court injunction against enforcement of Washington's anti-super-tanker law. (See also page 41.)

When the Argonaut proceeds into Puget Sound, it will become the largest vessel ever to ply the inland waters. The British vessel is 886 feet long and 142 feet wide and has a capacity of 140,905 tons.

She also will be the first ship of more than 125,000 tons to enter Washington waters since the state law was approved in 1975 banning vessels of that size or larger.

One estmate is that it costs $1,000 an hour to maintain the Overseas Argonaut at anchor. The cargo is 138,000 tons of oil, or about a million barrels.

Vanderhoof Switch

Attorney-General Garde Gardom today cleared the way for the re-laying of a charge against the driver of a car which struck and killed a pregnant Indian woman in Vanderhoof.

Coreen Thomas, 21, was killed last July. Her death became the focus of Indian complaints about alleged harrassment and beatings by whites.

Peter Thomas, father of the dead woman, laid a charge of criminal negligence against Richard Redekop but the crown entered a stay of proceedings last week.

Gardom said today the stay of proceedings has now been lifted.

He said the prosecution should now be permitted to procede and the matter is left to the courts.

"I felt very strongly that justice must not only be done but appear to be done," Gardom said.

He said he had asked officials of his department to consider all the material and they concurred with today's action.

Ferry 'Unsafe'

New transportation arrangements on B.C.'s central and northern coast are unsafe and "endangering people's lives," New Democratic Party MLA Don Lockstead (Mackenzie) said Monday.

He demanded that Transport Minister Jack Davis replace the ferry Malibu Princess, which sails between Prince Rupert and the Queen Charlottes.

The boat, he charged, was "deisgned for protected coastal waters and there is serious doubt as to whether or not it can safely be used on the open waters of Hecate Strait."

Lockstead also demanded an inquiry into the circumstances under which RivTow Straits was awarded the coastal shipping contract by Ottawa.

Since the firm took over northern runs, fares have gone up by as much as 150 per cent. See story on page 3.

Clean Sidewalks or Face Fine—Chamber Head

Victoria should follow the European example and fine businessmen who don't keep their sidewalks clean, Victoria Chamber of Commerce tourist and convention director Flos Prior said Monday.

"Victoria used to be known for its clean streets but it is changing," she said in an interview.

"The streets seem to be getting dirtier every year."

By contrast, she said, streets in European countries are spotless.

She has just returned from a visit to Switzerland and West Germany and everywhere she went the streets were cleaner than those in downtown Victoria.

"I learned that the burgermeister (mayor) fines anyone who fails to wash his windows or clean up his sidewalk at least once a week. Maybe we should start doing the same thing here.

"Cleaning up the streets and sidewalks should be a total community effort and maybe there should be fines to encourage people. The fines should be at least $100."

Much of the debris comes from young people throwing banana peels and cigarette boxes out car windows but pedestrians also drop a large amount of litter in the downtown area, she said.

"Unfortunately litter tends to attract litter. If the streets are not kept clean more people will throw things away. Once a street is clean it is easier to keep it clean."

She made the statement while announcing a number of tourist promotion activities being carried out by the chamber.

Prior said the chamber has succeeded in persuading Air Canada to fly a group of German travel agents to Victoria in January after she discovered, while in Frankfurt, that the travel agents came to B.C. twice a year but only visited Vancouver and the Williams Lake-Kamloops area.

"The employees of Air Canada who organize this tour told me they had never ever heard of Victoria."

The employees are not Canadians but are hired by Air Canada for tour promotion work in Germany.

Prior said the chamber immediately sent brochures and other information to the Frankfurt Air Canada office and were told by return mail that the travel agent tour in January will include a visit to Victoria for the first time.

The chamber is also planning tourist promotion visits from Victoria to Seattle and Vancouver early in the new year.

The Chamber will conduct its second annual flower count promotion, starting Feb. 14.

McKenzie Extension Promised

Bennett Store Sued

Bennett Stores Kelowna Ltd. is to appear in provincial court in Kelowna Feb. 7 for trial on a charge of misleading advertising.

The violation is alleged to have occurred Jan. 7.

The hardware store is owned by the family of Premier Bennett.

Saanich Mayor Ed Lum said today Highways Minister Alex Fraser has promised to extend McKenzie Avenue westward, almost one mile from Glanford to the Trans-Canada Highway.

Lum said Fraser made the commitment Monday during a meeting with Health Minister Robert McClelland, held to discuss a cost-sharing formula between Saanich and the province on services needed for the proposed 250-bed hospital on Helmcken.

"We have been after such a commitment for years," Lum said, "We obtained it from the highways minister who sat in on our discussions with McClelland."

Sewers and storm drains would have to be extended through Saanich to the hospital site, which is in the unorganized territory of View Royal.

Lum says if the Helmcken site is used it will force the municipality to provide services that were years away in planning.

McClelland, Lum said, has agreed "to look over and reappraise the McKenzie-Douglas site as location for the hospital, based on a new offer by the owners."

The mayor said McClelland had received estimates just in excess of $1 million for additional services required if the Helmcken site is used.

The estimates, however, are based on 1976 construction figures and do not include the McKenzie extension.

Lum said the Saanich proposal was to upgrade roads around the proposed Helmcken site. As a result of Fraser's announcement, he added, new cost estimates will now have to be made.

NEWS BRIEFS

Quake in Japan

TOKYO (Reuters)—A weak earthquake, with a maximum intensity of three on the Japanese scale of seven, shook part of Japan's most northern island of Hokkaido Monday but there was no report of damage or injuries.

Fatal Plane Crash

Strong-Arm Gov't

NEW DELHI (AP) — Bangladesh's military strongman, Gen Ziaur Rahman, took over full powers today to run the country as chief martial law administrator and began arresting some prominent politicians, authoritative reports reaching New Delhi said.

Aid for Quebec

MONTREAL (CP) — The federal department of regional economic expansion said today that it made grants totalling $2,023,354 to Quebec firms in November.

Mexico City Bombs

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Four explosions of undetermined origin caused heavy damage to commercial buildings in widely separated sections of Mexico City Monday night, but no injuries.

Winter Job Funds

OTTAWA (CP) — Jean Chretien, acting president of the treasury board, tabled in the Commons Monday supplementary government spending estimates of $150 million to finance additional measures to reduce winter unemployment announced last week.

Quake Hits Chileans

SANTIAGO, Chile (UPI) — A strong earthquake shook the sparsely populated Atacama Desert area of northern Chile, causing landslides, damaging homes and injuring at least 13 persons, police reported today.

The jolt Monday night also blocked highways and severed many power and telephone lines.

One person hit by falling debris was reported seriously injured in the town of Calama, near the huge Chuquicamata copper mine. The other victims were slightly injured.

THE OUTCASTS

MAC-BLO CLOSES ALBERNI WOODS

PORT ALBERNI (CP) — MacMillan Bloedel said today that all of its Alberni district and west coast logging operations will shut down Friday for an indefinite period.

A company spokesman said the shutdowns will throw 1,473 out of work for the period.

The shutdown will last at least until January, and decisions on when to resume operations will depend heavily on weather.

Meanwhile, Crown Zellerbach Canada Ltd. announced it is extending its normal Christmas shutdown of the Elk Falls Mill at Capbell River because of softening markets for pulp and paper. G. L. Pearson, pulp and paper group vice-president, said the shutdown will affect about 550 of the mill's 1,000 employees. The shutdown will be from Dec. 24 to Jan. 3 rather than restricted to Christmas, Boxing Day and New Year's holidays.

Alta. Surplus $607M

EDMONTON (CP) — A $1.7-billiob bobanza from oil and natural gas helped Alberta to a budget surplus of $607.1 million in the fiscal year which ended last March 31. The surplus was a staggering $568 million nore than had been estimated when the budget was introduced in the spring of 1975.

Public accounts released today show the government earned $3.3 billion during the 1975-76 fiscal year, of which $1.729 billion, or more than 52 per cent was derived from oil and gas. Royalties a tax on production — on crude oil, natural gas and natural gas byproducts and synthetic crude oil brought in $1.5 billion.

The government spent $2.7 billion, including $693.6 million on education, $885.6 million on public welfare, institutions and charitable grants, $309.1 million on general government and $243.4 million on highways and bridges.

Actual spending exceeded estimates by about $200,000, but income soared $755.5 million above budget estimates.

Men Admitted

CAMBRIDGE, England (Reuter) — Girton, the Cambridge women's college built two miles outside the city to minimize the contact with male students, will admit men next October. Girton's action follows similar moves by several men's colleges at Cambridge to admit women.

lion paid to United as a fee on the reactor sale.

Committee discussion started late as members argued over the amount of time set aside each week for the investigation. The committee decided to look at ways it could expand the three hours a week now set aside for discussions.

The investigation takes place in the wake of opposition fears that AECL and Polysar may have been involved in bribery and payoffs to foreign officials.

Senior officials of the company say they have no evidence that bribes are involved, but opposition MPs say officials cannot say for sure there were no payoffs.

Two payments by AECL are under question.

One was a $2.4 million deposit in a Lichtenstein bank account as an agent's fee in the sale of a reactor to Argentina.

AECL says the agent was hired by its partner, Italimpianti, and the company has no idea who the agent is.

The Italian firm has been asked for that information and has told Energy Minister, Alastair Gillespie it will make a formal written reply.

The auditor-general also says there was insufficient documentation to back $8.1 million of the $15.4 million paid to United Development Inc. of Tel Aviv as a fee on the sale of a reactor to South Korea.

But United said in a statement Monday that it offered AECL a chance last September to go through its books to ensure the $8.1 million for expenses was "fair and reasonable." the company says the offer was passed along to the auditor-general.

Liberal House leader Allan MacEachen, meanwhile, told the Commons Monday he feels the Commons public accounts committee already has all the power it needs to study foreign contracts involving Atomic Energy of Canada Ltd. and Polymer Corp. Ltd., now called Polysar.

But, he added, he is prepared to give the committee whatever terms of rererence it needs to call witnesses in both cases.

Auditors for Polysar Ltd. said in Toronto, that an audit of the Sarnia, Ont., company does not indicate whether rebates paid by the company to European buyers were inducements to purchase by helping the buyers avoid their national taxes.

"It's not up to us to say whether there was tax evasion or not," Gordon Cowperthwaite, senior Canadian partner for Peat Marwick, Mitchell and Co., Toronto, said in an interview.

According to Canada Development Corporation president Anthony Hampson, Polysar Ltd. often pays "volume rebates" to only one company selected by a European parent, even though the rebate in fact is based on sales to a number of related companies.

As a consequence, the subsidiaries not receiving the rebate credit are with the original, inflated invoices, Hampson indicated in an Ottawa interview Monday.

This could often mean that tax authorities in one European country would only be able to determine the "real cost" of the Polysar goods by obtaining co-operation and information from the tax authorities in the country where the "volume rebates" were actually paid, Hampson admitted.

TOWN TALK

Thumbing through B.C. Tel's new phone books seems to be quite a popular exercise for Town Talk readers.

One points out that the company has apparently changed its former policy of denying MLAs the right to put those three little letters after their name, for ease of identification.

Turn to the Bs and you see there the name Charles Barber MLA.

It's a welcome change from the frustrations of those days when David Anderson was an MLA. There are 11 Andersons with a D in their initials, and most if not all of them must have been phoned at all hours of the day and night by Victorians wanting a chat with their MLA.

By the way, don't bother looking in the book for the number of Victoria's other MLA, Sam Bawlf. He used to be listed when he was a city alderman, but he's not now.

You can leave your car longer on the B.C. Ferries Swartz Bay parking lot but it's going to cost you more.

This month a new system went into effect, allowing motorists to leave cars longer than the 48-hours allowed earlier for $1.

Now, the fee is 50 cents per day for any number of days. But a word of warning: tickets for the full amount must be prepurchased otherwise motorists run the risk of having their cars towed away.

A trickle of smoke continues to rise each day from the spot where some debris brush was burned in Beaver Lake Park. What's so unusual about that? The brush was burned more than a month ago, that's what, proof positive it's been an unusually dry fall.

Here's one more thing you might want to add to your agenda for Christmas Day—a contribution and maybe a visit to the Elks Hall where the Minus One Club will hold open house for the lonely.

Cookies, cake, the leg of a turkey, anything and everything is welcome, says Nicholas Jossul, spokesman for the club for widowed, divorced, separated or just plain lonely people.

This year the club is expecting more than 1,000 people will drop by the hall on Cormorant between 2 p.m. and 10 p.m. Christmas Day—because they have no one else to visit, no place else to go.

Refreshments and entertainment will be free. All contributions will be added to the table. Jossul can be reached at 383-8385.

LUM
. . . second thoughts?

Mayor Ed Lum of Saanich may be having second thoughts about downing a drink of Swan Lake water to prove it's pollution-free.

On Nov. 19 the mayor, replying to aldermanic candidate Jack Fry's claim the lake is polluted, said he would willingly quaff a drink from the lake to prove his point.

Reminded of his promise today, Lum said he didn't want to do any repeat performances so if the media would organize a single date he'd do his stuff.

Couldn't the mayor simply announce a time. Everybody would come.

The last of the candy's long gone and the costumes and scary masks have gone back into the closet until next Hallowe'en.

But there's still some news — albeit belated — from the trick 'n treat front. Seems the kids who roamed the Greater Victoria area carrying those orange UNICEF cans collected $4,144.48 to help less fortunate youngsters around the world.

We can give you the numbers of eight tickets in the next Provincial lottery which are sure losers. If you have one of them, chances are you bought it from a thief.

Someone stole the tickets from a counter last week at Bayley's Garden Centre at the Colwood Farmers Market. Bill Bayley says the lottery organizers have agreed to take the stolen tickets out of the running for any prize.

The losing numbers are: 4222743-4-5-6-7-9 as well as the same five first numbers ending in 51 and 52.

The theft was a double dirty deal. Money made from ticket sales goes to the Gorge Islanders soccer team, a collection of 14 and 15-year-olds who are saving for a tour in Hawaii in 1978.

Scrooge is really a computer at ICBC.

So says a Town Talk reader who phoned to complain about the Crown corporation's stingy attitude at this time of year. Although he paid his auto insurance premium of $227 nine months ago, ICBC has sent him a dunning letter demanding another $26.

The reason? His agent made a mistake in February, putting his vehicle down for class two when it was actually class three. The all-seeing ICBC computer caught the error and has presented him with a bill.

Our man (a B.C. civil servant who for that reason prefers to be anonymous) has two beefs. The mistake, surely, was his agent's. "It's not my fault — I signed a contract."

His second complaint is the timing. "Right before Christmas, surely? How many more of us are being attacked this way."

This Scrooge is a powerful one, too. If he doesn't pay the $26, ICBC says it will put the RCMP on his trail to take back his licence plates.

Bah humbug, ICBC!

We're all familiar with federal, provincial and even municipal politicians who return to car dealerships after they get out of politics.

But what about student politicians who haven't yet finished their schooling and don't have much work experience to fall back on?

Take Clayton Shold, last year's president of the University of Victoria Alma Mater Society. This year he is slinging beer in the cellar of the Student Union Building.

But all is not lost, Shold is taking extra courses this year to make up for his year as president where he was reduced to 6½ units. And student politics is still bandied about the SUB pub where he works 15 hours a week, so he manages to keep his finger in.

Gov't Myth On Welfare 'Demolished'

By DON VIPOND
Times Staff

A survey which shows people favor higher welfare payments demolishes the government myth that the public is demanding a hardline stand on such spending, a social workers' spokesman said today.

Marjorie Martin, president of the local branch of the B.C. Association of Social Workers, also said the provincial government has the facts to probably dispel another myth it is promoting — that there are numerous healthy young people who need to be pushed off the welfare rolls.

She was commenting on survey results published in the Times Monday which showed that on average, 600 people from across the province would give more to handicapped, families and pensioners on welfare than the government now pays.

Only in the case of young, healthy, unemployed people did those surveyed favor a reduction in welfare, from the current $160 a month to $150.

In general, those surveyed would give the handicapped $400 a month instead of the $265 they are getting and a three-member family $499 a month instead of the $320 to $370 they now get.

The figures come from questionnaires mailed this fall to a random sampling by Dan Koenig, sociologist at the University of Victoria.

It was the latest in a series of public opinion polls he has taken.

Martin said the results show people in B.C. do see a need for more money to those who qualify for welfare and are presumably ready to pay for it.

"I would like to see the government take this as a mandate," she said, to raise social assistance closer to basic living standards.

She said the results also show there is "a lingering myth" concerning the number of healthy young people drawing welfare. The government has an unpublished study on these people and should make public such details as to the number of them, who they are and what job opportunities are for them.

"It would help clear up the myth about young people on welfare."

She said the association suspects that if the facts were known, they would show that what young people are on social assistance are there because they don't have much choice.

Filming In City Cancelled

Pressure by British investors has forced Astro-Bellevue Pathe to cancel plans to film David Copperfield in Victoria, tlie manager of the Greater Victoria Chamber of Commerce said today.

Brian Small said the $3.5 million project was scheduled to start here in the spring; with rehearsals and recording being done in the company's Toronto studio prior to that.

Small says president Harold Greenburg had to turn to Britisr investors to cover a shortfall in cash and they, in turn, insisted the filming be done in Britain. "It would have meant a lot of work for people in the theatre here," Small said today.

Posted Signs To Be Needed For Rezoning

By PAUL MOSS
Times Staff

Development proposals will come more clearly under the public eye in Victoria.

Under a new policy endorsed today by the city's land-use planning and zoning committee, developers will be required to post notices prominently on sites which are the subject of applications for rezoning or land use contracts.

The city will make the signs and have them available for developers.

The signs, about three feet square, will state in simple language — "colloquial terms," according to planning director Geoff Greenhalgh — exactly what change of land use is envisaged for the site.

One sign will be required for each road frontage of the site.

Developers will be responsible for maintaining the signs.

There was some argument in the committee about when the notices should be posted. Ald. Murray Glazier wanted the maximum possible notification by insisting that the signs be posted when development applications first go to the city's advisory planning commission.

But Mayor Mike Young pointed out that about 60 per cent of all applications to the APC are turned down, and Ald. Bob Wright agreed that premature posting might well cause "unnecessary distress in the neighborhood" when council itself had no intention of approving the application.

"It will get a lot of people up in arms," he said.

The committee accepted Wright's motion to require posting at the time the APC's recommendation has received preliminary endorsement from council.

Members pointed out this would provide a minimum one-month's notice to residents prior to the public hearing.

Langhelt said his association is concerned with making sure tenants' rights are protected. He said he found the developers are doing everything possible to make the relocation easier, including paying moving expenses and offering the appliances from the old suites free is needed.

City Hall Shuffle Coming?

Some administrative reorganization could take place at City Hall following the retirement today of city clerk Morran Waller, but Mayor Mike Young says it's a less than 50 per cent possibility.

The mayor was guarded and evasive when tackled by reporters on the subject this morning.

He did say, however, that city council is reviewing the situation in the light of applications received for Waller's replacement, and a decision could come late this week or early next week.

Asked if consolidation of the city clerk's office under another department or section was a possibility, Young replied: "Yes, and I think the sun is going to rise tomorrow too."

But in response to further questions he admitted that a merger with the city manager's office was more likely than one with the city solitor's.

He stressed that a lot depends on the particular qualifications, experience and ability of the successful candidate for the job.

"We can upgrade, downgrade, incorporate or do whatever we want," he added.

New Offer Given Saanich Firemen

Saanich today made a new offer to the municipality's firemen in an effort to restore full firefighting services and resolve contract differences.

The offer was made at meeting between the firemen, the municipality and the Greater Victoria Labor Relations Association, bargaining agency for Saanich.

Ken Ebbs-Canavan, spokesman for the 93 firemen, said the offer is to be outlined to the firefighters at 8 tonight.

Until the members have had a chance to discuss the proposal, it would not be made public, he said.

The firemen began Friday to pressure for settlement of their 1976 contract by refusing to provide such non-emergency services as school inspections and safety checks.

Ebbs-Canavan said the cutback in services will continue until the firemen reach a satisfactory agreement with the municipality.

Saanich has offered the men a seven-per-cent wage increase plus a one-per-cent increase in fringe benefits retroactive to Jan. 1.

The firemen, members of the International Association of Firefighters, Local 967, have rejected the offer because they say it would put them too far behind Vancouver.

The basic rate for a first-class fireman in Saanich is $1,290 a month.

Don't Give Until It Hurts

A little bit of Scrooge at Christmas doesn't hurt, Consumer Services Minister Rafe Mair suggested today.

He urged shoppers to constrain themselves in the razzle-dazzle of pre-Christmas xonsumerism to avoid later debt problems.

"Individuals should not overextend themselves," Mair said, "That causes problems in January and February and out debtors' assistance branch gets it."

Fire Marshall Orders Alkazar Demolition

Alkazar Mansion, the Spanish style apartment building on Fairfield, will be demolished on orders of the fire marshal.

Mayor Mike Young said today he received a "pretty convincing" letter from owners Reeson and Pinch Homes Ltd. and "there doesn't seem to be any alternative to demolition."

Fairfield Community Association resident Syd Langhelt, however, wants every possible avenue explored before demolition of the apartment, which he feels is a prominent landmark in the city.

The mansion was built in 1913 and modelled after the famous Alkazar in Toledo, Spain.

But Young feels its architectural value is minimal: "As far as the architectural aspect is concerned, it is one of the ugliest and most unsuitable buildings I have ever seen."

He confirmed the demolition permit application had been submitted as a matter of routine to the Heritage advisory committee, but said he is "99 per cent certain they won't ask for it to be designated (as a heritage structure)."

Young said he sees no alternative except to have it vacated and demolished.

"The building . . . is in pretty bad condition — both the roof and exterior. There are a number of problems with bringing it up to the requirements of the fire marshal."

"Frankly, at this juncture, I see no way out of the dilemma."

Langhelt said he had only seen one architect's report on the condition of the building that was included in the letter from Reeson and Pinch. He said he would like to see a "heritage-minded" architect look at the structure and make a report before the Fairfield association gives up on preserving it.

The Alcazar contains about 20 suites which are mostly occupied by elderly women. A 99-year-old woman has lived there most of her life.

Amalgamation Savings Studied

Ald. Ron McKenzie and a group of local businessmen have begun a study, at their own expense, to assess the money that could be saved by amalagamating the four core municipalities.

McKenzie said today the names of the participants will be made public later this week or early next week.

He said he hopes the study would be finished by mid-1977. The group wil travel to Nanaimo, Vancouver, Winnipeg and possibly Toronto to study other amalgamated areas.

McKenzie said there is a tremendous amount of duplication in the present local government system and he is convinced amalgamation can bring substantial savings.

As an example, he says the Greater Victoria area with a population of about 200,000 has seven different levels of government.

Vancouver, on the other hand, with a population of a million has only one city council.

McKenzie said the main opposition to amalgamation will likely come from local mayors and aldermen whose jobs would be on the line under the new system.

McKenzie envisages a ward system with representatives from each ward serving as members of the Capital Region District board, the over-all governing body.

"If the provincial government and the people feel strongly enough about the matter and the money to be saved, they could bypass these minor politicians," he said.

McKenzie said he has had some feedback from his proposal and so far most of it from "fairly high up" in municipal circles has been positive.

However, some areas, like Oak Bay, remain opposed.

This might be a little shortsighted on the part of Oak Bay politicians because there may come a time when the people realize the municipality's tax base is not broad enough to pay for upgraded or increased services, he added.

For example, he said, Oak Bay is going to have to upgrade its sewer system soon and that could mean a cost of $700,000 to $800,000.

INFANT SAVED BY FIREMAN

A 14-month-old girl was rescued by a Saanich fireman Monday afternoon after fire broke out in upstairs bedroom of a two-storey house at 2344 Eldon Place.

A fire department spokesman said Lieut. Paul Smith, wearing an air mask, raced into the house, found Angie Skodstad in her crib and carried her to safety.

The fire was reported at 4:26 p.m. by a neighbor who saw smoke curling from under the eaves.

The child's mother, Janet Skodstad, had gone to a corner store with her three-year-old son. When firemen arrived, she was standing in front of her house crying hysterically that her daughter was trapped inside.

Fire officials said the baby was in a bedroom near the fire but because the door to her room had been closed, the smoke level had not reached the danger point.

"If the door had been left open it would have been a different story," assistant chief Robert Mortimer said.

The infant was taken to Victoria General Hospital but released after examination.

Firemen had little trouble extinguishing the blaze which gutted one room and broke through the roof.

Damage has been estimated at about $15,000.

Cause of the fires has not been determined but firemen suspect it was either careless smoking or children playing with matches.
